Relief Is Nearer

By Charles Mercer
Post Staff Writer

The House today will receive the written recommendation of its Public Buildings and Grounds Committee that 50 million dollars in Federal funds be authorized to construct homes for Government war workers in the District area and to expand public works serving the new homes.

In executive session yesterday the committee unanimously approved the bill sponsored by Chairman Lanham (Democrat), of Texas, which permits Federal workers in the war program here to share in the benefits of a 300 million dollar fund at present earmarked only for industrial workers in the Nation's defense centers.

Authorizing the financing of a building program sought for this area for many months by Defense Housing Coordinator Charles F. Palmer, the bill opens the way for construction of probably 10,000 homes in both the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Palmer Cites Minimum

Palmer has stated that 10,000 housing units are a minimum requirement for wartime crowded Washington. He has also urged the setting up of 4500 demountable houses in the area, which the amount might also finance.

To serve these new homes the bill authorizes that some of the fund go toward construction of schools and hospitals, improvement and expansion of waterworks, sewers, garbage and refuse disposal facilities, and streets and highways.

Representative Lanham emphasized yesterday that the Federal Government will bear the cost of expansion. He said the only field in which the District government might be asked to share the burden would be in expansion of waterworks, which are operated by the District at a cost to consumers.

Lanham Calls for Speed

"Speed of enactment is essential to the bill," Representative Lanham declared, pointing out that the committee has been aware of the acute need for increased housing here and has acted as expeditiously as possible.

Palmer's recommendation reached Congress a week ago Tuesday. A committee bill was drawn up on Wednesday, and hearings began on Thursday. The hearings continued on Friday and on Tuesday of this week, when they closed after no voice had been raised in protest of the bill.

Sentiment in both the House and Senate has favored inclusion of the District area in the Lanham Act funds, and committee advocates foresee no strong opposition to the measure.

Henderson Cuts Wholesale Prices Of Nylon Hosiery

OPA Administrator Leon Henderson last night wiped out recent increases in wholesale prices for women's nylon hosiery when he established a price ceiling under the recently passed Price Control Act.

At the same time he warned that retail prices already are "as high as they will be permitted to go."

The new schedule, effective at once, prohibits sales of nylon stockings by manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers at prices above the highest quotation charged during the October 1-15 period.

Buy a Bomber

'City of Washington' Assured

WASHINGTON responded to the "Buy A Bomber" campaign with a flood of subscriptions for defense bonds and stamps.

If the response today is as satisfactory as that of yesterday, the "City of Washington" is assured and will be eventually so christened and sent winging on its way.

This brief campaign was conceived by the Treasury and the cooperation of The Post, WJSV, and the Junior Board of Commerce was requested.

The announcement of the "Buy A Bomber for MacArthur" project met such enthusiastic response that the Treasury, and the War Department as well, feels that a meticulous explanation should be made to the public so there will be no misunderstanding by any investor in defense bonds and stamps.

THE War Department cannot guarantee that any bomber will be sent to any designated scene of action. Military necessity governs such matters. The Treasury cannot set aside any sum for a definite purpose. Defense bonds and stamps are sold to provide cash for guns, tanks, bombers and war supplies wherever needed. Every penny invested helps MacArthur on some front line.

The phrase "Buy A Bomber For MacArthur" originated with the Treasury and that magnificent department is worried lest there be some misapprehension.

The Post knows that it makes no difference to Washingtonians if a dollar invested for a bomber for Luzon turns up as a machine gun in the hands of a Marine on Midway Island. Folks in Washington have friends in both places fighting the good fight that will lead to victory.

So go right on buying defense bonds and stamps whether it is for a "Bomber For MacArthur" or a "Gun For Private Joe Doakes."

Your purchase of defense bonds and stamps will win this war.

Shipbuilder Admits Huge War Profits

Todd's Earnings Are 50 Per Cent Of Invested Capital

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The Washington agent for the Todd Shipyards Corporation came voluntarily before a Senate committee yesterday to explain a 36-word statement on war profiteering, but before he and the committee were finished he set a new record for candor by supplying the following intelligence:

1. The corporation's war earnings may run about 50 per cent of its invested capital.

2. By building on Government-owned land, the Navy is spending Federal funds for new ship construction facilities that may either be torn down after the war or paid for by the company at a price "satisfactory to it."

3. The corporation has arranged with the Navy to pay back four million dollars on a "half dozen" ship repair contracts because it was making "outrageous profits."

4. The company hasn't "any right" to make such profits and "you can take taxes right up to the hilt, as far as I am concerned and as far as my company is concerned."

The witness was James E. Barnes, Todd's 57-year-old Washington representative, who has "been around" the Capital for 27 years. He came to tell the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, that the Truman Defense Investigating Committee, in its recent report, had misconstrued 36 words of his testimony to the effect that the Navy contract methods:

"Gave us a profit of $1.80 a day on every man we had, and I think we had around 35,000. If it hadn't been for taxes, we couldn't have handled our profits with a steam

Biddle Orders Aliens Moved From 31 Areas

Acts to Protect Pacific Coast's Vital Industries

By Fred Mullen
United Press Staff Writer

Attorney General Francis Biddle announced last night that all German, Japanese and Italian aliens will be removed from 31 "prohibited" areas in Oregon and Washington before February 15.

The move, aimed at forestalling possible fifth column activity in areas of military importance, came a few hours after he had designated a 500-mile strip of the California coast as a "restricted" area within which enemy aliens will be subject to a 9 p. m. curfew and their movements limited to travel between their homes and jobs.

Last night's action marked the first time that "prohibited" areas had been established in any State other than California, where 88 such sectors have been designated.

It was expected that "prohibited" areas also would be established soon for other States comprising the Western defense command—Nevada, Arizona, Montana, Utah and Idaho.

Subject to Internment

Biddle said that enemy aliens found in the newly designated proscribed areas—24 in Oregon and 7 in Washington—after February 15 will be subject under his regulations to arrest and internment.

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt announced later that, at Biddle's suggestion, his agency would assume responsibility for resettling enemy aliens and their dependents who must move out of prohibited areas.

Strategic sites covered by the order include the Grand Coulee and Bonneville Dams, important sources of hydro-electric power.

Earlier, Biddle designated 11 areas surrounding hydro-electric generating plants throughout California as

Liquid Assets

War Program Puts Additional Stress on Blood Bank Needs

Ever since its establishment just three years ago, the Children's Hospital Blood and Serum Bank has served patients of other hospitals as well as its own.

The "bank's" value as a community asset has been further emphasized in recent weeks under the Civilian Defense program.

Children's Hospital is fully organized as a casualty receiving station, in case of bombardment. Its blood and plasma transfusion service would then be of incalculable benefit.

Accordingly, the fourth annual campaign—sponsored by the American Legion, Washington Bridge League and The Post—to support the blood bank by funds raised at party benefits takes on new significance this year.

"In view of the present emergency, it is almost certain that the blood bank will play an important part in connection with medical defense," says Miss Mattie M. Gibson, superintendent of Children's.

During 1941, the quantity of blood sent to other hospitals to fill emergency needs totaled 18,875 cubic centimeters—nearly 5 gallons. The institutions whose patients benefitted were Garfield, Columbia, Georgetown and Doctors Hospitals and Glenn Dale Sanitarium.

More than 15,000 cubic centimeters of plasma—the liquid portion of the blood—were delivered to Columbia, Casualty, Doctors, George Washington, Sibley, Homeopathic, Garfield and Montgomery County

Blonde Tells Of Spying At Meade

Reich-Born Girl, 18, Testifies of Trips To Army, Navy Posts; Ft. Myer Included

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 4.—An automobile trip to visit defense centers in the Southern coastal States was described today by

LUCY BOEHMLER

Lucy Boehmler, 18, German-born blonde, who testified she made the journey with a man charged by the Federal Government as a German espionage leader.

Miss Boehmler, who has pleaded guilty to an espionage indictment, appeared as a Government witness in New York's second spy case within six months—the trial of six men and a woman accused of espionage activity. Thirty-three men and women were sentenced to prison January 2 as spies.

Her trip with Kurt Frederick Ludwig, alleged spy leader, started from Baltimore early in 1941, Miss Boehmler asserted, and extended as far as Florida.

She said they went to Camp Meade, then to the Edgewood Arsenal, from there to the Aberdeen (Md.) Proving Grounds, then to Langley Field, Va., and on to Newport News, where a ship was being launched.

Photographs Taken

At each place, Miss Boehmler asserted, Ludwig made photographs and dictated to her the name of the camp, the number of divisions there, the equipment and its exact location. The places visited, she said, included Camp Pendleton, Fort Myer, Fort Belvoir, Fort Bragg, Camp Croft, Fort Sumter, Fort Jackson, Camp Wheeler, Fort Benning, various other forts and airports in Alabama and Georgia, and the Pensacola air station in Florida. She said they tried to get into the Pensacola station, but failed.

Ludwig later went to Tennessee to watch Army maneuvers, she said.

Miss Boehmler identified a number of photographs which she said were copies of those taken by Lud-

Offensive on Singapore Isle Has Started, Tokyo Reports; MacArthur's Men Mop Up Japs

New Flank Attack Is Sharply Turned Back; Enemy Food Supplies Captured

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's hard-pressed troops have turned back another Japanese attack on their left flank and are mopping up the "tattered remnants" of the enemy shock troops cut off during the heavy fighting early in the week.

The latest assault on MacArthur's lines across the middle of rocky Bataan Peninsula occurred Tuesday night and was described as "local" in character. Reporting this action to the War Department yesterday, the American commander said that additional Japs are being captured in the "mopping-up" operations.

Supplies Are Seized

The remnants being rounded up are "Tatoris" who slipped ashore during unsuccessful landing attempts Sunday and Monday, and groups from the Japanese Sixteenth Kimura Division which is attacking MacArthur's left.

"No reinforcements were able to reach them," the War Department declared. "The enemy had attempted to supply them intermittently with food and ammunition dropped by parachute. However, most of these supplies fell into our hands."

Gen. MacArthur informed the department that the Japanese troops captured expressed great surprise at the humane treatment afforded them. They said they had been told that the Americans executed all prisoners, he reported.

56 Ships Are Sunk

The Army communique declared that there was little activity on the right side of MacArthur's line during the preceding day and that enemy air activity was confined to "a few sporadic bombing attacks which did no damage."

Meanwhile, the toll of Japanese ships taken by American forces in war to date was raised to 56, with the sinking of two enemy transports at Balik Papan, Borneo, February 2.

Yesterday's Army communique repeated the news of this latest raid by American Army Flying Fortress bombers, given out the day before in an announcement in Batavia. Seven of the four-engined bombers sunk the two Jap ships, repeatedly hit and "probably sank" a third, and returned to their base undamaged, the War Department said.

Attack Sharply Repulsed

Text of the announcement, War Department Communique No. 91, follows:

15th Atlantic Coast Sinking

2 Die as Axis Sub Torpedoes U. S. Ship Off Maryland Coast

By Jerry Weinstein
Associated Press Staff Writer

Lewes, Dela., Feb. 4.—Beneath a bright moon an Axis submarine crept up on the 3598-ton freighter San Gil off the Maryland coast last midnight, sent a torpedo crashing into her port side, then sank her with another torpedo and shells after lifeboats had been lowered.

Capt. Walter W. Koch said two members of the crew were killed in an explosion that "blew the engine room to bits." Koch, the 39 other members of his crew and the ship's only passenger, Stewart Winslow Condon, 26, of Roslindale, Mass., were landed here today by Coast Guardsmen.

Four of the crew received minor injuries.

The freighter was the fifteenth American or Allied vessel officially reported sunk off the Atlantic Coast by marauding U-boats since the United States entered the war. A sixteenth vessel, the tanker Malay, was attacked but escaped sinking.

Distress signals flashed from an emergency antenna rigged up by Radio Operator Robert S. Thorp, 41, of East Orange, N. J., after his regular equipment was wrecked brought aid to the survivors seven hours after they took to life boats, Capt. Koch said.

The first torpedo was fired without warning, the captain related. It touched off the explosion in the engine room, where the missing men, Beaumont Barbe, 26, of Antwerp, Belgium, and Secondino Castro, 36, of Honduras, were stationed. Koch said they apparently were killed instantly.

After the explosion, the captain said he threw everything but the ship's papers overboard and took command of one of the life boats.

"We had just pulled clear when the submarine from a range of about 1000 feet began to shell the

Help Is on the Way, Wavell Says, Telling Besieged Troops To Hold at All Costs

New York (Thursday), Feb. 5 (INS).—The Tokyo radio said today that a mass attack had begun against Singapore. The report, in the Japanese language, picked up by the C. B. S. listening post, said:

"Our forces began a mass attack on Singapore at 6 p. m. yesterday."

Domei, the Japanese news agency, was quoted in a report from Singapore as saying the assault was launched from Johore Bahru, on the mainland opposite Singapore Island, and simultaneously "from other points."

(Advices from London sent early Thursday said there was "absolutely no fresh news" on the Singapore situation, indicating rigid censorship may have been imposed on the island fortress.)

'To Gain Time'

By the Associated Press

Singapore, Feb. 4.—The Supreme Allied Command, charging the defenders of Singapore to hold on at all cost, assured this desieged island today that "great reinforcements" of British and American forces were being sent to the southwestern Pacific, and strong new hope swept through the imperial line.

As the fifth day of the siege ran out with the Japanese inavder still lying quiescent across the Johore Strait, and disposing the troops under heavy fire from British batteries, Generalissimo Sir Archibald P. Wavell declared in a special order of the day:

"Our part is to gain time for great reinforcements we and our American allies are sending to the eastern theater.

Likened to Ypres Battle

"We are in a similar position to the original British Expeditionary Force which stopped the Germans and saved Europe in the first battle of Ypres.

"We must be worthy successors to them and save Asia by fighting these Japanese.

"We have now reached an area where we cannot be constantly outflanked, and where the enemy cannot exploit superior mobility.

"We must yield no strip of ground without fighting hard, and must leave nothing behind undestroyed that would be of the least service to the enemy.

"Our friends and allies, the Dutch, are carrying out this policy in every part of the Netherlands East Indies with sacrifice and resolution.

Many Raids on Island

"I look to you all to fight this battle without further thought of retreat, and to make the defense of Singapore as memorable and successful an exploit as the defense of Tobruk (in Libya), which British, Australian and Indian troops held so long and so gallantly."

Aside from the intermittent thunder of British artillery and a running series of Japanese air attacks on Singapore the day brought no action of consequence, British G.H.Q. thus summed up:

"There is no change to report in the situation.

"Our artillery has engaged enemy transport in Johore Bahru (just

Beaverbrook Named Chief Of Production

Churchill Answers Clamor for Changes With Appointment

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 4.—Lord Beaverbrook, who accompanied Prime Minister Churchill to Washington, became Britain's Minister of War Production tonight in a new cabinet post made to order for closest coordination with the work of Donald M. Nelson as United States war production chief.

Creation of the new post answered a persistent clamor of the press and public for inclusion in the cabinet of a single responsible official charged with accelerating the nation's often criticized production rate of war supplies.

Today's announcement of Beaverbrook's appointment came while Britons, homeward bound from work, read a blunt declaration of N. M. Shvernik, leader of a Russian trade union delegation visiting Britain, that British war factories were falling short of capacity output.

Beaverbrook, busy little millionaire London publisher who skyrocketed into prominence by putting Britain's aircraft industry on a full war footing, seemed from the first a likely choice for the appointment.

Already minister of supply, he had laid the ground work for his new job on missions to Washington and Moscow.

The absence of Sir Stafford Cripps from the resulting realignment within the cabinet, however, occasioned some surprise. There had been indications that the former Ambassador to Moscow was in line for an important assignment.

Rumors were current in political circles tonight that he had agreed at first to accept the ministry of supply, succeeding Lord Beaverbrook, but withdrew when he learned that Beaverbrook insisted that the new ministry of war production have widespread control over the supply post.

Saga of the Snows

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Thursday), Feb. 5.—The Russians declared today that 2800 more Germans had fallen on the snowy battlefields far west of here on the road to Smolensk, and that the army still was rolling ahead in its mighty winter offensive despite fierce resistance by fresh Nazi troops.

A Soviet communique announced the occupation of several more unidentified localities in this steady march, including two strongly fortified points. At one of these, 1800 Germans fell after being outflanked, and at the second 1000 were killed in a frontal assault, the communique said.

The Soviet Gen. Orloff in a broadcast relayed from the Smolensk area via Moscow and London declared that "our men are forging ahead westward, and already have wiped out thousands of Germans, hundreds of armored monsters, and dozens of planes.

"The enemy is putting up a fierce resistance. He is doing everything in his power to stem our advance by powerful fortifications, by a hurricane of fire, and by minefields. But the stronger his resistance, the stronger becomes our onslaught."

Forty-five German planes were shot down Tuesday by the Russians who said they lost five, and seven more Nazi craft were destroyed near Moscow yesterday, the communique said.

In the south center, along the line between Kursk and Kharkov, the Kuibyshev radio reported the Nazi defense systems had been pierced,

Lush Reading For Spies

Papers Can't Print 'Secrets;' Trade Organs Exploit Them

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Under the new censorship rules, curious persons have to go to great lengths and take enormous pains these days to obtain what has been classed as secret war production data.

For instance, if you don't happen to be a subscriber to the semiofficial military journals which print the information, you have to buy them on the newsstands, or maybe even go into a public library and get the January and February issues of anyone of a hundred different trade journals.

Don't expect to read in the newspapers what contracts for planes and ships and guns are being awarded and to what concerns. Such information is strictly banned.

Except that it's available, in smaller or greater degree in any number of technical periodicals which have been issued since Pearl Harbor.

For example, this month's edition of a well-known manufacturing journal, widely circulated and fat with advertising, is largely devoted to the South's participation in the war program. There are special articles, listing the principal plants and factories engaged in the production of ordnance, aircraft, ships, power and steel. In a special four-page section, printed in small type in order to include more data, there is a city by city listing of "important new industrial plants and expansions in the South during December." About half of them are Federal or private arms facilities.

Next month, the magazine promises, it will have special articles on light metals, chemical industries, petroleum and army construction in the South.

Maybe this information isn't helpful to anyone speaking German or Japanese, or hurtful to America. Most newspapers don't think it is, and would like to be printing it, convinced that such data are public knowledge anyway, or are not susceptible of being hidden from the enemy. After all, it's pretty hard to deny that there are a lot of airplanes being made at the Censored Aircraft Co., Censored, Md., especially when the facts have been known and freely printed for 18 months.

But the War Department and Office of the Censor apparently don't agree, and the rules stand.

Not that the rules are observed. This week's issue of a semiofficial

Losses at Wake and Guam

1292 'Prisoners or Missing' Makes U. S. Pacific Toll 5273

By James G. Simonds.
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Japanese armed forces are believed to have captured 1191 American naval and marine officers and men since the outbreak of the Pacific war, while another 101 officers and men are missing, naval and marine officers revealed yesterday in testimony before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

Disclosure of these American losses brought to 5273 the total of known casualties suffered by the American armed forces in the Pacific since the attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7. This includes dead, wounded and missing of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

All these casualties occurred in fighting in the Pacific islands, and in the seizure of the Marine garrison in North China, the committee was told. The islands referred to were believed to be Guam and Wake, which fell to Japanese attack in December.

No figures were revealed as to losses of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces in the Philippines. The toll of the Navy and Marine dead or wounded at Pearl Harbor was 3385, while the Army lost 596 dead or wounded in the first Japanese attack. Of these last, 230 are already back on duty.

The officers appeared before the committee to testify on a House-

Japs Shell Burmese City for Two Days

American and British Airmen Blast Troop Barges on Salween

By the Associated Press

Rangoon, Burma, Feb. 4.—American and British airmen blasted Japanese barges along the lower Salween River today as artillerymen pumped explosives across the water barrier in a steadfast defense of the approaches to Rangoon and the Burma Road.

Thousands of reinforcements from India, bolstered the British and native troops holding the west bank from Martaban, near the mouth, northward to Paan, 25 miles away.

An army communique reported that for two days Japanese artillery based in abandoned Moulmein had been shelling Martaban in an effort to make it untenable, but the enemy "has not succeeded in his object."

"Enemy activities at Paan," the communique said, "also are unceasing and shelling is in progress in this area. We retaliated with artillery fire and by bombing their positions."

An R. A. F. communique, telling of additional air bombings in the Martaban sector, also reported that Japanese planes twice attacked an airdrome north of Rangoon today, and another airport in central Burma. Slight damage was caused at the latter point, but there were no casualties at either place, the communique said.

Great credit in the Salween defense is given to the Indian troops who are holding an irregular front along the river, and whose marksmen have repeatedly smashed a series of Japanese thrusts.

British rear guards still were making their way across the river from the Moulmein area to rejoin their units. Today's communique said three more officers were in the latest group to escape.

Jap Forces Declared Nearing Burma Road

Berlin (Thursday), Feb. 5 (Radio Broadcast recorded by U.P. in London).—The Berlin radio said today that Japanese forces in Central Burma had reached a point within 75 miles of Lashio, southern terminus of the Burma Road, the main supply route to China.

To have reached such a point, the Japanese would have had to open a new drive into the south Shan state of Burma from Thailand. Skirmishes were reported on the Shan-Thai border last week but recent Allied communiques have had "nothing new to report" from that area.

(Lashio is 200 miles north of the Thai frontier, and the vast morasses of the upper Salween River lie between. To get around these marshes an invading force probably would have to detour nearly all the way to China.)

Trade Organs Exploit Secrets

journal circulated principally in the armed services, but available to anyone, reveals that at a certain boat-making company, in a certain city, submarines are being made.

Two of the principal aviation trade magazines carry full-page advertisements of almost every major aircraft and engine and parts maker in the country, usually picturing the plane, or propellor or whatever nifty gadget the company happens to be making. The fact that the P-47, long the Army's hush-hushest secret, is being made at the Censored Company at Censored, N. Y., is proclaimed in a colored add, with description. And the name of the company and place aren't censored, either.

(As a matter of fact, the picture of the P-37 appeared in the November issue of Army Ordnance, but newsmen and the War Production Board were forbidden to mention it for several weeks thereafter.)

One aircraft magazine's January issue carries a detailed story by Lieut. Col. Charles E. Branshaw, supervisor of the Army Western Procurement District, telling types of planes, in some detail, and specifying each plant in California where they are being made.

Several factory and steel trade magazines carry interesting news stories that such and such a shipyard, or this and that powder plant, is about to be expanded. Long technical articles on new aviation developments are carried in editions which hit the desks and newsstands of America six full weeks after the Japanese attack.

One periodical takes pride in its complete listing of all machine tool makers, locating each company, describing what type of tools it makes.

Another performs what must be a useful service in specifying newly planned expansions of Army arsenals, powder plants, munitions factories of all kinds, airfields and training centers, as well as private industries working on the war program. The magazine entitles the section "Sales Possibilities." It is presumably directed to industrialists eager to peddle their wares to the growing factories.

Ralph Lee, 58, Retired Printing Executive, Dies

Funeral services for Ralph Lee, 58, of White Hall, Va., former executive of the National Capital Press, will be held today at 11 a. m., at Pumphrey's funeral home, 8424 Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Lee died Tuesday at Emergency Hospital after a long illness.

Before moving to White Hall five years ago on his retirement from the printing and publishing business, Mr. Lee lived for many years in Silver Spring, Md., where he was active in civic affairs.

Born in Keene, N. Y., Mr. Lee spent a number of years as a reporter and editor on newspapers in New England and the Middlewest. He was a member of the National Press Club and the Washington Board of Trade.

Prior to the first World War, Mr. Lee served in the Army Engineering Corps. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Besse Patteson Lee, of White Hall, and a son, David, of Chicago.

British Retreat On Libya Coast, Hold Inland

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Feb. 4.—Derna and all but 150 miles of the Libyan coast has been lost by the British in the swift two-weeks offensive of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis forces, it was understood here today.

But curiously, while falling back rapidly in the coastal regions, Britain's armored columns, strongly supported in the air, were still engaged along the inland bypass near Msus, 120 miles southwest of Derna, in what today's communique described as "offensive activities."

"After beating off strong German detachments which had attempted to intercept their withdrawal, our Fourth Indian Division during the night of February 2-3 successfully completed their withdrawal from the last covering positions about Derna and rejoined our main forces," said the communique.

Nazis 95 Miles From Tobruk

At Derna, Rommel was in position to continue his rapid drive along the coast toward Tobruk, 95 miles east, a prize which escaped him his first counteroffensive last spring when an imperial force holed up there and hung on for seven months.

On the other hand, he could turn inland with the objective of cutting off the armored British forces on his flank.

But given sufficient force, it was apparent that the British, too, were in position to execute a deadly encirclement blow from Msus.

The R. A. F. was busy sweeping the desert tracks with bombs and machine guns in a continuous effort to knock out truck convoys and motorized units.

Naples Is Raided

Italy's mainland bases again came under fire. The R. A. F. announced raids on Naples in which hits were reported on docks, freight yards and the naval repair base, and on Palermo, Sicily, where a large merchant ship was reported torpedoed and forced aground.

(An authoritative commentator in London said Germany had shifted her ace submarine commanders into the Mediterranean in order to interfere more effectively with British naval operations and supply efforts.

(The Axis has greatly strengthened its naval and air protection for reinforcement and supply convoys, he said.)

New York, Feb. 4.—A painting of Capt. Colin P. Kelly, jr., flying hero who sank the Japanese battleship Haruna, was accepted today by his widow and will be hung in the Military Academy at West Point.

Painted in six weeks by Bernhard Godwin, the posthumous portrait shows Kelly dressed in a tropical flying uniform, holding a pair of goggles.

Godwin, a veteran of the first World War, donated his time and equipment as "one citizen's gesture of appreciation to an American hero."

Nazis Can't Retreat

Moscow, Feb. 4 (U.P.).—The army newspaper Red Star today published documents credited to German commanders supporting the assertion that the invasion forces were under orders to stand and fight to the death.

"Every man must understand that the present situation demands his participation in combat," an order to the Twelfth German tank division was quoted. "We must hold to the last man."

Another order credited to Gen. Rueff, commander of an infantry division, said:

"I categorically forbid the surrendering of any positions, whatever they may be. I will execute any commander on the spot who surrenders any village without my permission. Die but do not retreat."

"Hitler's secret order was read to the troops on January 8 to defend the occupied territory to the last man and not retire at any cost," Red Star quoted a prisoner identified as Sergt. Felix Erber of the 298th Division.

"The soldiers were forced to sign a pledge that they would die, not retreat. Understanding the seriousness of the situation, the soldiers call Hitler's order their death warrant."

Allies Hunting Down Enemy Plane Carrier

By the United Press

Batavia, Feb. 4.—Allied air and naval forces scoured the seas around Java today for a Japanese aircraft carrier reported to have slipped through Macassar Strait to join in the air assaults that killed or wounded 238 persons in and near the Soerabaja naval base Wednesday.

The presence of an enemy carrier off Java was apparent as soon as the air raids began, because 70 to 80 bombers in the raiding force were accompanied by fighters and the nearest Japanese air bases are 500 miles up the Borneo coastlines from Java, far beyond the effective range of fighter planes.

Many Civilians Slain

Eight fighters and two bombers were shot down but Dutch losses also were "very considerable," it was announced.

The raid lasted 2 hours and 20 minutes and at Soerabaja, it was concentrated on the center of the city rather than on military objectives. Casualties there were 31 killed, 83 seriously and 56 slightly wounded.

Many hotels, schools, a boys' orphanage and an automobile shop and bicycle shop were among the places hit.

The Netherlands Indies News Agency, pointing out that hotels seemed to be main Japanese objectives, quoted a military authority as saying that the Japanese apparently thought Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's United Nation's headquarters was located in one of them.

Guerrilla Air Tactics

Meantime Dutch troops battled grimly against invasion forces on Borneo, Celebes and Amboina Islands, the last named containing the Indies' second largest naval base. The Dutch high command said outcome of the battle at Amboina was still in doubt, and that fighting still raged at the east Borneo oil port of Balik Papan.

(The Tokyo radio claimed the Japanese had occupied Amboina.)

The Aneta news agency quoted an official as saying Dutch fliers planned to wage a "spirited guerrilla warfare" from 50 airports hidden in the Borneo jungles against any Japanese gaining a foothold on that island. Acknowledging that the Japanese might consolidate their hold on Balik Papan and launch a land drive from there against the south Borneo city of Bandjermasin, this official pointed out that the defenders of that area had additional allies—"dense underbrush, fever and swamps, and the Dyaks."

The Dyaks are warlike natives and, according to Aneta, "even though they don't know what kind of a war is going on they do know they are still under Dutch rule and they don't like strangers."

Pseudo Air Corps Officer Admits Guilt

Denver, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Brooklynite Robert Murphy, 27, who entertained Lieut. Commander Gene Tunney at luncheon while masquerading in an Army Air Corps captain's uniform, pleaded guilty today to a charge of impersonating an Army officer.

Gordon A. Nicholson, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, said Murphy had used the name Capt. William Robert Dunn and claimed he had downed 11 Nazi planes while a combat pilot with the Eagle Squadron in England before obtaining an American captain's commission.

Firemen Prove Real Heroes in Singapore Raids

By Harold Guard
United Press Staff Writer

Singapore, Feb. 4.—High-flying Japanese raiders strewed fire bombs and explosives through Singapore dwelling quarters today, jolting sturdy buildings two miles from where they hit.

Clouds of smoke and dust rose over the stricken district as ambulances and emergency squads swarmed in among the splintered houses and smashed automobiles to minister to the wounded and battle the flames.

I had a grandstand view of the Japanese air attack from a solid building which shook under the impact of the detonations.

Salvage crews, fire fighters and medical services took over the bombed areas immediately, carrying on as they have for days.

I spent Tuesday afternoon with the fire fighters in three separate locations. The squad was composed of volunteers from Perak, Malay state far to the north. They had moved down the peninsula ahead of the Japanese.

The squad was justly proud of one of its members, a 64-year-old Perak lawyer, A. N. Kenyon, a native of Liverpool. I talked briefly with Kenyon while he was holding a hose on the heart of an inferno from a close-up post where the heat was scarcely bearable.

"Isn't war wasteful?" he remarked philosophically, an amazing observation by a harassed, scorched whiskered, water-drenched lawyer.

At another place the fire fighters were led by a smoke-blackened youth from Enfield on the outskirts of London. Most of his men were volunteer Chinese, taking desperate risks in struggling to keep the flames from reaching a nearby house.

"I always wanted to become a fireman," the begrimed youth said. "For plain bloody common sense, give me a fireman every time."

In the same area I talked with a royal engineer directing a bomb disposal squad in digging for a bomb which had penetrated the ground to some depth. All were volunteers.

But I didn't have a chance to talk long with these lads as they swung their heavy picks. The decision to move on came when a sweating pick-wielder paused, scratched his head and said matter-of-factly:

"Here she is, boys."

The air alarm shrilled, and I shared a burrow in a coal heap with one of the disposal squad from Sunbury on Thames who wondered aloud, "What mother would say if she could see Sonny trying to look like a lump of coal."

Elsewhere I heard a good story about how a consignment of crates lay exposed when a raider squadron appeared. About 50 Royal Air Force officers and men spread-eagled themselves atop the crates, forming an effective camouflage while the bombers zoomed low overhead.

On the way back to town I passed through a bomb-scarred area. One large crater was directly underneath a pre-war rubbish salvage campaign poster bearing the legend: "Dump it here."

House Passes 500 Million Loan to China; Connally Foresees New Supply Route

Russia Seen Aid Channel If Burma Falls

The House yesterday in seven minutes approved a 500-million-dollar loan to bulwark China's economic and military resistance to Japan.

The bill sped to the Senate, where Chairman Connally ordered Senate Foreign Relations hearings and predicted other supply routes into China will be found if the Burma Road fails.

Authority for Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to extend the half billion dollars in loans, credit or other financial aid, came amid tributes to China and leadership appeals to Americans "not to minimize the war."

Warning against "an attitude of complacency," Majority Leader McCormack told the House:

"I think the state of mind of the American people must be one of grim determination. . . . If there is one thing we have learned from Pearl Harbor, it is that we should be prepared for anything."

In the Senate Connally called high officials of the State Department and the Secretaries of War, Navy, Treasury and Commerce Departments to testify to the need of Chinese assistance today.

Connally said aid to China might be sent through Russia or another route taken through India." In addition to supplies of arms and munitions, he said the new loan "will bolster Chinese currency and give her some feeling of security."

Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, led off the brief House discussion of the loan by describing it as "very proper and wise."

"If China should be driven out of the war, if she should collapse, if she should make peace, if she should be beaten, I do not believe we could win this war," said Fish. "If Russia should collapse or be forced to make peace, I do not believe we could win the war. I think we would then have a stalemate. But as long as Russia and China remain in this war and continue to fight, we are bound to win."

Two Axis Ships Sunk By Allies in Channel

London, Feb. 4 (AP).—Allied warships intercepted two Axis supply ships off the Channel Islands today and left both sinking, the admiralty announced.

Light naval forces, including units of the Polish navy, were said to have intercepted the supply ships and blasted them with shellfire at close range.

approved bill to permit the continuance of allotments to dependents of Americans captured by the enemy while serving in any capacity with the armed forces. The naval officer, an official of the Navy's Bureau of Navigation, gave the following figures on losses of naval personnel:

Fifty-six naval officers "supposed to be prisoners of war," 5 officers missing and whose status is unknown, 30 enlisted men missing, 75 enlisted men probably prisoners and 300 enlisted men "suspected" to be prisoners.

A Marine officer listed Marine Corps losses as 44 officers and 716 enlisted men "in the hands of the enemy," and, one officer and 65 enlisted men missing. He explained that some of them had been captured in North China.

Admiral Leo Otis Colbert, head of the coast and geodetic survey, said that Commander George D. Cowie, senior officer of his agency in the Philippines, was killed in the first Japanese bombing of Manila. Other officers in that area have not been heard from since December 30, he added.

Six customs officials and six officials in charge of "freezing" Axis funds abroad have fallen into enemy hands, he explained.

Women May Be Registered For War Work

By the Associated Press

A plan for compulsory registration of women for wartime work, if that step becomes necessary because of a long-time drain upon the Nation's labor supply, was discussed yesterday by a spokesman for the War Production Board.

In voicing the possibility that the United States may have to follow Britain's lead in that direction, Miss Thelma McKelvey of the board's labor division said, however, that such action was "at least a year away."

She told a special House committee studying defense migration and the problems of mustering all available manpower for the war effort that the need for compulsory registration of the feminine forces had not yet been felt, "nor a need foreseen in the immediate future."

"But we are engaged in an all-out war in which all civilians, men and women alike, have important roles. We cannot predict the limits of our future needs and the only wise course is to prepare for every eventuality," she added.

A trim executive with a "V-for-victory" pin fastened above her heart, Miss McKelvey said the labor division was studying Britain's experience in registering women, "hoping to profit by their successes and avoid their mistakes."

Before she discussed the possibility of compulsory registration, Miss McKelvey said voluntary registration was being planned of women "willing to accept work or training for work, not only in the actual manufacture of goods for use by the armed forces, but in raising and processing foodstuffs and in maintenance of essential civilian services necessary to the war effort."

She predicted that prejudice on the part of some employes against use of feminine labor would be overcome as the shortage of manpower developed.

Wage Division Gives Pants-Changing Rule

If a workman wants to change his clothes at the start and end of the day, the time he takes need not be counted as time worked, the wage-hour division ruled yesterday.

But if the company requires its employes to change their clothes on the premises, then the time it takes must be considered time worked.

Check List

Want to Be Soldier Girl? Get in Trim

By Amy Porter
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Feb. 4.—So you want to be a soldier girl?

Then you'd better start whipping yourself into condition now.

How are you for size and shape? Is your speech good? Are your feet serviceable? How's your disposition? Do you have a Southern drawl?

Better check all these points and more, too, for your day in the Army may not be far off. The House Military Committee has given unanimous approval to the Rogers bill, providing for a petticoat branch of the Army, and the House will vote on the measure soon.

Judging by requirements for women now serving in the Army's most highly organized women's volunteer corps—the women's auxiliary aircraft warning service in New York—You have to be quite a girl to be a lady soldier.

Capt. Jaqueline Gutwillig, commanding officer of the auxiliary, required her 880 volunteers to pass muster on the following points:

Age: 18 to 40.

Height: Five feet three, or more. (A marine has to be 5 feet 4.)

Weight: In proportion to height, no oversized hips allowed.

Speech: Clear, without heavy accent (even a heavy Southern accent is taboo).

Feet: Strong.

Other physical characteristics: Good eyesight, good hearing, good general health.

Personality: Pleasant. (Quarrelsome ladies are asked to leave.)

Intelligence: Good. (An IQ test to determine this point is in preparation.)

"In other words," said Capt. Gutwillig, "our volunteers must be active, adaptable, quick and intelligent."

As a volunteer officer, Capt. Gutwillig has visited Norfolk, Philadelphia and Harrisburg, to help women in those areas set up similar aircraft warning auxiliaries.

Her manual on admission, training and organization has been sent to Washington as a possible model for other soldier girl units.

If the Rogers bill passes, granting regular Army status and pay starting at $21 a month plus maintenance, Capt. Gutwillig expects hordes of volunteers.

Australian Tells Thrilling Tale of Escape From Jap Trap to Join Main Forces

By Sergt. Ian Fitchett
Official Correspondent with the Australian Imperial Forces

Singapore, Feb. 4 (Australian Associated Press to (AP).—Australians who were cut off from their units during the bitter Muar-Parkit-Sulong fighting in Malaya nearly a fortnight ago have been returning to the main body of the Australian imperial force during the last few days.

Some have walked through the jungle and others have come down the coast in small boats. They have got across the straits to Singapore Island from Johore, some even swimming in broad daylight. The hardships they have undergone are almost unbelievable but all seem anxious to rejoin their units immediately; indeed, many already have done so. Torn feet will keep many others out of action for the time being.

Two men who came in recently were cut off as long ago as January 19. "We were attacked on the morning of the 19th," one of them told me today. "Our captain split us into sections and we fought until late afternoon, sheltering in drains from the heavy Jap fire. Two of us were surrounded but we got clear and met a wounded chap who directed us in the direction the others had gone. All of us caught up with them, sleeping nights in the jungle.

Bridge Is Captured

"But this time there were about 95 of us and the officers reorganized us into a fighting force. We went on and came out on a road about two miles from the battle area, but a British officer told us that the Japs had captured the bridge at Sulong, cutting us off from the main party. Then we set out for Hatu Pahat, not knowing then that it was in Jap hands. We were about to cross the river when another chap rushed up and said there was a trap at the other side. We withdrew, and after wandering about seeking an avenue of escape our captain, who had done a magnificent job keeping us together, decided that we would be better off if we split into groups of five or six men.

"It was then about six days after the battle had started. My mate and I then decided to venture for ourselves. He went upstream making for Ayer Hitam, which a Malay said was about 16 miles away. We found an 8-foot skiff and rigged a sail for it and sailed down the river at night, passing Jap-occupied Batu Pahat at about 12:30 a. m.

"We got out to sea and on the second night pulled into a fisherman's pile hut on the water's edge. At dawn we were startled to see a heavily armored Jap sloop or destroyer lying south of us with about six or eight boats of about 150 tons. They seemed to be putting troops and supplies ashore. Soon after they moved south so we set out again and, during the day, came on another skiff with four Aussies in it.

"These chaps said they had drifted past transport activity during the night. On the fourth day we pulled into two small villages and Malays, who took us for Japs, threatened us with knives. Soon after sounds of fire made us pull out to sea again and we were fired on soon after. We drifted on feeling pretty done in and one night got ashore at a lonely hut.

"When we finally made contact with the main body the troops gave us food and a bath, and after a good rest we reported in to headquarters. All the Chinese we met in our long wanderings were wonderful in their actions to us. All our chaps owe them a great deal."

Rachel Carlay Well Received In American Operatic Debut

By Ray C. B. Brown

Fortune Gallo presents the San Carlo Opera Company in a performance of Puccini's "Tosca" on Wednesday night in the National Theater. The cast:

Floria Tosca ..... Rachel Carlay
Mario Cavaradossi ..... Sydney Rayner
Baron Scarpia ..... Mario Valle
Cesare Angelotti ..... Stefan Kozakevich
Spoletta ..... Francesco Curci
The Sacristan ..... Richard Wentworth
Conductor: Carlo Peroni

Singing the title role in Puccini's "Tosca" for the first time, Rachel Carlay made her American operatic debut last evening in the National Theater with the San Carlo Opera Company, and registered a distinct success both as cantatrice and actress. Formerly a member of the Opera Comique in Paris, she has been residing in the United States for several years and radio audiences are familiar with her voice. The resumption of her career as a prima donna was the occasion of triumph for herself and of pleasure for her auditors, while floral tributes accompanied an ovation at the end of the second act.

BROWN

The role of the Roman songstress in the musical version of Victorien Sardou's lurid melodrama taxes both histrionic and vocal abilities, and Miss Carlay met both tests in an admirable manner. Her soprano voice has clarity and surety throughout its range, she phrases with skill and intelligence, and she has a personable charm that gave verisimilitude to her impersonation of a charmer. Her acting is excellently contrived for the illusion of reality, always unaffected and unforced, and her stage presence is one of ease and natural grace.

Sydney Rayner as Mario Cavaradossi was in good voice and gave a forceful reading of a part which demands both lyric and dramatic elements in a wide emotional range. Mario Valle, an experienced Baron Scarpia, was a thoroughly convincing interpreter of the suave and villainous chief of police. His costume, incidentally, was from the theatrical wardrobe of Antonio Scotti, so that one can literally say that he wore the mantle of a famous Scarpia.

At the matinee performance of the San Carloans yesterday, Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" was presented in English for the delectation of an audience in which one was pleased to see a goodly number of children. The title roles were sung by Charlotte Bruno and Mary Bell, with Stefan Kozakevich as the father, Louis Warren as the mother and Dorothy Fickson as the witch.

News Writers Tell of Escape From Manila

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 4.—First news of how some American correspondents escaped from Manila ahead of the Japanese and of how they are living in the field with Gen. MacArthur's forces appears in this week's issue of Time Magazine.

Time's correspondent, Melville Jacoby, reported that he and Mrs. Jacoby and Clark Lee of the Associated Press fled in a small island freighter New Year's Eve as the Manila docks went up in flames. Two other Associated Press men, R. P. Cronin, chief of the Manila bureau, and Russell Brines, were captured.

Other correspondents, including Frank Hewlett, of the United Press, and Nat Floyd, New York Times, escaped by automobile, speeding over bridges which were dynamited minutes later.

wig on the motorcar trip. She said Ludwig instructed her to file all the information he had obtained on the trip in a card index system, and that she did the filing and made out an expense account for the journey which she estimated at $1500.

Ludwig was deeply interested in ascertaining the names of ships in New York Harbor, their cargoes and probable destinations, Miss Boehmler said.

"Ludwig had a book containing information about boats," she testified. "In the back of the book was a list of boats, a number of which had been sunk in the ocean."

Besides Ludwig, those on trial are Rene C. Froehlich, 30, a Selective Service soldier arrested last September; Hans Helmuet Pagel, 20; Frederick E. Schlosser, 19; Karl Victor Mueller, 38; Paul T. Borchardt, 55, and Mrs. Helen Pauline Mayer, 26, wife of Walter Mayer, who is now in Germany.

At Fort Benning, Miss Boehmler said, Ludwig showed a letter he had received from Froehlich to the military police and they were permitted to enter. She said Ludwig took some photographs and they left.

The defendants, if convicted, face possible maximum prison sentences of 20 years but not death sentences, because the alleged activities occurred before the United States entered the war.

MacArthur's Troops Again Stop Japanese

Bataan. The attack was sharply repulsed.

"Our troops continued to mop up tattered remnants of the Japanese who had previously landed on the west coast or who had infiltrated behind our lines. These enemy troops were from the Tatori group and the Kimura Division and were found in isolated pockets. No reinforcements were able to reach them. The enemy had attempted to supply them intermittently with food and ammunition dropped by parachutes. However, most of these supplies fell into our hands.

"Japanese prisoners of war expressed great surprise at the humane treatment they are receiving at our hands. They said they had been told that we would execute all prisoners.

"On our right there was little activity during the past 24 hours.

"Enemy air activity over our lines was limited to a few sporadic bombing attacks which did no damage.

"2. Netherlands Indies: A delayed report advises that seven heavy American Army bombers of the Flying Fortress type attacked Japanese shipping at Balik Papan, Borneo, on February 2. Two enemy transports were sunk, and a third, which was hit repeatedly, was probably sunk. All of our planes returned to their base undamaged. It is believed that this attack is the one mentioned in Gen. Wavell's communique of yesterday.

"3. There is nothing to report from other areas."

with the Red troops "in close pursuit."

Deep in the Donets Basin farther south, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's army was driving on Dnieperopetrovsk, blasting the Nazis out of each village and farmhouse.

A dispatch from the Smolensk front declared the Nazi commander of the 216th Division—a Gen. von Hiltz—had abandoned his troops and fled by plane when a Russian assault caught his men by surprise.

"When this general was in France," said the government newspaper, Izvestia, "he requested the 'Fuehrer' three times to send him to the Soviet-German front."

South of the Smolensk front, near Orel, the hard-pressed Nazi high command rushed in two divisions, including one of the "SS" or elite guard, from France by plane and sent them to the front by car.

vessel," he added. "We laid there while the sub fired 15 shells. Four missed but the other 11 made a wreck of her. It was just 12:50, almost an hour after the torpedo struck, that she maneuvered into position on the other side of our ship and launched another torpedo.

"We just sat there and watched it all, hoping against hope that they wouldn't shell us. I owe my thanks to whoever was in command of that submarine that they waited to shell our boat until everyone had made a lifeboat. They gave us a break; that's all a man can ask.

"We could see men in the conning tower of the submarine and at the guns. We could hear them talking but couldn't understand what they were saying. After the ship went down the sub stayed around 15 minutes then disappeared."

Passenger Condon, an accountant for the United Fruit Co., owners of the vessel, was in the engine room when the attack came. "We didn't have time to get scared," he said. "We were thrown to the floor and stunned. I tried to go to my stateroom, but found the passageway flooded. Then I went to the deck."

The injured were identified as Hildebrand Hall, 19, of Honduras, shock; Irvin Dimon, 30, Honduras, injured hand; Thomas R. Sharp, 57, Elmhurst, N. Y., steward, injured leg, and Antonio Colon, 28, Honduras, injured hand.

Hall was saved by Franklin W. Adams, 24-year-old third mate from Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Adams said he saw the fireman clinging to a grating over the engine room.

"He had his fingers twisted in the grating and his nose pressed against the narrow holes to keep from drowning," Adams said. "The water was slopping against the grating when I saw him," Adams related.

"All I could see were those fingers and his nose. Somehow I maneuvered him around with signs and shouts to an opening several feet away and pulled him out."

across the strait).

"Enemy aircraft have made a number of raids on the island, causing some damage but few military casualties."

During the second enemy raid this morning some refugee huts were set aflame, but this correspondent saw no casualties.

Official announcements put casualties for yesterday at 22 killed and 90 wounded. From Saturday up until today, it was added, anti-aircraft fire shot down two enemy planes for certain and most likely three more.

["With oil tanks blazing and the waterfront torn asunder," a Tokyo broadcast said, according to the United Press, "the northern part of Singapore Island presents a black and lifeless appearance, broken only by movements of trucks creeping along the coastal hills and by the rare appearance of transport planes. British activity is nil in northern Singapore."]

Aliens Banned In 31 Areas

"Prohibited" areas are those from which enemy aliens are completely barred. "Restricted" areas are those in which such aliens are subject to curfew and other regulations.

The curfew and other restrictions imposed in the northern California area become effective February 24. They apply to all Japanese, German and Italian aliens in the area—which extends from the Oregon border to a point about 50 miles north of Los Angeles and 30 to 150 miles inland from the coast.

The restrictions provide that:

1—Between the hours of 9 p. m. and 6 a. m. all enemy aliens shall be within the place of residence indicated on their identification certificates.

2—At all other times they must be found only at the place of residence or employment indicated on their identification certificates, or going between those two places, or within an area of not more than 5 miles from the place of residence.

Exceptions will be granted "only in cases where a compeling reason exists and after completion of a suitable investigation."

War Emphasizes Blood Bank Needs

Hospitals.

Where possible, the blood and plasma were repaid in kind or in cash. If the patient, however, could neither pay for the service nor supply a donor to make a compensatory "deposit" in the blood bank, Children's Hospital let it go at that.

"The hospital is daily thankful for the wisdom and vision of the donors of the blood and serum bank in providing for its continued operation by experts in the field," says Miss Gibson. "Because funds are supplied for the scientific operation of the project, it has grown steadily in usefulness to the community, until now we are prepared to meet emergencies within our walls and beyond them.

"We hope that with the continuation of the generous support of the public we may grow to ever-increasing service."

The words, he said, referred to profit-taking in World War I and he "didn't want this $1.80 in the last war to get mixed up in this war because this war was bad enough."

Although several committeemen praised Barnes for "candor" and "patriotism," Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman of the Joint Committee on Nondefense Expenditures, called for a Congressional investigation and charged that the witness failed to give sufficiently "correct and detailed information."

Taking Barnes' statement that the company's annual payment from the Government runs from 150 to 200 millions a year and the company is permitted 10 per cent profit, Byrd calculated its profit at 20 million dollars. When Barnes said his company's investment is 40 million dollars, Byrd beamed:

"Now I think we are getting down to what they are really making. Therefore, if you are making 20 million dollars you are making 50 per cent on your capital. This is an astonishing situation. I think we ought to have a Congressional investigation."

"My God," sighed the witness, "we've got one on now."

The committee wanted to know who was to blame for the contracts that gave such profits.

"I read in the (Congressional) Record today where the Senate had a field day exonerating itself," Barnes said. "But the blame will be on you if you men in Congress don't do something about getting it (profits) back."

Barnes told the committee that he thought Congressional limitation of profits to a certain percentage of contract would be "perfectly satisfactory" and that he didn't "care if you put it down to 3 or 2 per cent, just so we break even." Later he said he would be "satisfied" with one-half of 1 per cent.

The witness also disclosed that his company, comprised of 16 operating subsidiaries, now holds over a billion dollars in Government contracts and will pay from six to eight million dollars in Federal taxes this year. He said the company made 82 per cent on one contract, but that this was only a small one, while profits on others ran from 5 to 20 and 22 per cent.

Sugar Stamp Plan Can Be Expanded To Other Foods

By the Associated Press

A stamp system of rationing to be established for sugar can be expanded later to handle any other food rationing necessitated by war shortages, it was indicated yesterday.

At the same time, officials of the Office of Price Administration, which has been given full authority to ration all consumer goods, reported that the sugar restrictions probably would not go into operation for another month or more pending the printing of "sugar stamps" which each consumer must have before making a purchase.

Under the plan, booklets will be issued containing enough sugar stamps to last three months or more. Each family will be required to register, either with local rationing boards or some other agency not yet designated, before obtaining the booklets, which will be furnished to each member of a registered family regardless of age.

Each stamp will permit purchase of 12 ounces of sugar—the weekly quota for each individual.

Officials pointed out that the use of the stamp booklets would provide a flexible mechanism for rationing other foods, since different stamps could be issued for different products and possibly carried in the single booklet.

The Federal surplus commodities corporation has been using food stamps for some time, it was pointed out, and merchants understand the system thoroughly, as do many elements of the consumer public.

'Buy a Bomber' Campaign Brings in $50,000 on First Day Here

Boy Invests $375 Earned At Odd Jobs

The first day of the campaign to sell enough defense savings bonds to buy a bombing plane brought in nearly $50,000 in sales—a whopping start on the $200,000 needed to purchase the plane.

Response to the launching of the campaign was immediate, widespread and enthusiastic.

Purchasers varied from a schoolboy, with money made shoveling snow, to an executive assistant to the President, who bought a $10,000 bond and accompanied his check with a suggestion each of the State groups here buy a bomber.

Bringing his parents with him, 8-year-old, tow-headed Harvey "Mickey" Donn, a boy with an all-American smile, strode up to the counter of The Post and plopped down a check for $375.

"Give me a $500 bond," he told the man at the counter. "I want to buy a bond for the United States."

He got one, too. The money was earned by Mickey, himself, his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Donn, 4800 Eighth Street Northwest, said. He made it in snow-shoveling and other odd jobs.

Eugene Casey, executive assistant to the President, saw the story in The Post, sat down and wrote out a check for $7400, the price of a $10,000 Series F bond. He had already bought his limit in Series E bonds.

Helping Protect Investment

Casey, who lives in Gaithersburg, Md., liked the idea so much, that he suggested former residents of each of the States here raise enough money to purchase a bomber for their States. The Territories and possessions might well do the same, he said.

"We ought to sell enough bonds for an armada, not just one bomber," he declared.

Thanked by a representative of The Post for his check, Casey replied: "Don't thank me. All I'm doing is to help protect my original investment in bonds."

A tall, distinguished-looking man walked into The Post, pulled out $500 worth of defense stamps for a bond of that denomination.

A Chinese piled $18.75 in quarters on the counter for a $25 bond.

The money will go toward the purchase of a $200,000 Martin B-26, fastest bomber of its class in the world. The bomber will be christened "The City of Washington."

Most popular bonds are the Series E bonds, whose denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1000 sell respectively for $18.75, $37.50, $75, $375 and $750 and mature in ten years.

If you can't buy bonds to help purchase the plane, buy stamps. Total purchase of stamps made at The Post's counter or at the WJSV-Junior Board of Commerce booth will go to help pay for the bomber. Stamps bought at the banks and building and loan associations will go to the purchase of the bomber in the proportion the amount of bonds bought at these places bears to the total amount of bonds purchased at them.

1 WITH HIS LIFE SAVINGS, Harvey Donn, 8, buys a $500 share in a bomber at the cashier's window of The Post. The youngster's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Donn were present

2. TO CHECK THE JAPS, Eugene Casey, executive assistant to the President, hands a $7400 check to Post Reporter Bill Brinkley. The check goes to buy a $10,000 Series F Defense Savings Bond. Casey has already purchased his limit in the Series E bonds

3. JUNIOR BOARD OF COMMERCE members lined up yesterday to buy defense bonds and stamps at the "Buy a Bomber" booth at Thirteenth and E Streets Northwest

Feeling War's Pinch? Haven't Seen Much Yet, Odlum Warns

Americans must condition themselves to a tighter and still tighter civilian economy if this war is to be won speedily and certainly, Floyd B. Odlum, economic adviser to WPB Chairman Donald Nelson, said yesterday.

"We are on our way but still not going at full strength," he told the Washington Advertising Club at its weekly luncheon in the Raleigh Hotel.

Complacency is not yet dissipated, he said. People who think they are feeling the war's pinch should remember, Odlum asserted, that less than half of the national income will be spent for prosecution of the conflict. In 1941 the war effort claimed only 16 per cent of this country's income, he added.

He pointed out that, despite the war, the industrial output for civilian consumption at home this year will be almost as great as our total production in 1932, when the depression reached its lowest depth.

Odlum commended the policy of American industries and businesses, notably the air lines, to continue advertising, despite the fact that their facilities are now at the disposal of the Government. The same practice prevails in Great Britain, he declared, adding that it is a wise means of perpetuating good will against the time when normal conditions will return.

Reid Wallace, president of the Washington Advertising Club, presided over the luncheon meeting.

Three Draft Boards To Move Shortly

The Commissioners yesterday assigned the old Weightman School at Twenty-third and M Streets Northwest to the District Selective Service for executive offices and headquarters of Boards 1, 9 and 16-A.

A Health Department clinic which now occupies two rooms in the school building will remain, it was announced.

Renewal of Bus Route Rejected

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday denied requests of businessmen to restore bus service along Connecticut Avenue below Dupont Circle.

Hankin said that those who applied for renewal of the service failed to show loss of revenue since the line was rerouted last year.

OCD Admits Hiring Friend Of First Lady

The Office of Civilian Defense yesterday verified the rumor that Mayris Chaney, dancer friend of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, is now employed regularly at OCD.

She is in charge of children's activities in the division of physical fitness, it was said, and draws a salary of $4600 annually. Miss Chaney has visited frequently at the White House.

Melvyn Douglas, screen star named to head the new Arts Council in the information division, will draw a salary based on $8000 annually, it was announced, with $22.22 due him each day he does OCD work.

Other salaries announced were $8000 annually each for Jonathan Daniels, director of program planning, and Hugh Johnson, operations director. Mary Dublin, who will be survey director in the same division of community and volunteer participation, will draw $5600.

Added opposition to the appointment of Douglas to the OCD position came yesterday from Representative Hinshaw (Republican), of California, who said, "Glamour is not needed to inspire our people to the defense of our country."

"It seems to me a farce, yes, even a tragedy," Hinshaw said, "to make the Office of Civilian Defense a pink tea party where well-known faces of social life and on the screen can obtain added publicity."

Wardens Attend Bomb Demonstration

A group of zone and sector wardens from Washington went to Edgewood Arsenal, Md., last night to watch a demonstration by the Army of ways to deal with incendiary bombs. They were headed by James A. DeForce, of the Chevy Chase civilian defense area.

Victory Sidelights

Col. Bolles Praises Residents of Chevy Chase Defense Area for 'Intelligent Cooperation'

Col. Lemuel Bolles, director of civilian defense and Chief Air-Raid Warden Clement Murphy publicly praised 1500 residents of the Chevy Chase defense area for the progress they have made in preparing adequate defense measures.

At a mass defense meeting last night at Woodrow Wilson High School, Bolles said:

"The Chevy Chase area is about the finest example of what can be done when there is intelligent, wholehearted cooperation."

He cautioned the group against resting on its laurels, however, saying that while a good start had been made the citizens must continue to work and sacrifice until their objective is fully attained.

Chief Murphy advised his hearers to continue to subordinate themselves to their deputy warden, Charles Sellers, and guaranteed them that if they followed his instructions to the letter "they would have the most efficient defense unit in the District."

In addition to Murphy and Bolles, Miss Margaret Pepper, head of the Schools Unit of the area, and Godfrey Hunter, captain of the auxiliary police, reported to the defense committee on the progress that their units had made. They said that thus far the results had been satisfactory, but that ultimate success depended on all-out cooperation from the entire area.

Following the speeches, Commander John Wetherell, U. S. N., demonstrated methods of extinguishing various types of incendiary bombs.

Defer Apprentices Draft Boards Told

Reminding them that today's war is a war of machines, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, has again advised local draft boards to give every consideration for deferment to apprentices who have served a year or more in war-essential trades, National Selective Service headquarters announced yesterday.

"Today's war," said Gen. Hershey, is a war of intricate machines such as bombers, fighting planes, tanks, special guns, delicate detecting instruments and warships that are complicated, floating mechanisms. All those associated with the Selective Service System are well aware that the highest type of craftsmanship is required to manufacture the many types of machines demanded by world-wide mechanized warfare.

"It is contrary to the policy and purpose of the Selective Service System to deplete the man power of the country engaged in the production of the implements of war."

Rev. Walter P. Plumley Called to Colors

The Rev. Walter P. Plumley, priest-in-charge of St. John's Episcopal Chapel, Mount Rainier, Md., has been called to the colors. He has been ordered to report for duty at Fort McClellan, Ala., as first lieutenant in the Chaplains' Corps. He has been in the Reserve Corps since 1940.

Columbia Heights Group To Meet in Pierce Hall

The air raid wardens' school in bombs and gases being conducted by the Columbia Heights Civilian Defense area will meet tonight at Pierce Hall, Sixteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest, instead of in Central High School, previous meeting place, Hallett Hill, deputy air raid warden, announced last night. The meeting is at 7:30.

A. R. W. HEADQUARTERS—Old No. 10 firehouse, 1341 Maryland Avenue Northeast, a building which has been used for the past ten years as a storehouse by the Public Library, will be formally opened tonight as headquarters of the Air Raid Warden Service. Chief Air Raid Warden Murphy and Mrs. Leah S. Pollock make ready their new quarters.

Ministers to Get Arm Bands for Raids

Local clergymen of all faiths soon will be provided with identifying arms bands to facilitate their ministering to the suffering during air raids.

Dr. Worth M. Tippy, acting executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, emerging yesterday from a conference with Col. Lemuel Bolles, explained that the federation plans to arrange distribution of the arm bands provided by the O. C. D. The federation is the central body of local and nearby Protestant churches.

Catholic and Jewish groups also are arranging distribution of the bands to their spiritual leaders.

12 Will Receive Certificates Tonight

Twelve persons in the Crestwood defense area will receive certificates tonight at the completion of a Red Cross first-aid course they have been taking for the last four weeks.

The classes, conducted by Dr. Robert L. Simpson, have been held in the home of Miss Anne Werner, 1635 Webster Street Northwest, and the certificates will be presented there. The class was organized by James Ryan, assistant sector warden.

Headquarters of Raid Wardens Opens Tonight

New headquarters of the air-raid warden service of the District Civilian Defense Council will be formally opened tonight at 8 p. m. at 1341 Maryland Avenue Northeast. They are in a renovated fire engine house and will house Chief Air Raid Warden Clement Murphy and his staff, in addition to providing an auditorium for class use.

Dupont Circle Defense Enrollment Thursday

An "enroll for victory" mass meeting of citizens in the Dupont Circle Civilian Defense Area will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, Eighteenth and N Streets Northwest.

William Clark Taylor, chairman for the area, will preside. There will be five-minute reports from wardens and chairmen of the emergency housing, emergency feeding and education and welfare committees.

Volunteers will be enrolled both before and after the meetings.

Dr. Borowski to Lecture Tonight at Catholic U.

"Subsidiary Workers in Defense" will be the subject of a lecture given by Dr. Anthony Borowski, of the Works Projects Administration, tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Catholic University. He will speak in McMahon Hall to the School of Nursing Education.

Shorter School Year To Be Discussed

Feasibility of shortening the school year by adding Saturday classes will be discussed tonight at 8 o'clock at a defense meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of Takoma Park Elementary School. Mrs. William B. North will preside. A speech on air-raid precautions will be made by Joseph Simpson, chief air-raid warden for the Takoma area.

Two simple steps to amazing new pep...vitality ...better looks!

—a marvelous change can be brought about by overcoming miserable

Digestive Complaints, Underweight, Sluggishness, and Loss of Appetite— All by Two Important Steps—

Restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize your body with rich, red blood. Here's how!

If you are one of those unfortunates who have worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, have been vexed by overtaxing worries, or have suffered with colds, the flu, or other illness . . . yet have no organic trouble or focal infection . . . and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number . . . if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is what should help you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build up blood strength when deficient . . . to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Build sturdy health

For when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food . . . stomach digestive miseries should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color . . . to its so-called fighting strength . . . this makes for better body tone . . . muscular and mental freshness!

Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Surprising results may be had by making the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits S.S.S. Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it usually gets results—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Accused of Preferring Jail to Army, Youth Is One of 57 Indicted Here

A 22-year-old youth who allegedly told investigating G-men he "would rather go to jail than go into the Army," was indicted by the District grand jury yesterday for failure to register under the Selective Service Act. The indictment was one of 57 handed up by the grand jurors.

The youth, Albert Lee Nichols, was said to have asserted he did not register because he had previously served a prison term for housebreaking and understood the Army was not interested in felons. According to investigators, however, he was given a chance to escape prosecution by registering now and refused to do so.

Daniel C. Kennedy, 34-year-old Pittsburgh man, was indicted by the grand jury for allegedly attempting to rape a 22-year-old War Department worker in her Scott Circle apartment after they had been out on a "blind date."

The girl was reported to have told police she and a friend had gone to a Maryland roadhouse with Kennedy and another man the night of January 14. She said the two men posed as G-men.

After missing her watch and purse at midnight, she said, she and Kennedy went back to her apartment so she could see if they were there. In the apartment Kennedy allegedly attempted to assault her. Formal charge against him is assault with intent to commit rape.

In another case, Clarence F. Sowers, a man about 57 years old whose whereabouts are unknown, was indicted for embezzlement and larceny after trust.

A Washington woman was reported to have complained to authorities that in 1938 Sowers, painting a rosy future, sold her 100 shares of "Television Radio Corporation Stock" at $1.60 a share. Later, when she went to get certificates for the shares, the man had moved.

The charges against those indicted were:

Manslaughter—Jasper R. Martin, 43, Negro, for the death of Lewis T. Karn, 29, from pistol wounds received at 1527 Columbia Street Northwest on May 23, 1941; Vernie Pumphrey, 23, for the death of Emmett Dodson, 39, as the result of an auto accident at Thirteenth and Kenyon Streets Northwest on December 1, 1941.

Helen Traubel Sings With Symphony

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday night in Constitution Hall with Helen Traubel as soloist. Program: Prelude and Fugue in C minor (Bach-Saul), Suite from "Cephale et Procris" (Gretry-Mottl), Four Songs (Beethoven), Song of the Rhine Maidens and Immolation Scene from "Die Goetterdaemmerung" (Wagner).

Helen Traubel, commanding American soprano, was the center of the program which Hans Kindler built for last evening's concert by the National Symphony Orchestra and the focus of the tumultuous applause which followed her two appearances on the stage. As long as we speak of heroic tenors, there is no reason why we should not refer to sopranos as heroic, when their voices have the amplitude, the soaring range and the emotional power that Miss Traubel exhibits.

Her first offering was a group of four songs by Beethoven: the devotional "Gottes Macht und Vorsehung," the romantic setting of Herrosen's poem, "Zaertliche Liebe;" and Clarchen's "Freudvoll und leidvoll" and "Die Trommel geruehret" from the incidental music to Goethe's "Egmont." These were sung with authority and effective phrasing, but her great moments came in the immolation scene from "Die Gotterdaemmerung" with which the program closed.

Dr. Kindler chose for his opening number Edgar T. Paul's fine transcription of Bach's C minor Prelude and Fugue, which is instrumented with consideration for the original organ registrations. This was followed by Felix Mottl's familiar and enjoyable suite of three dances from Modeste Gretry's eighteenth century ballet, "Cephale et Procris," light and diverting music which owes something to the manner of Gluck.

FOR DEFENSE BUY UNITED STATES SAVINGS BONDS AND STAMPS

But what can poor little me do for defense?

. . . LADY, HERE'S SOMETHING YOU CAN DO RIGHT NOW!

DON'T ask your laundry-routeman for special pick-up and delivery service. Laundry trucks are already overworked in this most crowded of all American cities, and every special run means added wear and tear on tires already overburdened.

Cut out calls for special delivery service . . . and, in addition, be READY with your laundry when the laundryman pays his regular call. Don't make him come back a second time.

Please remember that you, yes "poor little you" . . . can do a lot for your country by helping us get the maximum of effective service out of the tires we now have on our trucks.

YOU can help by—placing your call for pick-up service at least 24 hours in advance.
being READY with your bundle when the route man calls, paying when the laundry is delivered (so the route man won't have to make a collection call the next day).
sending ALL, the wash in one bundle once a week, instead of sending several small bundles on different days.
refraining from asking for special pick-ups and deliveries.

WE are now helping by—re-arranging routes for maximum and minimum length.
enforcing a daily mileage maximum on every truck.
using speed regulators and governors on all our trucks so that tires cannot be worn out prematurely by fast driving.
You Do Your Part—WE'LL DO OURS!

Soldiers Get Top Talent In Their Camp Theaters

A Visit to Fort Belvoir Turns Up Star Troupe, With Joe E. Brown and Linda Darnell Added; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

REAL ENTERTAINMENT is now bolstering the morale of the boys in the service training camps throughout the country.

Through the organization of the USO-Camp Shows, the enrollment of top-grade professional talent and the efficient routing of the traveling units around the national-wide circuit of training centers, the commodious and well equipped camp theaters are presenting stage entertainment that any civilian audience would be glad to pay the regular scale of big-time admissions to see. Take the "Sunshine Revue" that played a two-night, four-performance engagement at Fort Belvoir, Va., on Monday and Tuesday nights, for example.

LINDA DARNELL

Here was a bill that would have done credit to any metropolitan vaudeville theater—if there were any such thing nowadays as a metropolitan vaudeville theater. Anyhow, there used to be—B. F. Keith's, for those with long memories—and that's what I have in mind. There were Miller and Barlow and the Caprino Sisters in clever acts; Eddie Stanley, acting as m. c. and putting on a neat skit with Penny Gill,, from the "Song of the Islands" picture cast; Armando and Lita, in skillful and hilarious dance travesties; Fid Gordon and Sid Lesser in a novel comedy musical turn; that veteran monologist, "Senator" Murphy, in the headline spot, with Joe E. Brown and Linda Darnell, as the added attractions, all augmented by the Hollywood Studio Girls, a line of 12 young beauties who performed the Roxyettes' bouncing-beachball routine and the Rhythm Rockets' tap-to-Tschaikowsky number as well as either the Roxyettes or the Rockets could have done them.

The troup worked its head off, the audience cheered its head off and the whole thing headed off any suspicion that the boys aren't getting what they want in the way of footlight diversion.

The "show" began for the three vanloads of us from Washington in the mess hall where we were guests at the regular Army dinner of Joe E. Brown, Lieut. Col. Louis J. Rumaggi, commanding officer; Lieut. Col. R. Lee, executive officer; Maj. M. J. Landvoight, Capt. T. J. Tildesen, Lieut. Roy Womack, Lieut. J. Muhlheizer, Lieut. Edward Arnold—not the screen star—Mrs. Edythe Dewey, hostess, and First Class Private Joe Neatrour, of public relations, who led us around the huge replacement camp by the hand. The Government now has three vanloads of showmen and newspapermen to testify that our Army is the best fed in the world. But more important was the enthusiasm of the lads who crowded the tables. You would have thought Joe E. Brown was the President of the United States, from the roof-raising enthusiasm that greeted him, and Linda Darnell might easily have been the First Lady. They are appearing unsponsored with various touring unit-shows because they want to contribute their services to the war effort and get as great a wallop out of the boys as the boys get out of them. They have been with the "Sunshine" show for a week and will continue with it through the engagements at Aberdeen and Meade, ending Saturday night. They are made to order for this sort of thing. Their enthusiasm is contagious and leaves any camp at the peak of its morale.

Joe Unpacks His Full Bag of Tricks

On these camp tours, Joe is uncorking his complete repertoire. Tuesday night, he told stories, kidded the audience, sang, danced and wound up—literally—with his perfect pantomime of the baseball pitcher who couldn't get the side out, but finally managed to get himself thrown out of the game. For the song and dance business you will have to go back to "Listen, Lester," the "Greenwich Village Follies," "Betty Lee," "Twinkle, Twinkle" and the other old musicals before he went "straight" in "Elmer the Great" and came on to the films to become one of the screen's most popular and most beloved comedians. Linda Darnell, in person, will surprise you. Taller, but no less lovely, than the cameras make her appear, she has a quick sense of humor, great charm and a spontaneous enthusiasm that takes immediate command of any camp she visits—with all due respect to Col. Rumaggi! He was running third Tuesday evening. One glimpse of an Army camp—and we admit Tuesday night's was our first in this war—and you will stop worrying about morale. It was a great and warming experience—and on a cold night, at that!

With Wednesday's and Thursday's winners still to be determined, as at time of writing, finalists in Sammy Kaye's "So You Want to Lead a Band" contest, at the Earle, include George Garry, 909 Flower Avenue, Takoma Park; Trice Bultar, 1611 A Street Northeast; Milton Thompson, 3025 Porter Street Northwest; W. H. Morning, 1415 Ridge Place Southeast, and Paul Snyder, 2233 Fortieth Place Northwest. They are waving that stick at a $35 first prize; $25, second, and $15, third. Consolation prizes also will be awarded.

Get-Out-the-Nerve-Tonic Note

On the strength of yesterday's preview, you'll be dreaming about "All Through the Night" all through the night. Boy, is that one a chiller-diller!

Speaking of Automobile Tires!

Hollywood, Feb. 4.—On "The Spoilers" set Marlene Dietrich is turning down interviews because all the scribes want her to talk about men. Subjects suggested to and rejected by La Dietrich include: "Men Are Mice," "Men, Men, Men," "I Favor Child Brides," "Men Misunderstand Me," "Women Live Without Men—or Can They?" Said Dietrich, "Ever since I can remember, I've been trying to take men apart to see what makes them tick, and sometimes I can't get them back together again. (Why, Marlene! What an admission!) Let's talk about the shortage of automobile tires." Incidentally, her daughter, Marie, will be in Max Reinhardt's next play at his workshop. She's really working these days.

Several years ago, Twentieth hired 12 Indians from the Blackfeet tribe for a picture. One of them, Charles Ironheart, is back working in "Ten Gentlemen from West Point." He's the only bald-headed Indian the studio had ever heard of. He's supposed to get scalped in the picture. Gee, whiz! That shatters my belief in American history. I always thought Indians did the scalping!

One fan's dream came true. Al Parker, a 15-year-old kid from Arizona, hitch-hiked here for a glimpse of Johnny Weissmuller. Went to the studio, couldn't get in. Then he bought a guide to the stars' homes, found out where Johnny lived, rang his doorbell, and when Johnny answered the door Al fainted dead away on the doorstep. Johnny picked him up, revived him, kept him there that night, took him to the studio to watch shooting next day, then shipped him home. But don't you fans light out on the going into a theater recently a little girl in pigtails rushed up to him and asked for his autograph. He obliged, and the child exclaimed, "Oh, thank you! You and Don Wilson are my favorite radio announcers!"

Robert Riskin, whose "Meet John Doe" and "Mr. Deeds" immortalized the average American, is back from England with a new character in his head—Joe London. Bob's description of the average Englishman: "Unafraid but not aware of bravery; domesticated but willingly sacrifices home to defend his city; asks no prize except the right to speak his mind and develop a peaceful and contented life in his own land when war is over."

Does Kay Kyser need a rest! He's just ended his fifth consecutive year without vacationing. Besides pictures and radio, he's covered the country with personal appearances and benefit performances, and plans another tour of Army camps as soon as he finishes "My Favorite Spy." Somebody ought to tell him to take it easy before he folds up like an old accordion.

Little

It's almost like the old days—this business of coming across a French film holding over at the Little. Time was this corner of Washington became a seasonal coin de France whenever there was a "Baker's Wife," "Un Carnet de Bal," "Harvest," "Ballerina" or "Fin du Jour" on the screen. With the France of 1942 in the hands of Hitler, there nonetheless remains a winter holdover at the Little, "The King."

Even the dullards would be quick to tell you "The King" was made before the fall of France. And the smart boys recall it as one of Leo Ditrichstein's greatest hits, this farce that first appeared on the Parisian stage in 1908. Raimu and Victor Francen are the stars of this first telling on celluloid of a satire that was feared, not for its moral cynicism, but for its political gunpowder.

"The King" tells how a fatuous politician climbed the heights of officialdom solely because a visiting monarch captured the romantic fancies of first his mistress and then his wife. Of course, such things never happen any more, so it's quite safe for us to see such films; but the antique charm of such a thought makes for delectable fun even if it is an outmoded and barbaric usage.

The playing of both men and of Gaby Morly and Elvire Popesco, as the ladies in question, is delightfully shrewd; the French original of Louis Verneuil is worldly to an extreme, and the English subtitles of Milton Doushkess are amply illuminating. Altogether, rear-guard of the great Gallic films, "The King" is pretty rare film-making.

RKO-Keith's

"Ball of Fire," the Gary Cooper-Barbara Stanwyck comedy, is continuing for a sixth week at RKO-Keith's Theater. Produced by Samuel Goldwyn, this comedy flutters around the semantics professor who, compiling an article on slang and its usage, delves into the night club, world, comes up with a songstress-sweetheart and a gang of murderers. Henry Travers, Oscar Homolka, Leonid Kinskey, S. J. Sakall, Tully Marshall, Dana Andrews, Richard Raydn, Allen Jenkins and Dan Duryea are the chief supporting players.

So That Is Settled!

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 4.—The pipe of peace has been smoked by Universal and Deanna Durbin and, frankly, I couldn't be less surprised. I've expected this kiss-and-make-up act between the little rebel songbird and her studio day by day. Nothing but cream puffs were thrown in this battle from the beginning, with the studio bosses admitting they wished they had her back and Deanna being as polite as punch about her former employers. Just who won this battle of "U" was not divulged in the official statement made yesterday by Nate Blumberg, Universal's president. But I'll bet a dollar to a doughnut a compromise was met by Deanna, who had demanded complete supervision on stories, casts and directors.

DEANNA DURBIN

So far no picture is announced for Mrs. Vaughn Paul. She leaves here February 6 on a tour of the Army camps, which more or less kills the rumor that she will be on hand for "Boy Meets Baby," with Bob Cummings. Deanna will sing at camps in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware and won't return to Hollywood until March. Her husband, Vaughn Paul, by that time, will probably be in the Navy, for he is on call.

Have you read "The Strange Woman," by Ben Ames Williams? It came out a few months ago and all of a sudden is the most popular reading in our town. Maybe that's why Hal Wallis decided to buy it for Betty Davis. When he went East, this book, which he had just finished reading, was on his list.

The rumor that Bette and her husband, Arthur Farnsworth, have dated the stork has been denied, but some of Bette's closest friends believe that she will adopt a baby. She wants a child more than anything else in the world and if she doesn't have one of her own it's the firm belief of those close to her that she will give some little one a home and very soon.

John Payne, who got out of Hollywood as fast as possible after his break up with Anne Shirley, won't have as much time to "forget" in the East as he expected. He said at the time they parted he wanted to stay back there as long as possible—for don't let anyone tell you that he isn't pretty well broken up. But studio contracts are contracts and John is being paged in Washington to return as soon as possible to report for "White Collars."

One of the hardest working gals for Uncle Sam is Carole Landis, who spends about 16 hours a day on one job or another. The nice part about it, Carole never talks what she is doing but really puts her shoulders to the wheel. She is in more branches of the service than any other actress and, moreover, she's working at Twentieth Century-Fox studio every day. Her next assignment is the femme lead opposite Pat O'Brien in "Manila Calling."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Strong rumor that Jackie Moran and Mildred Schenck were married two months ago at Las Vegas, Nev.; Jane Russell is wearing an engagement ring put on her finger by Bob Waterfield, U. C. L. A. quarterback; Walter Huston goes to Washington to broadcast a sketch from the Congressional Library on Lincoln's birthday. He will play Honest Abe; an invitation to the golden wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leander McDonald Sunday. They wrote that they were in vaudeville when vaudeville "was."

John Carradine is going to have a chance to do Shakespeare again. He goes to New York in a few weeks to play in "Richard III." Geraldine Fitzgerald moved into the Boris Karloff house and every time the door opens a sculptured "Frankenstein" lights up with eyes glaring; Maureen O'Hara is home sick with the flu and out of the cast of "Ten Gentlemen From West Point" for a few days; Tony Martin, singing a solo at Charley Foy's for the paying customers. He returns to Camp tomorrow.

Jack Durant says: "Buy a bond—your dough will help bomb Tokyo."

Columbia

In his accustomed fashion Wallace Beery again is seeing the light before it is too late. He's doing it in "The Bugle Sounds," a topically slanted M-G-M film reopening an F Street run this morning at the Columbia.

This time the well-meaning Wally is a sergeant in the cavalry. Beery is angry, not to say downright shocked, the way his horses are being shunted aside in an effort to mechanize the Army to 1942 requirements. Since how he sees the light is scarcely the personal property of M-G-M, The Post leaves ways and means to you.

Beery associates in "The Bugle Sounds" are able, even celebrated folk. For romance, there's twang-tongued Marjorie Main, getting to be one of his regular playmates. For dignity, there's Lewis Stone, getting a temporary spell from the brow-furrowing of Judge Hardy. For downright rascality, there's burly George Bancroft, and suave Jerome Cowan. Donna Reed, Henry O'Neill and William Lundigan complete the principals.

Words to the Wise

New York, Feb. 4.

WBP: Archibald MacLeish, head of the Office of Facts and Figures, who recently issued his first official report to the Nation, will make periodic reports, regarding the state of America's war production . . . ASCAP: The Treasury Department has issued over two million copies of Irving Berlin's "Any Bonds Today?" . . . Although all of Berlin's Government songs are copyrighted in the name of Henry Morgenthau, jr., any profits—such as those resulting from phonograph recordings—are presented to the ordnance division of the War Department . . . LORD BEAVERBROOK: When one of Don Nelson's friends said, last week, "We're all proud of you," Nelson answered: "Wait 60 days, before saying that."

IRVING BERLIN

JOHN STEINBECK: Your publisher, Harold Guinsburg, of Viking Press, is going to work for the Coordinator of Information . . . DARRYL ZANUCK: Hanns Eisler, the composer, who has been experimenting with new forms of music background for motion pictures—under grant by the Rockefeller Foundation—will go to Hollywood in May. There, before the academy, he will reveal the results of his work . . . MIKE JACOBS: Kingfish Levinsky, the retired heavyweight, met Lou Nova in Miami Beach, and asked: "Do you remember my last fight with Joe Louis?" Nova answered: "No" . . . "That's funny," said the kayoed Kingfish, "because neither do I."

HARRY HOPKINS: Ed Stettinius and Gen. Byrnes recently finished their first motion picture work. Without a single fluff in their lines, they've just appeared in a British documentary film, about Lend-Lease, made here by the London movie men who did "Target for Tonight" . . . J. EDGAR HOOVER: Clarence Hathaway, former editor of the Daily Worker—who was reported missing after his conviction for criminal libel—is back in town now. He was out of the State, but with the consent of the District Attorney's office. His appeal shortly will be decided . . . N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE: Ben Smith, the Mystery Man, is helping finance Mexico City's new racetrack.

SENATOR BROOKS: Mayor Ed Kelly of Chicago, who was responsible for the defeat of John Stelle in the latter's gubernatorial campaign, now is being backed by Stelle—who wants Kelly to run against you for the United States Senate . . . BRUCE CABOT: Aren't you the real owner of that white, custom-built car in which Gloria Vanderbilt and Pat DiCicco are honeymooning?

KEITH MORGAN: Last week the Washington newspapers published a drawing presented to the Presented, made by Iliup Choon, a Korean, in honor of the President's birthday. That drawing will be the cover for a new song writen by Ray Goetz, the producer, called "Hitler, Hirohito, and Benito." Choon is Goetz's chauffeur . . . BOOK PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION: One of the first recommendations in the paper-conservation campaign will be for the reduction in the size of margins, in forthcoming books . . . JACK WARNER: Clifford Odets will have to remain here for two weeks. He'll write one of the radio shows which Norman Corwin will present for the Government over 500 stations.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK: Michael Redgrave, the British actor who starred in your film "The Lady Vanishes" and who recently played in "The Stars Look Down," still is an ordinary seaman in the British navy . . . For more than one year, Redgrave was part of the crew commanded by Lord Louis Mountbatten, the King's cousin whose heroic exploits now have become legendary . . . Mountbatten had asked that Redgrave be transferred to his command. When a friend asked him why, Mountbatten confessed: "Redgrave is the only sailor who understnads Chekhov."

"Brighton Rock," dramatized by Walter Kerr and Leo Brady from the novel by Graham Greene, last night was presented for the first time on any stage in the University Theater by the acting company of the Speech and Drama Department of Catholic University before an interested and deeply appreciative audience.

In this newest demonstration of a mature and constantly expanding talent for the theater, the Messrs. Kerr and Brady have evolved a play of environment and morals that pursues a diminishing course of compelling incident and becomes rather a psychological study than a drama of action. Its pivotal character is an egocentric and youthful killer who, despite the fact that he once was a choir boy, by unfortunate upbringing, evil associations and a colossal self-sufficiency approaches young manhood with a firm faith only in a retributive hereafter from which there is no escape through any agency of feminine, spiritual or other inspiration.

His first murder, at the opening of the play, motivates all that follows. The crime is planned and executed at Henaky's restaurant-bar in Brighton, England, where the opening scene and several that follow are laid. In this vacation resort rendezvous he meets the 17-year-old waitress, innocent of the world and an unwitting accessory to his attempts to cover up the killing and the others that inevitably follow the first, and through a combination of circumstances that seem inexorable to him, marries the girl. Through her and the ubiquitous Ida Arnold, a contradictory sort of character, introduced first as a roistering "play girl" who poses as the symbol of all the virtues and becomes increasingly a tower of rectitude and an inescapable nemesis as the drama progresses, is established the psychological conflict that is the crux of the play.

Beginning with a scene and an atmosphere vaguely reminiscent of Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life," the three acts become increasingly grim, stark and somber, with intervals of sustained and admirably written dialogue of a piece with "Night Must Fall" and, at times, not too remotely suggestive of Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow and Substance" in the sound exposition of an engrossing, but unlively, examination of man's moral and spiritual fiber.

The playwrights have peopled their work with a wide variety of arresting and well drawn characters—two rival underworld gangs at bitter war, their friends and partisans, the police, parents and representatives of the cloth—and have, of course, introduced situations that are instinct with gripping drama. They also have succeeded in writing effective comedy into their play, which flows quietly and unobtrusively without at any time vitiating the drama's serious and entirely worthy purpose. There are, however, as the play was performed for the first time last night, long intervals of argument and repetitive discourse that may be judiciously curtailed in the interest of swifter movement and an earlier final curtain than last evening's, which fell at 11:30.

There can be no quibbling over the capability of the cast which gave a letter-perfect premiere performance of a thoughtful and exacting drama that might easily test the abilities of any professional group.

Eric Linden, as the dominant Pinkie, upon whom the whole structure of the play rests, looked and acted the part to perfection, never permitting the furtiveness and indecision underlying his false bravado to fade out of a forceful and memorable portrayal. At times even overshadowing the vigor and conviction of his vital character was the finely shaded delineation of the plaintively sympathetic role of Rose, the waitress and child-bride, by Mary Finnerty. Miss Finnerty found it easily within her powers to encompass both the comic and emotional qualities of her part with extraordinary sureness and unfailing consciousness of her character's full scope and importance. Cecilia Brown's was a much lustier and only slightly less believable impersonation of the flamboyantly conspicuous Ida.

Arthur Harvey, Edmund Butler, Anthony Messuri, Whit Vernon, Dick Sykes and Victor Holmquist were among others who lent much to an ensemble that betrayed no flagrantly weak spot. Not the least of the many elements of excellence in "Brighton Rock" was represented by Ralph Brown's settings and lighting.

Soldiers Get Top Talent In Their Camp Theaters

A Visit to Fort Belvoir Turns Up Star Troupe, With Joe E. Brown and Linda Darnell Added; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

REAL ENTERTAINMENT is now bolstering the morale of the boys in the service training camps throughout the country. Through the organization of the USO-Camp Shows, the enrollment of top-grade professional talent and the efficient routing of the traveling units around the national-wide circuit of training centers, the commodious and well equipped camp theaters are presenting stage entertainment that any civilian audience would be glad to pay the regular scale of big-time admissions to see. Take the "Sunshine Revue" that played a two-night, four-performance engagement at Fort Belvoir, Va., on Monday and Tuesday nights, for example.

LINDA DARNELL

Here was a bill that would have done credit to any metropolitan vaudeville theater—if there were any such thing nowadays as a metropolitan vaudeville theater. Anyhow, there used to be—B. F. Keith's, for those with long memories—and that's what I have in mind. There were Miller and Barlow and the Caprino Sisters in clever acts; Eddie Stanley, acting as m. c. and putting on a neat skit with Penny Gill,, from the "Song of the Islands" picture cast; Armando and Lita, in skillful and hilarious dance travesties; Fid Gordon and Sid Lesser in a novel comedy musical turn; that veteran monologist, "Senator" Murphy, in the headline spot, with Joe E. Brown and Linda Darnell, as the added attractions, all augmented by the Hollywood Studio Girls, a line of 12 young beauties who performed the Roxyettes' bouncing-beachball routine and the Rhythm Rockets' tap-to-Tschaikowsky number as well as either the Roxyettes or the Rockets could have done them.

The troup worked its head off, the audience cheered its head off and the whole thing headed off any suspicion that the boys aren't getting what they want in the way of footlight diversion.

The "show" began for the three vanloads of us from Washington in the mess hall where we were guests at the regular Army dinner of Joe E. Brown, Lieut. Col. Louis J. Rumaggi, commanding officer; Lieut. Col. R. Lee, executive officer; Maj. M. J. Landvoight, Capt. T. J. Tildesen, Lieut. Roy Womack, Lieut. J. Muhlheizer, Lieut. Edward Arnold—not the screen star—Mrs. Edythe Dewey, hostess, and First Class Private Joe Neatrour, of public relations, who led us around the huge replacement camp by the hand. The Government now has three vanloads of showmen and newspapermen to testify that our Army is the best fed in the world. But more important was the enthusiasm of the lads who crowded the tables. You would have thought Joe E. Brown was the President of the United States, from the roof-raising enthusiasm that greeted him, and Linda Darnell might easily have been the First Lady. They are appearing unsponsored with various touring unit-shows because they want to contribute their services to the war effort and get as great a wallop out of the boys as the boys get out of them. They have been with the "Sunshine" show for a week and will continue with it through the engagements at Aberdeen and Meade, ending Saturday night. They are made to order for this sort of thing. Their enthusiasm is contagious and leaves any camp at the peak of its morale.

Joe Unpacks His Full Bag of Tricks

On these camp tours, Joe is uncorking his complete repertoire. Tuesday night, he told stories, kidded the audience, sang, danced and wound up—literally—with his perfect pantomime of the baseball pitcher who couldn't get the side out, but finally managed to get himself thrown out of the game. For the song and dance business you will have to go back to "Listen, Lester," the "Greenwich Village Follies," "Betty Lee," "Twinkle, Twinkle" and the other old musicals before he went "straight" in "Elmer the Great" and came on to the films to become one of the screen's most popular and most beloved comedians. Linda Darnell, in person, will surprise you. Taller, but no less lovely, than the cameras make her appear, she has a quick sense of humor, great charm and a spontaneous enthusiasm that takes immediate command of any camp she visits—with all due respect to Col. Rumaggi! He was running third Tuesday evening. One glimpse of an Army camp—and we admit Tuesday night's was our first in this war—and you will stop worrying about morale. It was a great and warming experience—and on a cold night, at that!

With Wednesday's and Thursday's winners still to be determined, as at time of writing, finalists in Sammy Kaye's "So You Want to Lead a Band" contest, at the Earle, include George Garry, 909 Flower Avenue, Takoma Park; Trice Bultar, 1611 A Street Northeast; Milton Thompson, 3025 Porter Street Northwest; W. H. Morning, 1415 Ridge Place Southeast, and Paul Snyder, 2233 Fortieth Place Northwest. They are waving that stick at a $35 first prize; $25, second, and $15, third. Consolation prizes also will be awarded.

Get-Out-the-Nerve-Tonic Note

On the strength of yesterday's preview, you'll be dreaming about "All Through the Night" all through the night. Boy, is that one a chiller-diller!

in "Angel Street," coming to the National Theater for the week of Monday, February 16. Seated (center) is the youthful impresario, Shepard Traube. Surrounding him (from left) are Sylvia Sidney, Ernest Cossart, Victor Jory, Elfreda Derwent and Judy Parrish, foremost players in the misnamed "second" company. The "first" is still playing on Broadway, with Vincent Price in the role in which Mr. Jory will be seen here

Speaking of Automobile Tires!

Hollywood, Feb. 4.—On "The Spoilers" set Marlene Dietrich is turning down interviews because all the scribes want her to talk about men. Subjects suggested to and rejected by La Dietrich include: "Men Are Mice," "Men, Men, Men," "I Favor Child Brides," "Men Misunderstand Me," "Women Live Without Men—or Can They?" Said Dietrich, "Ever since I can remember, I've been trying to take men apart to see what makes them tick, and sometimes I can't get them back together again. (Why, Marlene! What an admission!) Let's talk about the shortage of automobile tires." Incidentally, her daughter, Marie, will be in Max Reinhardt's next play at his workshop. She's really working these days.

Robert Riskin, whose "Meet John Doe" and "Mr. Deeds" immortalized the average American, is back from England with a new character in his head—Joe London. Bob's description of the average Englishman: "Unafraid but not aware of bravery; domesticated but willingly sacrifices home to defend his city; asks no prize except the right to speak his mind and develop a peaceful and contented life in his own land when war is over."

Does Kay Kyser need a rest! He's just ended his fifth consecutive year without vacationing. Besides pictures and radio, he's covered the country with personal appearances and benefit performances, and plans another tour of Army camps as soon as he finishes "My Favorite Spy." Somebody ought to tell him to take it easy before he folds up like an old accordion.

When C. B. De Mille was going into a theater recently a little girl in pigtails rushed up to him and asked for his autograph. He obliged, and the child exclaimed, "Oh, thank you! You and Don Wilson are my favorite radio announcers!"

ᔓᔕ

Several years ago, Twentieth hired 12 Indians from the Blackfeet tribe for a picture. One of them, Charles Ironheart, is back working in "Ten Gentlemen from West Point." He's the only baldheaded Indian the studio had ever heard of. He's supposed to get scalped in the picture. Gee, whiz! That shatters my belief in American history. I always thought Indians did the scalping!

One fan's dream came true. Al Parker, a 15-year-old kid from Arizona, hitch-hiked here for a glimpse of Johnny Weissmuller. Went to the studio, couldn't get in. Then he bought a guide to the stars' homes, found out where Johnny lived, rang his doorbell, and when Johnny answered the door Al fainted dead away on the doorstep. Johnny picked him up, revived him, kept him there that night, took him to the studio to watch shooting next day, then shipped him home. But don't you fans light out on the strength of that. This is the only time I've known it to happen.

Humphrey Bogart wants to play "The Desert Song," with Dennis Morgan's voice dubbed in. Hey, Bogey! You stick to your guns—and they'll stick to you!

Little

It's almost like the old days—this business of coming across a French film holding over at the Little. Time was this corner of Washington became a seasonal coin de France whenever there was a "Baker's Wife," "Un Carnet de Bal," "Harvest," "Ballerina" or "Fin du Jour" on the screen. With the France of 1942 in the hands of Hitler, there nonetheless remains a winter holdover at the Little, "The King."

Even the dullards would be quick to tell you "The King" was made before the fall of France. And the smart boys recall it as one of Leo Ditrichstein's greatest hits, this farce that first appeared on the Parisian stage in 1908. Raimu and Victor Francen are the stars of this first telling on celluloid of a satire that was feared, not for its moral cynicism, but for its political gunpowder.

"The King" tells how a fatuous politician climbed the heights of officialdom solely because a visiting monarch captured the romantic fancies of first his mistress and then his wife. Of course, such things never happen any more, so it's quite safe for us to see such films; but the antique charm of such a thought makes for delectable fun even if it is an outmoded and barbaric usage.

The playing of both men and of Gaby Morly and Elvire Popesco, as the ladies in question, is delightfully shrewd; the French original of Louis Verneuil is worldly to an extreme, and the English subtitles of Milton Doushkess are amply illuminating. Altogether, rear-guard of the great Gallic films, "The King" is pretty rare film-making.

RKO-Keith's

"Ball of Fire," the Gary Cooper-Barbara Stanwyck comedy, is continuing for a sixth week at RKO-Keith's Theater. Produced by Samuel Goldwyn, this comedy flutters around the semantics professor who, compiling an article on slang and its usage, delves into the night club, world, comes up with a songstress-sweetheart and a gang of murderers. Henry Travers, Oscar Homolka, Leonid Kinskey, S. J. Sakall, Tully Marshall, Dana Andrews, Richard Raydn, Allen Jenkins and Dan Duryea are the chief supporting players.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

So That Is Settled!

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 4.—The pipe of peace has been smoked by Universal and Deanna Durbin and, frankly, I couldn't be less surprised. I've expected this kiss-and-make-up act between the little rebel songbird and her studio day by day. Nothing but cream puffs were thrown in this battle from the beginning, with the studio bosses admitting they wished they had her back and Deanna being as polite as punch about her former employers. Just who won this battle of "U" was not divulged in the official statement made yesterday by Nate Blumberg, Universal's president. But I'll bet a dollar to a doughnut a compromise was met by Deanna, who had demanded complete supervision on stories, casts and directors.

DEANNA DURBIN

So far no picture is announced for Mrs. Vaughn Paul. She leaves here February 6 on a tour of the Army camps, which more or less kills the rumor that she will be on hand for "Boy Meets Baby," with Bob Cummings. Deanna will sing at camps in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware and won't return to Hollywood until March. Her husband, Vaughn Paul, by that time, will probably be in the Navy, for he is on call.

Have you read "The Strange Woman," by Ben Ames Williams? It came out a few months ago and all of a sudden is the most popular reading in our town. Maybe that's why Hal Wallis decided to buy it for Betty Davis. When he went East, this book, which he had just finished reading, was on his list.

The rumor that Bette and her husband, Arthur Farnsworth, have dated the stork has been denied, but some of Bette's closest friends believe that she will adopt a baby. She wants a child more than anything else in the world and if she doesn't have one of her own it's the firm belief of those close to her that she will give some little one a home and very soon.

John Payne, who got out of Hollywood as fast as possible after his break up with Anne Shirley, won't have as much time to "forget" in the East as he expected. He said at the time they parted he wanted to stay back there as long as possible—for don't let anyone tell you that he isn't pretty well broken up. But studio contracts are contracts and John is being paged in Washington to return as soon as possible to report for "White Collars."

One of the hardest working gals for Uncle Sam is Carole Landis, who spends about 16 hours a day on one job or another. The nice part about it, Carole never talks what she is doing but really puts her shoulders to the wheel. She is in more branches of the service than any other actress and, moreover, she is working at Twentieth Century-Fox studio every day. Her next assignment is the femme lead opposite Pat O'Brien in "Manila Calling."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Strong rumor that Jackie Moran and Mildred Schenck were married two months ago at Las Vegas, Nev.; Jane Russell is wearing an engagement ring put on her finger by Bob Waterfield, U. C. L. A. quarterback; Walter Huston goes to Washington to broadcast a sketch from the Congressional Library on Lincoln's birthday. He will play Honest Abe; an invitation to the golden wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leander McDonald Sunday. They wrote that they were in vaudeville when vaudeville "was."

John Carradine is going to have a chance to do Shakespeare again. He goes to New York in a few weeks to play in "Richard III." Geraldine Fitzgerald moved into the Boris Karloff house and every time the door opens a sculptured "Frankenstein" lights up with eyes glaring; Maureen O'Hara is home sick with the flu and out of the cast of "Ten Gentlemen From West Point" for a few days; Tony Martin, singing a solo at Charley Foy's for the paying customers. He returns to Camp tomorrow.

Columbia

In his accustomed fashion Wallace Beery again is seeing the light before it is too late. He's doing it in "The Bugle Sounds," a topically slanted M-G-M film reopening an F Street run this morning at the Columbia.

This time the well-meaning Wally is a sergeant in the cavalry. Beery is angry, not to say downright shocked, the way his horses are being shunted aside in an effort to mechanize the Army to 1942 requirements. Since how he sees the light is scarcely the personal property of M-G-M, The Post leaves ways and means to you.

Beery associates in "The Bugle Sounds" are able, even celebrated folk. For romance, there's twang-tongued Marjorie Main, getting to be one of his regular playmates. For dignity, there's Lewis Stone, getting a temporary spell from the brow-furrowing of Judge Hardy. For downright rascality, there's burly George Bancroft, and suave Jerome Cowan. Donna Reed, Henry O'Neill and William Lundigan complete the principals.

LEONARD LYONS

New York, Feb. 4.

WBP: Archibald MacLeish, head of the Office of Facts and Figures, who recently issued his first official report to the Nation, will make periodic reports, regarding the state of America's war production . . . ASCAP: The Treasury Department has issued over two million copies of Irving Berlin's "Any Bonds Today?" . . . Although all of Berlin's Government songs are copyrighted in the name of Henry Morgenthau, jr., any profits—such as those resulting from phonograph recordings—are presented to the ordnance division of the War Department . . . LORD BEAVERBROOK: When one of Don Nelson's friends said, last week, "We're all proud of you," Nelson answered: "Wait 60 days, before saying that."

IRVING BERLIN

JOHN STEINBECK: Your publisher, Harold Guinsburg, of Viking Press, is going to work for the Coordinator of Information . . . DARRYL ZANUCK: Hanns Eisler, the composer, who has been experimenting with new forms of music background for motion pictures—under grant by the Rockefeller Foundation—will go to Hollywood in May. There, before the academy, he will reveal the results of his work . . . MIKE JACOBS: Kingfish Levinsky, the retired heavyweight, met Lou Nova in Miami Beach, and asked: "Do you remember my last fight with Joe Louis?" Nova answered: "No" . . . "That's funny," said the kayoed Kingfish, "because neither do I."

HARRY HOPKINS: Ed Stettinius and Gen. Byrnes recently finished their first motion picture work. Without a single fluff in their lines, they've just appeared in a British documentary film, about Lend-Lease, made here by the London movie men who did "Target for Tonight" . . . J. EDGAR HOOVER: Clarence Hathaway, former editor of the Daily Worker—who was reported missing after his conviction for criminal libel—is back in town now. He was out of the State, but with the consent of the District Attorney's office. His appeal shortly will be decided . . . N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE: Ben Smith, the Mystery Man, is helping finance Mexico City's new racetrack.

SENATOR BROOKS: Mayor Ed Kelly of Chicago, who was responsible for the defeat of John Stelle in the latter's gubernatorial campaign, now is being backed by Stelle—who wants Kelly to run against you for the United States Senate . . . BRUCE CABOT: Aren't you the real owner of that white, custom-built car in which Gloria Vanderbilt and Pat DiCicco are honeymooning?

KEITH MORGAN: Last week the Washington newspapers published a drawing presented to the Presented, made by Iliup Choon, a Korean, in honor of the President's birthday. That drawing will be the cover for a new song writen by Ray Goetz, the producer, called "Hitler, Hirohito, and Benito." Choon is Goetz's chauffeur . . . BOOK PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION: One of the first recommendations in the paper-conservation campaign will be for the reduction in the size of margins, in forthcoming books . . . JACK WARNER: Clifford Odets will have to remain here for two weeks. He'll write one of the radio shows which Norman Corwin will present for the Government over 500 stations.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK: Michael Redgrave, the British actor who starred in your film "The Lady Vanishes" and who recently played in "The Stars Look Down," still is an ordinary seaman in the British navy . . . For more than one year, Redgrave was part of the crew commanded by Lord Louis Mountbatten, the King's cousin whose heroic exploits now have become legendary . . . Mountbatten had asked that Redgrave be transferred to his command. When a friend asked him why, Mountbatten confessed: "Redgrave is the only sailor who understnads Chekhov."

"Brighton Rock," dramatized by Walter Kerr and Leo Brady from the novel by Graham Greene, last night was presented for the first time on any stage in the University Theater by the acting company of the Speech and Drama Department of Catholic University before an interested and deeply appreciative audience.

In this newest demonstration of a mature and constantly expanding talent for the theater, the Messrs. Kerr and Brady have evolved a play of environment and morals that pursues a diminishing course of compelling incident and becomes rather a psychological study than a drama of action. Its pivotal character is an egocentric and youthful killer who, despite the fact that he once was a choir boy, by unfortunate upbringing, evil associations and a colossal self-sufficiency approaches young manhood with a firm faith only in a retributive hereafter from which there is no escape through any agency of feminine, spiritual or other inspiration.

His first murder, at the opening of the play, motivates all that follows. The crime is planned and executed at Henaky's restaurant-bar in Brighton, England, where the opening scene and several that follow are laid. In this vacation resort rendezvous he meets the 17-year-old waitress, innocent of the world and an unwitting accessory to his attempts to cover up the killing and the others that inevitably follow the first, and through a combination of circumstances that seem inexorable to him, marries the girl. Through her and the ubiquitous Ida Arnold, a contradictory sort of character, introduced first as a roistering "play girl" who poses as the symbol of all the virtues and becomes increasingly a tower of rectitude and an inescapable nemesis as the drama progresses, is established the psychological conflict that is the crux of the play.

Beginning with a scene and an atmosphere vaguely reminiscent of Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life," the three acts become increasingly grim, stark and somber, with intervals of sustained and admirably written dialogue of a piece with "Night Must Fall" and, at times, not too remotely suggestive of Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow and Substance" in the sound exposition of an engrossing, but unlively, examination of man's moral and spiritual fiber.

The playwrights have peopled their work with a wide variety of arresting and well drawn characters—two rival underworld gangs at bitter war, their friends and partisans, the police, parents and representatives of the cloth—and have, of course, introduced situations that are instinct with gripping drama. They also have succeeded in writing effective comedy into their play, which flows quietly and unobtrusively without at any time vitiating the drama's serious and entirely worthy purpose. There are, however, as the play was performed for the first time last night, long intervals of argument and repetitive discourse that may be judiciously curtailed in the interest of swifter movement and an earlier final curtain than last evening's, which fell at 11:30.

There can be no quibbling over the capability of the cast which gave a letter-perfect premiere performance of a thoughtful and exacting drama that might easily test the abilities of any professional group.

Eric Linden, as the dominant Pinkie, upon whom the whole structure of the play rests, looked and acted the part to perfection, never permitting the furtiveness and indecision underlying his false bravado to fade out of a forceful and memorable portrayal. At times even overshadowing the vigor and conviction of his vital character was the finely shaded delineation of the plaintively sympathetic role of Rose, the waitress and child-bride, by Mary Finnerty. Miss Finnerty found it easily within her powers to encompass both the comic and emotional qualities of her part with extraordinary sureness and unfailing consciousness of her character's full scope and importance. Cecilia Brown's was a much lustier and only slightly less believable impersonation of the flamboyantly conspicuous Ida.

Arthur Harvey, Edmund Butler, Anthony Messuri, Whit Vernon, Dick Sykes and Victor Holmquist were among others who lent much to an ensemble that betrayed no flagrantly weak spot. Not the least of the many elements of excellence in "Brighton Rock" was represented by Ralph Brown's settings and lighting.

OCD Shortcomings

Mr. Landis doubtless appreciated when he took over as executive director of the Office of Civilian Defense that he had not only to step up the efficiency of the organization but also to restore public confidence in its administration. The magnitude of that job must surely have been brought home to him anew at his press conference on Tuesday when he announced a sweeping reorganization of the OCD. For the question was promptly raised: Is the OCD being converted into a "social reform organization"? Mr. Landis denied this, of course, and probably felt that it was an unjustified, possibly malicious, question. Yet the fact that such a question could have been raised indicates that the new set-up of the OCD is not exactly calculated to promote the requisite public confidence. Some of his new appointees have been under repeated attack for their social or political views. Naturally, this does not, of itself, disqualify them from useful service in the OCD. But to invite them into the OCD at a time when the agency is already under fire is also to invite mounting criticism, the destructive effects of which Mr. Landis will now have to cope with as best he can.

Moreover, it is clear that whether he wants to or not, Mr. Landis sanctions part-time service in the OCD. To be sure, he cannot do much about his superior, Mayor LaGuardia, who says he is going to resign as director and devote all his energies to his New York job—but doesn't say when. Nor can Mr. Landis tactfully do much about his associate director, Mrs. Roosevelt, who apparently feels that her extraordinarily varied activities as First Lady complement her OCD duties. But he was by no means obliged to appoint Mr. Melvyn Douglas as coordinator of the civilian defense work of writers, actors and artists. This is a full-time job, if there ever was one, yet it is a job which Mr. Douglas can work at only when he is not making his next motion picture. Whatever the reasoning or excuse for part-time jobs in the OCD, the impression created is that the organization is unbusinesslike and pervaded by the amateur spirit. It is an impression which does the OCD no good, and the sooner Mr. Landis can be prevailed on to do something about it, the better for civilian defense.

Wire Tapping

Senator Truman, in the Senate on Tuesday, had no difficulty in spiking efforts to pin responsibility upon Congress for the alleged neglect of the FBI in Hawaii to tap the outgoing messages of Japanese agents. The confusion on the subject was created by the Roberts report. That report spoke of "restrictions" which prevented wire tapping, and the implication was that the restrictions came from the law. In point of fact, the existing law—namely, the Federal Communications Act of 1934—forbids the interception of any communication only if the purpose is to divulge or publish it. This has been the interpretation of both the present Attorney General and his predecessor. Attorney General Jackson, in a letter formally sent to a committee of the House on March 19, 1941, specifically declared, "There is no Federal statute that prohibits or punishes wire tapping alone." On October 8, 1941, Attorney General Biddle spoke in the same strain. Indeed, Mr. Biddle, as we have already mentioned, specifically approved of wire tapping as a weapon against spying. "I think," he said in his first press conference, "that if you don't tap wires your espionage work goes out of the window."

There is every evidence that the FBI has proceeded in accordance with the view laid down by the two Attorneys General. Harry Bridges' communcations, for instance, admittedly were tapped. It would be foolish to think that the same eavesdropping was not practiced at the expense of Germans and Italians before the United States entered the war. The United Press says that the FBI even tapped Japanese messages going out of Hawaii. That was done at least on one occasion, namely, December 5. On that day the FBI listened in on a telephone conversation between an "unnamed Japanese and his superior" in Tokyo, and the former actually spoke about the strength and disposition of our fleet in the Pacific.

What happened to the FBI's report, nobody seems to know. Even the Roberts Committee appears to have been insufficiently informed on this aspect of the conditions prevailing in Hawaii prior to the attack. Evidently, like other warnings—such as those contained in the air detector and in the sunken submarine—the FBI report, if any, died a natural death. Thus the statement by Senator Truman adds to the sum total of the lack of alertness in Hawaii. Men, not laws, were at fault, and Congress is exculpated on this account, though our legislators, of course, are by no means immune from the "smugness and complacency" which governed the national thinking before the war.

For China

The news that the President has asked Congress to make a half-billion loan to China has been responsible for a great psychological lift in Chungking. That, undoubtedly, was one of the ends which the President had in mind in making the request. More and more are we as a people realizing the great debt we owe to the Chinese, but the debt in the future may be even more significant than the debt which has already accumulated. Some day, when the United Nations are in a position to begin rolling up the Japanese conquests, China will be the ideal point d'appui for driving home the attack on Japan. That is assuming, of course, that Siberia is not yet available. From the coastal provinces of China—say, Chekiang—the United Nations could bomb all resistance out of Japan. Accordingly, the Chinese deserve the utmost consideration from the United States and Britain at this stage of the war.

That consideration has not been very apparent since December 7. China's hope that the Pacific would come into its own as a vital American concern was temporarily dashed by Colonel Knox's first speech on the war strategy. Supplies, moreover, are hard to get, though that cannot be helped. Finally the reverses which the other powers have been sustaining in Oceania must have come as a shock to the Chinese, for the fall of Singapore might be followed by the capture of Rangoon, the port of entry to the Burma Road. Indeed, Rangoon might be taken from the land side, since the Japanese have already thrust into Burma from Thailand. There is thus every reason in the world for the Chinese to be alarmed by a turn of events which threatens to block their main route to the outside world.

Especially must the Chinese be chagrined as they think that the story might have been different if the Western Powers had behaved more prudently in their relations with China. The Chinese must recall the aid they have proffered in time past. Hongkong might have held out longer if the British had accepted Chinese assistance. A similar situation seems to be developing on the Chinese-Burmese border. The Chinese appear to have concentrated inside Burma in force, but for some reason or other they seem to have been stopped. Is it because the British think, as they thought at Hongkong, that Chinese help is superfluous? Perhaps a suspicion that this is the case, coupled with past experience, may account for some of the restiveness in China. Moreover, five years of war have brought on a certain amount of justifiable war weariness in China, coupled with an inflation that in some cases has carried prices up 2000 per cent.

Thus the loan would be well worth while as a means of sustaining the Chinese at our side in this great struggle. Reports of what the Chinese are themselves doing to combat their economic ills are scanty, but it is known that the taxation of land has been revised and that the yields may soon help the harassed Minister of Finance. But the resources available to the Chinese treasury have been eaten away by the terrific drains of warmaking. In these circumstances the loan would be exceedingly useful, but, since inflation is a psychological as well as a fiscal phenomenon, the loan would be of major benefit in its effects on the Chinese spirit. Their faith in their currency is tied up with their faith in their country and its allies. Prompt approval of the President's request would reinforce the initial reaction which is reported from Chungking.

Was This The Face?

Let us consider today the physiognomic school of historical synthesis. Most of us have heard of Pascal's famous epigram about Cleopatra's nose—how, if it had been a little longer, the whole course of history would have been different. Mr. Wallace R. Deuel, whose book, "People Under Hitler," is published today by Harcourt, Brace, attaches a similar historic importance to Hitler's mustache. Had the mustache been longer, says Mr. Deuel, the history of our world would have been very different. Mr. Deuel, who was Berlin correspondent of the Chicago Daily News from 1936 until about a year ago, says that because the mustache gave Hitler such a ridiculous appearance, people inside as well as outside Germany refused to take him seriously until it was too late. "They thought he was funny. They laughed at him. And while they were laughing, Hitler destroyed them and their whole world about them." Hitler's mustache, you will remember, fooled even Miss Dorothy Thompson. After taking one good look at it in the Kaiserhof Hotel in 1932, Miss Thompson decided that Hitler was not to be the future dictator of Germany.

Mr. Deuel's theory has a good deal of plausibility. Most great conquerors and nearly all great revolutionaries have had something of the ridiculous about them. Caesar, besides being bald, was subject to the falling sickness, and Shakespeare makes Cassius wonder that "a man of such feeble temper should so get the start of the majestic world." Mohammed suffered from the same undignified ailment. And though the inhabitants of Mecca were a less fastidious folk than the Romans, it is certain that they underestimated their prophet very seriously. Attila the Hun and Jenghis Khan were like characters out of a comic strip. Napoleon, as we know, cut a very ridiculous figure at the beginning of his career, at least in the eyes of Barras and Josephine. Not till the barber's itch forced him to get rid of his grotesque sans-culotte haircut did the rest of the world get thoroughly alarmed about him. And there was a time when American editorial writers referred to the military genius of the Russian revolution and civil war as "the Bronx pants presser" in much the same accent that we now refer to the genius of the German revolution as "the Austrian house painter."

Ring Around Java

Had it not been for the destructive attack by United Nations sea and air forces on a great Japanese convoy moving down the Strait of Macassar, the peril to Java, richest and most populous of the Dutch East Indies, would today be very much greater than it is. The smashing up of that convoy, more than 40 of the vessels of which were sunk or damaged, forestalled what was probably intended to be a landing in force on the Javanese coast, with the great Dutch naval base at Surabaya as its objective. The threat to Java, nevertheless, remains great.

On Tuesday Japanese bombers carried out an extensive raid on Surabaya where, it is admitted by the Dutch authorities, considerable damage was inflicted. There were also raids on the airport at Melang, 60 miles to the west, and on Rembang, 100 miles west of the naval base. At the same time the tin islands of Banka and Billiton, north of Batavia in the passageway between Singapore and the capital of the Netherlands Indies, were bombed, while the Japanese effected a landing at Pontianak, on the east coast of Dutch Borneo. The most ominous news of all is a report from Chungking telling of a huge convoy passing south of Amoy, on the Chinese coast, for some undisclosed destination that may very well be Java.

Were the pressure on the United Nations' forces in other theaters of the Pacific war easier than it is, reinforcements might be sent to Surabaya to aid in the developing struggle there. But Singapore is beleaguered, Rangoon is in peril as a result of the Japanese capture of Moulmein, and Australia is faced with increasing Japanese pressure arising from the occupation of her northern islands.

It is apparent, therefore, that the enemy is menacing every vital United Nations' center in the South Pacific. They are driving ahead with relentless fury and with a prodigal expenditure of men and materiel. For they realize that if they permit the Allies to gain enough time, sufficient supplies will arrive from the United States and Britain to alter the present balance of power. Japan's strategy is to prevent the United Nations from gaining that time. So the next few weeks may prove the most critical of any since Pearl Harbor in the Battle of the Pacific. That is why every delaying action, such as that being valiantly executed by General MacArthur and his men, is of great potential importance.

Yet, as we have already stressed, the value of these delaying actions must not be overestimated on that account; so against the little favorable news emanating from the Far East at this time, the news remains for the most part distinctly bad, and no good purpose is served by glossing over the unpleasantness. The fact is that, despite heavy losses in the Strait of Macassar, the Japanese ring around Java is steadily being tightened.

WATERFALL AT MID-DAY

Frost-blue the waterfall of sky—
Blue, rolling over boulders of wind, with the dark, drowned cry
Of stars, like pebbles, dropped and far under;
Blue waterfall tumbling down the dam of noon,
And where it meets the earth, the foam of snow
Billows and froths, and the curving, wind-blown firs
Are the green fish leaping, and the frozen glow
Of winter sun strikes on the water and foam,
And is the glint of the wind's spurs.
Through the light snow-foam where it strikes earth I run;
It seethes to my waist and I am burned and cleansed by it,
Burned clean by the sun;
The waterfall catches and turns me, and in a torrent of cold
I hear the roar of God's heart, the terrible thunder
Of generous strength and compassion, pouring down
Over the boulders of wind and the stars deep under,
Over the blind eyes of men and the frozen ground.

News Dissemination

Walter Lippmann makes a most excellent point in his discussion of the manner in which information is made available to news writers from official sources in Washington. Perhaps something can be done about it, but probably nothing will be done so long as there is a prevailing opinion in official circles that the whole war situation is a guinea pig for New Deal experimentation and exploitation.

Take the Maritime Commission, for instance, whose task probably ranks third in importance in the war effort. News writers unless they are mere hacks accepting propaganda and press agent piffle, find no welcome here. Who today in the common run of people has the slightest conception of what is going on in ship building? Its a "military secret, we are told, but there is no secret about the sum of public money being poured into the thing, or the way the common folks are being taxed for it.

And at the Office of Civilian Defense we learn of prize specimen of news disseminator, a motion picture actor named Melvyn Douglas, of whom nothing is mentioned as to his training in news handling or dealing with news values. Possibly the American mind has become so infantile in grasping this war effort that it can understand only through pictures rather than the written word. I don't know about that, but certainly there is something infantile in the manner in which news facts are made available.

In the majority of instances, these Government press agents who have been drawn into the war have been recruited either from small time newspapers, or have for a background some experience on class, trade or labor publications. They know simply nothing of national news dissemination, and more to the point, they know simply nothing of the situation and condition behind the current news of the day.

Some of them have been recruited merely because they were "active in the Guild," or were kicked out by newspapers for which they worked because of "pernicious activity for the Guild." Still others are friends of this or that freak or long-haired evangel in an administrative or executive post.

Mr. Stimson took occasion the other day to talk for 45 minutes on the background of the situation in the Pacific, and in doing so, did more of a service to the news writers, and showed a more intelligent conception of the American people, than has been generally evident in the months of muddling, bumbling and backing and filling since Americans learned that their oceans are not fortifications but broad highways for open attack.

A WORKING NEWS MAN.
Washington, Feb. 3.

Government Shifts

Won't you start a campaign to have the defense agencies work a two or three-shift day? Social Security did it for years in Baltimore, and it could solve every serious problem for the District.

One shift could be coming home as the other went to work. The buses and streetcars would be filled both ways. Restaurants would have a wider play, and work could go on normally in the other bureaus.

If this is a war to end all wars and we win, as we expect to, Washington will be like a deflated balloon. Then the cry will go up to centralize the Federal agencies again. At least 60 per cent of the personnel of these agencies being sent away won't go, so the amount of relief on housing is small. It is the older residents of Washington who are being hit by this. The New Dealers and the "war" crowd are not the stable population.

Insult To Women

It is indeed unfortunate at this time, when democratic institutions are menaced from abroad by Fascist enemies, that our elective Congress should be made into a laughing stock.

I refer to Representative Wilson's shocking proposal on January 30 for a 10 o'clock curfew here on women Government workers. On first reading of this the proposal looks just ridiculous, and no more. On closer reading, however, the Representative's suggestion reminds us of the curfews imposed by our enemy, Hitler, on the people of Nazi-occupied lands. As Hitler and the Fascists read of this proposal they will no doubt be happy to see that their antidemocratic ideology has penetrated to the halls of the American Congress.

This ridiculous proposal, however, cannot be merely laughed off at this time, when District Federal workers, 45 per cent of them women, are making great sacrifices for the war effort in lengthy hours and bad living conditions. This insult to women Federal workers cannot be disregarded simply as ignorance, for the fact that it can be made at all shows that there are among us those who would relegate women to the chattel role they held in the Middle Ages, and that they hold in Hitler-occupied nations today. But such a suggestion surely has no place in the legislative halls of the world's greatest democracy.

Author Churchill

"No one can know the real Winston Churchill who does not read his own story of his early career. This book was written many years ago and Churchill gave it the title "A Roving Commission." It is a frank and intimate account of his early career from the days of his ancestors to his entrance into the House of Commons.

I confess that until I read this life story I had a wrong impression of Churchill. Possibly I gave too much credence to the attacks upon him by his political opponents for the book was a revelation to me. Not that Churchill indulges in any self-praise. Quite the contrary. The author is absolutely frank about his shortcomings but the whole story is told with genuine simplicity and with a sense of fairness and tells of his personal adventures, without specially stressing them as hazardous, and the book reveals a young man of daring, of the highest personal courage and as having the stuff that makes for future greatness.

Churchill also wrote another revealing book called "Great Contemporaries" in which he gives intimate, personal sketches of the great statesmen and military leaders with whom he was associated in the first World War. This is a work of great literary as well as historical merit. It is in Churchill's best style and will well repay anyone who reads it. It is quite different from his memoirs yet quite revealing as to Churchill.

All Americans are proud of this great Englishman who is so markedly and proudly half-American and the reading of these two books will enhance the reputation of the great British premier among us, if that be possible.

Mrs. Roosevelt

I have noticed from time to time criticisms in the press about Mrs. Roosevelt's activities, and I would like to reply to them.

What have the critics done to compare with the magnificent work that Mrs. Roosevelt has done? Mrs. Roosevelt has busied herself with the problems of the masses. If she doesn't help the masses, who are going to pack the guns?

It is the masses who make the world. Do the critics and parasites have any intention of applying for combat service? No!

Mrs. Roosevelt has not been sick a single day of the nine years that she has occupied the White House. Well, who on the outside has a right to tell her that she is tired? Wise women are not often sick or tired.

Mrs. Roosevelt has done more than any President's wife has ever done. She has done more than any woman in ancient, medieval or modern history. Not only has she gone to investigate conditions among the masses but she has written of her activities. And it is this indefatigable will to do that has made the critics of the Kent and Pegler school of thought tired. Mrs. Roosevelt is the only person in history that I have known who resembles Julius Caesar. He not only waged wars but he wrote of his activities.

Why should Mrs. Roosevelt have to take orders? Orders? From what competent source? Wise women don't take orders. They keep open minds to suggestions, but orders, never!

The masses want Mrs. Roosevelt and Mr. LaGuardia to continue with our home defense or we will have none. Millions of us admire and esteem Mrs. Roosevelt, for she is a loyal democrat and a true humanitarian. MRS. M. E. HOLLEY.

Won't Move

I'm interested in your new subject, "Pick Your Parasite." One may differ in definition of a word, yet in this case we may say it is an obsequious sycophant who lives at another's expense, as for example Senators and Representatives who have attained the doddering or tottering age, and whose thoughts come slowly. All such should be retired on half pay. Otherwise it can not be said that we are being consistent. For they retire civil service workers at 70, who are generally doing some simple routine work not demanding overmuch strain upon brain power. And this without taking into consideration physical or mental condition. I believe this is not reasonable, in fact it is downright damnable.

By an Act of Congress, I was retired some ten years back, so it would take a large act to put me back, and a ruling of the Supreme Court to put me out of town. No other person or group has that power as long as I behave properly. I do not work nor have any intention in that direction. So what?

There are some groups, who while not actually being parasites, come pretty near the ragged edge. I refer to that humorous bunch, who as colonels, majors, captains, etc., are strutting around town in full uniform for the duration to save their hides; while for any work that they are supposed to do, we have citizens far better fitted.

Move The Veterans Bureau

In all the lists for prospective evacuees from Washington, I find no mention of the Veterans Bureau. Why is this? It is not doing work for the present war. It occupies a large building that could house many offices, and as many employes whose living quarters could be used for defense workers. It's work is not dependent upon other bureaus.

CURIOUS.

The Post Impressionist

Who's Shepherd?

Perhaps the time has come to say something about our Mr. Shepherd, Mr. Shepherd in bronze, who stares ahead into the north; the unheroic lord of the small triangular park in front of the District Building.

I first looked on him two years ago. No prancing charger for Mr. Shepherd, none of the dressing of war to make him the equal in metal of Gen. Sherman, caught in his mold at the Treasury corner. Nor had the sculptor been a poet with the figure of Mr. Shepherd. His bullet head is set without much neck on a figure expanded by the Chesapeake Bay oysters and terrapin that came before the wild duck and wine buckets of the gay nineties dinner.

Who, then, pray, was Mr. Shepherd? Where was he in the history books that he should stand in so central and busy a place in the Nation's Capital? The granite base gave no clew—only the name "Shepherd."

For a year or more I have looked at him often. My work takes me past him in the early morning when the Avenue is quiet. I have seen him silly in the night with starlings in his hair. I have seen the green of corroding discoloration streak his face, spread over his shoulders and drip down his girth. And I have thought: "Look, old boy, they gave you a very bad break, with your pot belly and frock coat, and no inscription at your feet to defend you. No statue can hold its ground against that."

I asked this person and that: You know Washington. Who is Shepherd? Shepherd who? Why, the guy whose statue is out there in the triangle in front of the District Building. Search me. Never knew it was there.

It is not that Mr. Shepherd preyed on my mind. It is just that I passed him so often in the silence of early morning and late at night. As I bent through the sleet of a February dawn it was natural to say to him, "Nasty night, eh, Shep?" For Shep, crowned with snow, could look very miserable after such a night.

Then it befell that he was revealed to me in the barrenness of a few facts and figures, with a foot-note plainly indicating he had been a scoundrel! Shep, sturdy in one of our best park triangles, once a scoundrel?

So said the heavy volume I was reading, H. P. Caemmerer's "Washington, the National Capital." Look at the swift, condemning piece of biography: "Driven from the city, he went to Mexico, accumulated a fortune, returning later to Washington."

How could such a thing be? Read further, and Shep becomes A. R. Shepherd, a first citizen of the District ten years after the Civil War. Alexander Robey Shepherd, birthplace Washington, D. C. In 1871 he begins to move through the city's history.

Washington was then much less than the beautiful city Maj. l'Enfant had put down on paper. Its streets were muddy or dusty avenues: no drainage carried away the slops tossed out on the thoroughfares. There were few trees to shade the stroller. The stains left by a departing Federal Army were to be seen everywhere. Alexander Robey Shepherd sat on the city's governing council, these things on his mind.

In 1871 he was made vice president and executive officer of a new Board of Public Works. It was authorized that Washington's funded debt of four million dollars be raised to ten million. "Openly, courageously and with dictatorial abandon," Citizen Shepherd went to work.

Look how he went to work. George Rothwell Brown wrote: "With czarlike zeal he tore up the tracks of the railroad which crossed Pennsylvania Avenue at the foot of Capitol Hill . . . Before the dew was off the grass in the morning he supervised the tearing down of the old Northern Liberty Market house on the square where the Carnegie Library now stands . . ."

Good old Shep.

Ruthless, they say, was the word for "Boss" A. R. He improved 180 of the 300 miles of half-finished Washington streets. He paved the avenues in the thickly settled sections. He laid down 128 miles of sidewalks, threw up 3000 gas lamps and set aside parks. He filled in Tiber Creek, whose stench and mosquitoes blew freely into the White House. Shep forced through sewers. He planted 60,000 trees, many to shade the very downtown streets.

Sixty thousand trees! Shep, if you have eaten and drunk well and built a big house in your day, you have deserved some of it for the trees.

Did I say a big house? You may see it for yourself, still standing on the northeast corner of K Street, facing Farragut Square. Part of the house has been made over for the Troika, and shops form its base; but stand off in the park and you'll see it was a fancy house.

You will remember that Washington's funded debt was to be increased from four million dollars to not more than ten. Mr. Shepherd poured out the six million. Bonds were issued, taxes piled up "to the point of confiscation," and "Boss" Shepherd was "banished" from the city.

Why? Hadn't Shep been O. K.? Let's see. By 1874 the cries of waste against Mr. Shepherd could not be silenced. Congress looked into his bookkeeping. The "Boss" had increased the bonded debt of Washington to 22 million dollars! Twelve million more than the law allowed!

This, then, was the price of the 60,000 trees proud along the avenues and streets. Lightning played around Shep's head. "Driven from the city, he went to Mexico, accumulated a fortune, returning later to Washington."

On May 3, 1909, Shep began his first spring in front of the District Building, when his figure was unveiled fresh to the sky. The cost of the statue was $10,192.67, the record says; money raised by public subscription. The sculptor was U. S. J. Dunbar.

Mr. Dunbar, may I ask you this? Supposing you had quoted round figures for your work, say, added $7.33 to your bill, and chiseled below the "Shepherd" on the base the inscription, "Planter of Washington Trees." Then the Sunday strollers of the past 33 years might have pierced the mystery of Shep's ceaseless, paunchy vigil over Washington's Northwest.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Friend Or Foe?

MANY DELICATE and perplexing questions arise in this war when it comes to deciding who is really friend and who is really foe.

The questions arise for the State Department as regards some foreign governments, and as regards many organized groups of foreign nationals. They arise for the Department of Justice and the Treasury in regard to many groups and individuals in the United States—some of them aliens, some of them naturalized citizens, and some native-born American citizens.

Just because the ordinary rules do not fit all the facts, much wisdom, much information and much knowledge of the world today are needed if justice is to be done, if the security of the state is to be protected against its enemies and its power reinforced by its friends.

THE ANCIENT AMERICAN rule is to assume that the allegiance of each citizen of a state is to the government of that state. Thus the citizens of an enemy state are, according to the rules, all of them enemy aliens. The citizens of an allied state are, according to the rules, all of them friendly aliens. The citizens of a neutral state are all of them neutral aliens. The citizens of the United States are all loyal citizens.

This rule, that legal citizenship determines a man's allegiance, is, of course, fundamental in the American conception of things. For since we are historically a new Nation, which has been forming on new soil out of successive waves of immigration, we have long insisted on what is called the right of expatriation and have repeatedly and in the most unqualified terms insisted that a person can have only one allegiance; that is, to the state of which he is a citizen.

The American doctrine, as stated, for example, by the Secretary of State in 1884, is that "this Government recognizes neither by its laws nor its practices any distinction between a native and a naturalized citizen." The corollary of this doctrine is that neither by its laws nor its practices does the United States recognize any distinction, among those who are legally citizens of a foreign state.

THE DIFFICULT PROBLEMS of the present war arise from the fact that in practice this doctrine does not fit all cases. Thus consider some of the situations arising from Hitler's conquests in continental Europe. Austria is, according to Nazi law, part of the German Reich. But according to American policy Austria is a victim of illegal aggression, and we do not recognize Austria as part of the German Reich. Are those who held Austrian citizenship prior to 1938 to be treated as enemy aliens? If yes, we do injustice to many who are in fact the sworn enemies of our enemies. If not, how are we to distinguish friendly from unfriendly Austrians?

Czechoslovakia is another victim of Nazi aggression, and according to the rule the citizens of the Czechoslovak state as it existed in 1939 are friendly aliens. But among them are the Sudeten Germans of Bohemia, and among the Sudeten Germans are some of the most virulent Nazis in Europe. There are many anomalies of this sort—for example, Poles who were German citizens because they lived in Silesia, and Germans of Danzig who are treated as Poles.

There are Frenchmen who, according to the rules, are neutral aliens. For France, according to a somewhat questionable ruling, though not at peace with Germany but only under armistice, is allowed to act as a neutral. On the other hand there are the Free French who are still at war with Germany and who are now at war with Japan. Yet under State Department policy it is hard to say what their status is either in the African territory which they control or in the immensely important Pacific islands, or here in the United States.

WE HAVE THEN a whole series of difficult cases arising out of the fact that Hungary, Croatia, Slovakia and Bulgaria have declared war upon the United States while the United States has not deigned to reply by recognizing the existence of a state of war. Does this mean that during the war and after we shall not distinguish between the Hungarian and the Bulgarian governments for example, which fight against us and against the United Nations, and let us say, Greece and Serbia which have fought so gallantly on our side?

The problem is extremely difficult and of much practical importance. For it raises the question as to whether a nation at war, as we now are, is to take the line that there is not necessarily a reward for helping us nor necessarily a penalty for fighting us. The position we take on this matter may have a great bearing on the action of the South American republics, and on others.

THEN THERE IS THE FACT—unpleasant but inescapable—that American citizenship, whether acquired by birth or by naturalization, is not an infallible guaranty of loyalty. We know that some of the most dangerous Axis agents, and some of their most subversive organizations, have been recruited from naturalized citizens. We know also that there have been native citizens who have worked for the Axis.

Their allegiance has not been guaranteed by their citizenship and yet much of their conduct, though extremely dangerous to the security of the Nation, is not to be defined as treason.

These are some, but by no means all, of the problems in this field, and obviously there is no simple solution. Certainly I am not pretending to offer one here, but only to indicate the nature of the problem, and to suggest that it be considered as a whole—perhaps by some joint committee of the Cabinet—so that a coherent policy may be worked out instead of leaving the matter to the rulings of minor officials in several different departments of the Government.

Cautious Chile

By P. F. J. Enryb

Her Brave Vote

THE PRESIDENTIAL elections in Chile have gone the way at least 19 of the 20 Pan-American Republics—not to mention Canada—wanted them to go, and by an apparently "safe" majority, which is all to the good, and pretty brave of the Chilean people, considering the geographical position, the shape, and other conditions pertaining to Chile. But then, the Chileans have amply demonstrated their courage many times in their somewhat turbulent history, and probably won't hesitate to do so again, if called upon by destiny. But nobody outside Chile can blame them for being cautious this time, and by tradition they are the most conservative South Americans.

Got your map handy? Chile looks like an attenuated string bean, doesn't it? The approximate dimentions are 2700 miles long, from 70 to 270 miles wide, and 290,000 square miles in area. The republic is bounded on the east by the Andes, surpassed in majesty only by the Himalayas, and on the west by the icy waters of the Pacific, chilled by the Humboldt current sweeping up from Antarctica. The climatic conditions vary intensely from the arid, torrid deserts of the northern section, through the lush valleys of the central section, to the dreary wastes of the sub-Antarctic southern section. In this odd-shaped country, and mostly in its central portion, dwell a scant five million Chileans, nearly a million of them in their charming capital, Santiago. Just for comparison, imagine the population of California scattered in a terrain extending from Juneau to San Diego, and average ing 125 miles (only) back from the coast! What a headache, what a nightmare it must be to the Chilean general staff to plan continuous and ultimately successful defense of the nation.

BUT THE CHILEANS have defended their country before now; they are a free, proud people. Some aspects of their early history curiously parallel ours: their revolutionary war lasted eight long years, as ours did; and they are about the only other daughter-republic that fought a second war with the mother-country, decades after achieving independence, as we did. As in nearly every other Latin-American country, their constitution is modeled on ours, but with some differences. Their executive is stronger than ours, or than ours used to be! Chile is not a federated republic; the Chilean provinces are scarcely more than geographical terms. The judical system is more nearly French than North American. It used to be said that Chile was not really a republic at all, but an oligarchy of wealth, which was perhaps true until ten years ago, or thereabouts. But modern Chile is a republic, for better, for worse. They no longer handpick and groom their Presidents, as was their wont. Time was when each succeeding President was chosen from among the middle-aged public servants who had come up through the ranks, starting as junior secretaries, then ministers abroad, mayors, ambassadors, members of the chamber, or the senate, then cabinet rank, and finally, cosmopolite, linguistic, mature, sophisticate Presidents! It was a pretty good system.

Chileans like Argentineans and Uruguayans are of almost 100 per cent pure European descent, but not exclusively of Spanish descent. British, French, German and Italian immigration has leavened the mass, influenced the national character, and modified the manner of speaking and spelling of the original Spanish language. Some towns and sections in southern Chile are as "German" as Hoboken or Milwaukee—just about as "German" perhaps, for I've always had the impression that the Chilean-born among them were Chileans first! Although the United States nearly (but not quite) fought a full-dress war with Chile 50 years ago, nevertheless Chile has good reason to be grateful to the U. S. A., and knows it, for the Panama Canal made Chile accessible to Europe and the rest of the world. American influence pops up unexpectedly, sometimes. I once heard a street-vender calling out monotonously "ottes dogges, ottes dogges." (He was selling sausages on a roll.) Conversely, Chile has reason not to be grateful to Germany, for German chemists created artificial nitrates, and ruined Chile's monopoly export which used to enable her to live almost tax-free.

THE ONLY absolutely unconquerable Indians in the Americas inhabit Chile, the Araucanians; even the great Inca Empire was never able to subdue them, and neither were the Spanish Conquistadores. They now live a quasi-independent existence in their own reservations, bloody but unbowed, except that they "consent" to make military service for the republic.

And speaking of military service, as who doesn't nowadays, the forces of Chile, while by no means the biggest in Latin America, are among the "smartest." The army is German-trained, the navy British-trained. The constabulary are probably the best in the Americas, North, Central or South. The officer-academies are excellent. Morale is high, discipline is strict (as evinced by punctilious saluting), drill is snappy, uniforms are of good quality and well tailored. The ships of the navy are spotless, in contrast to some others I could mention. On September 18, which is to Chile what July 4 is to us, they turn out military and naval reviews that, size for size, can't be beat. And the enthusiasm of the crowds isn't feigned, or forced: they really cheer.

Size for size, that's the trouble! That's why Chile was cautious this time! That 2700-mile coastline will take a lot of defending. Those German settlers in the southern section will take a lot of watching. The German-trained army, the British-trained navy, and the best-trained constabulary in the Americas may have their hands full trying to implement the defense plans of the Chilean general staff, before this year is out. That's why conservative Chile waited to vote on it, first.

Strategic Metals

By Frank Henius

Latin America's Vital Reserves

BESIDES TUNGSTEN, tin and manganese, there are other mineral products in Latin America, which will create revenues for their producers and war material for us. One of these is mica, hard to get while the Japanese are advancing in Malaysia, for our principal source of industrial mica is British India. This Indian product, which is white, and when split into thin sheets serves to make up the so-called mica board used for many radio parts, electrical appliances, magnetos, etc. While it is possible that a satisfactory substitute may be finally invented and manufactured, the heat-resisting sheet mica and block mica, which alone are used for strategic purposes, can fortunately also be found in Brazil and Argentina. Although production in both countries has been tremendously increased of late, it does not fill all our needs, but it is nevertheless to be noted with satisfaction that the inability to ship to former customers—especially France, Italy, Germany and Japan—will set free additional quantities of sheet and block mica for shipment to our country. If the necessary production and labor required for the splitting of the blocks for sheet manufacture can be secured and production increased, it is quite likely that a great proportion of our requirements can be supplied by our neighbors.

Platinum, known to many of our fair ladies, is strategically important on account of its resistance to high temperatures and chemicals, which makes it strategically important in the chemical and electrical fields. Colombia almost exclusively mines this metal in Latin America and is the third largest producer after Canada and Russia, followed by South Africa and our own United States. Latin America will therefore play a very important role in the supply of this precious metal, which it is almost impossible to get across the Atlantic.

The recent drives for aluminum have reminded all citizens of the importance of this product of bauxite ore, well known and used in almost every household, but now needed for our airplane, munition and other military production. In Latin America, besides the Dutch-owned Sudinam and British Guiana, Brazil alone possesses important bauxite deposits, which will supplement the production of these two South American possessions as well as our own production.

While Brazil is the only important independent Latin republic producing bauxite, Mexico holds the same position with regard to graphite. While we are the largest producer of the synthetic product, we depend on imports for natural graphite used in the iron and steel industry besides, of course, in pencils and stove polishes, paints and carbons for batteries. The strategic use of this mineral is principally in foundry facings and crucibles. Our own production will no doubt be increasingly supplemented by shipments from our nearest southern neighbor, who also leads in our Latin supply of another important mineral, antimony, which, besides its use in enamels, paints, medicines and matches, is used for shrapnel balls, bullet cores, and detonating caps. The principal producer, China, will probably not be able to keep up regular shipments, and here again Latin America will come to our rescue, for production in Bolivia and Mexico already exceeds that of China, to which we can add shipments from Peru, Argentina and Chile. Mexico is also the sole important Latin producer of quicksilver, the popular name for mercury. Produced from ore-containing cinnabar, the mercury sulphide, or from natural mercury, the heavy silvery metal, which at ordinary temperatures, is liquid, is used in explosives and ammunition. While we produce the metal in the West, Mexico will help to supplant former imports from Spain, Italy and other European countries, and we will also be able to receive shipments from Bolivia, Peru and Venezuela.

WE ALL KNOW, of course, that copper, besides its commercial and industrial uses, serves in the manufacture of munitions and that some of the great producers are in Latin America, Chile, Mexico, Peru, Cuba and Bolivian production which can be supplemented by development of deposits in Brazil, Costa Rica and Guatemala. While we ourselves are the leading producers, our neighbors are the leading exporters of the metal, and we will benefit by their inability to ship to the former European markets.

Three other ores are found in our hemisphere which are essential to our war production: zinc, zirconium and vanadium. Half of the zinc, of which we are the largest producer and consumer, used for galvanizing or zinc coating of steel, which, on our farms, serves for outdoor use of sheets and wire. Brass (combined with copper) takes another quarter production, while the rest is used in die castings, dry batteries, oil cloth, linoleum, glass, weather-stripping, oxide and many other ways. Strategically it is most important as brass. Mexico leads the neighbor republics in the export of zinc, followed by Peru, Bolivia and Argentina. Zinc ore, contrary to other base metals which are smelted in large furnaces and tapped out molten, is either distilled or vaporized and then condensed, or dissolved in acid and then electrically precipitated, the principal by-product of the zinc smelting and oxide manufacture being sulphuric acid, mainly used by the chemical and oil refining industries.

Zirconium ore, and its two minerals, the silicate and the oxide, is found in the form of beach sand, which has been recovered in small quantities in the U. S. A. Militarily, it serves in flashlight powders and ammunition primers, and indirectly in the production of steel and as a hard abrasive. Brazil is the chief producer to the south, where contrary to all other producing countries such as Australia, British India and West Africa the ore is obtained from inland deposits. Vanadium is principally important in the manufacture of steel, alloys and chemicals. Peru is the leading exporter of this ore, which also will come to us from Mexico, which formerly shipped its output to Europe. Our own ore and that from Peru and Mexico will probably meet all our requirements, especially since production all around is being rapidly increased.

THERE ARE two nonmetallic minerals which are of considerable importance to us—quartz crystals and diamonds. The crystals, also known as Brazilian pebble, as Brazil is the only commercial source, are strategically valuable because of their electrical and optical properties. They are used for radio and television, telephone, depth sounding and other precision instruments of all kinds, including gun sights, prisms, lenses, scientific and laboratory equipment. As the entire world is practically supplied by Brazil, where we exclusively buy them, generally on the basis of bids emanating from the Procurement Division of the United States Treasury, and as so many export markets are lost, we will probably be able to obtain all we need from our Portuguese-speaking neighbors. Diamonds, the hardest substance known to man, and the most pleasing to woman, serve industrially in many ways. They are especially valuable in the automobile and aircraft industries. As Africa cannot now ship regularly, Brazil, and to some extent Venezuela, Mexico and Colombia, will be our chief suppliers of the millions of carats we use yearly.

Both iodine and sodium nitrate come principally from a Latin republic, Chile. The former is a by-product of the nitrate, principally used for fertilizer, explosives and munitions. While synthetic nitrogen production has greatly decreased exports of the natural product, recent reorganization of the industry has steadily increased sales, and Chile will supply all we may need, provided there is no interference with shipping on the West Coast. Iodine is a by-product of the large nitrate industry in Chile, and the greater the production of the latter, the greater the quantities of iodine available to us. As an antiseptic, as a very important sensitizing agent in photography which plays such an essential part in modern warfare, as a much needed material in analytical chemistry, iodine is definitely a strategic product and here again Latin America is the main source of the world's supply and therefore of greatest importance to us, while the Chileans themselves will create additional revenues by our increased needs and imports.

Thus Latin-America will become the raw-material producer and storehouse for the products of mine, forest and field which we will need in the industrial conversion of all these good neighbor products into war material, to conduct our battles and enable the other republics to defend the hemisphere. With all tariffs abolished for Latin American strategic materials, with our own United States cooperating technically and financially in the increase of quantities, bettering of qualities, developing of new products, in harvesting, collecting and mining as well as transportation, the concerted war and defense effort of this hemisphere will be the most colossal joint effort of 22 nations the world has ever seen. One hemisphere, one purpose, one enemy: This has definitely proved that the good neighbors have become brothers-in-arms.

Army, Navy Criticized

Concentrations Hit

THE HOUSE yesterday stamped final approval on the big 26½-billion-dollar naval appropriation bill amid criticism of Army and Navy officials for alleged vulnerability of concentrated facilities to bombing attacks.

Representative Scrugham (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Naval Appropriations Subcommittee, said aeronautical chiefs "have been remiss in failing to fully recognize the military importance of dive and torpedo bombers, by use of which the havoc wrought at Pearl Harbor was largely accomplished."

Scrugham said "the policy still persists of crowding almost unprotected facilities into a few limited areas, ostensibly for easier protection from sabotage."

"Hangars, landing fields and even manufacturing facilities, when closely packed together, only invite attack and destruction, as conclusively proven by results in Hawaii," the ranking appropriations committeeman said in an extension of remarks in the Congressional Record.

SCRUGHAM said the biggest naval appropriation in history, providing for more than 25,000 additional naval planes and expanded construction of war and auxiliary vessels, "if wisely spent and used, should insure this Nation the full ultimate mastery."

But he said mastery in the wars of the future will be settled by low-flying airplanes. Although the dive bomber was largely originated by our naval and Marine Corps fliers, "the responsible officers seem to have taken but few steps to prevent wholesale destruction of naval facilities from such sources," he said.

Scrugham, whose remarks were confined to the printed Record, also emphasized "the obvious need for more unified command for both area and task forces" and said the same applied to procurement and production of munitions.

THE CONFERENCE bill, which goes back to the Senate for final confirming action, was approved in 15 minutes, much of which was consumed in a Republican attack on lend-lease policies.

As the bill authorizes the President to lend-lease ships appropriated for in the measure, and up to 2½ billion dollars in other war materials, Representative Ditter (Republican), of New York, contended "we are decreasing the activites of the lend-lease organization" and "we should proceed to tear down that organization and thus cut administrative costs."

But Ditter said the minority had contributed wholeheartedly in steering the big appropriation bill through Congress.

REPRESENTATIVE RICH (Republican), of Pennsylvania, said that with the lend-lease authority in the bill the President has been given 21 billion dollars to advance to other Nations and "instead of gratitude America will be damned in the end because we can't keep it up."

Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, said he favored such aid as can be given other nations but there was something that should be said "and said as strongly as I can possibly say it—I do not want anyone to get the idea that the major brunt of this war will not have to be borne by any but our own soldiers and sailors, by our own guns and ships and tanks."

U. S. Takes Over Eight French Merchant Ships

The Maritime Commission announced yesterday that eight French merchant ships laid up in American ports are being requisitioned for use by American companies.

Six of the vessels are freighters and two are tankers. The ships, their gross tonnage and present location, follow:

Fort Royal, 3485, New York; Michigan, 6419, New Orleans; Touraine, 6589, tanker, New Orleans; Sheherazade, 13,467, tanker, Mobile; Vannes, 2609, Los Angeles; Wisconsin, 6062, Los Angeles; Alencon, 2327, San Francisco; Nemours, 673, Cristobal.

Several other French ships, including the liner Normandie, were taken into protective custody by the Coast Guard some time ago. The Normandie has been acquired by the Navy. There has been no announcement as to the disposition of the other ships.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Henry Didn't Want To Do It

ADOLF, MY BOY, if you could see what I have been seeing around Detroit, you would get yourself a quarter's worth of clothesline and do it today.

PEGLER

You think you are a pretty good man at war production, don't you? Well, and so you are, in your league, but your league is strictly leaky-roof.

You have heard of the great automobile industry of Detroit, of course. Biggest in the world, you remember, and your attempt to imitate it with your trashy little people's wagon was an expression of your envy and awe.

Great factories sprawled all over Detroit and countless little feeder factories spotted around. Passenger cars, trucks, highway freighters and buses streaming out of the doors and away in numbers beyond belief. But you don't need a description of the Detroit motor industry. You know what it was, and the point that will be of special interest to you is that today it is absolutely kaput, finished. It has been wound up for duration and the plants are being dismantled to build planes, tanks, engines for both planes and tanks, guns and other fighting tools which will be turned against you and your Japanese allies, and some of them are already building these things. Not only that, Adolf, but the Americans are building, in Detroit alone, new plants in your honor which will at least double the fabulous Detroit motor center which you and the rest of the world have heard so much about.

THIS IS altogether aside from the other plants which are turning out war tools in the great facilities of that silly, futile, bickering American Republic which you challenged, with your colossal but relatively puny machine shop. This is apart from the West Coast plane production, too. This is just Detroit that you are hearing about. It is Detroit times two and entirely devoted to the manufacture of a licking for your chosen people of the master race and the Japanese.

Just wait until you get Henry Ford on your tail. Go on, laugh. Sure, he said he could produce a thousand planes a day, which was a meaningless remark and better unsaid, because he meant he could do it if he didn't have to make frequent changes and only after long preparation. But Adolf, when old Henry actually sets himself a task and starts doing, he always delivers, and he is now making planes, engines and tanks, and on the side is running a big school for a steady turnover of young Navy flatheads who come in more or less green and go out so well trained in the habits and makeup of various machines that they qualify for rates and extra pay almost automatically.

THAT PLANT is really something, Adolf. You are a pretty good man, with your petulant bang and your idiotic mustache, and when you clap hands, your faceless people give guns, submarines, planes, bombs and all such, but pretty good isn't good enough. Our Henry is special. That plant of his, no kidding, Adolf, is the damnedest colossus the industrial world has ever known.

Less than a year ago it was just country, with trees on it, and today it is a huge factory and a flying field, all new and all special jobs, already at work on his program.

I wouldn't kid you, Adolf, or the American people. He isn't booting bombers off the assembly lines as he ticked off Fords in the old plants, but he is going to outspeed all the old specialized aviation companies when he gets going, and he will pick up speed month by month.

You will be hearing from Henry, Adolf, and bear in mind, when you are talking about the efficiency of republics next time, that he didn't start clearing off the trees until late last March and did it with his own money, too, without waiting for formal contracts with the Government. Man, when Henry gets those dies he sure do make his point and, remember, too, that in his spare time he was still turning out cars and doing some tanks and building another stupendous structure which is now actually putting out engines for another type of ship, and not mere samples, either, but enough of them to be described as production.

AND THE strange thing is, Hitler, that he didn't want to do this, at all. He doesn't hold with war at all, and the poetic passage that he is fondest of is the one that says: "Till the war-drum throbb'd no longer and the battle-flags were furled, in the parliament of man, the federation of the world." But he decided that you were a warmonger and so he is going to burn you down and it is going to be just too bad for the German people, whom he regards as brothers, that they happen to be working for you.

No question about it now, Adolf. This American industrial war effort, at last, is something really super and you might save the German people considerable grief if you should get that clothesline and do the human race that favor, today.

Profiteering And War Frauds Against U. S. Facing Action

The Department of Justice yesterday set up machinery for punishment of war profiteers while Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, Naval Affairs Committee chairman, drafted legislation which would make defrauders of the Government subject to forfeiture of their citizenship, just as "deserters from the Army or Navy."

In line with his announced intention of legislating against excessive profits, Walsh presented his committee with a bill which would punish with maximum prison term of ten years or $10,000 fine, with the added wartime penalty of loss of citizenship, all Government contractors who:

(1) Make false statements in connection with Government claims or settlement of Government contracts; (2) make "unreasonable or exorbitant" expenditures for labor, materials or services used in performance of cost-plus-fixed fee contracts; (3) make false record or affidavit with respect to performance of contracts.

If the provision providing for the forfeiture of United States citizenship is enacted into law, it will place the contractor or other persons found guilty of defrauding the Government in time of war in a similar category as deserters from the Army or Navy," Walsh declared. He said he believed his committee would act favorably on the bill.

In the Department of Justice, Attorney General Francis Biddle set up a War Frauds Unit to investigate and prosecute "complaints of collusive bidding, false representations to Federal agencies in connection with Government contracts, profiteering, and all other charges of frauds upon the Government in connection with prosecution of the war."

Biddle announced the new unit will be headed by Fowler Hamilton, special assistant to the Attorney General, who will function under the department's antitrust and criminal divisions.

Chinese Getting Army Ready for Major Offensive

Chungking, Feb. 4 (U.P.)—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's armies rapidly are getting in shape for major offensives against Japan with war equipment provided by the United States, high Chinese military officials revealed today.

The offensives will be on a far greater scale, they said, than the counterattack that crushed the Japanese at Changsha last month. The needed artillery and other equipment arrived safely before the Pacific war started, it was said.

Dutch Could Have Saved Securities, Official Declares

By the Associated Press

A Treasury official told the Senate Naval Committee yesterday that the Nazis seized 100 million dollars of negotiable securities when they invaded Holland, although steps might have been taken to avert the seizure.

Stephen J. Spingarn, special assistant to the general counsel of the Treasury, told the committee that because of this lesson the United States applied the "scorched earth" policy to securities, gold, paper money, coins, jewels and other valuables in the Philippines long before the Japanese occupation.

The night Germany invaded the Netherlands, Spingarn related, Dutch diplomats went to the home of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau for advice on how to save their securities in Holland.

Morgenthau, Spingarn related, suggested that they be burned in the presence of a United States consular official.

The witness added that the Dutch were "timid" about destroying the securities, and uncertain whether the Germans would take the country, and they fell into Nazi hands.

Fighting Artists Paint Murals at Fort Belvoir

IN THE "GALLERY"—A corner of the barracks at Fort Belvoir has been converted into an art gallery by soldier-artists who salvaged a few yards of revetment cloth to be used for back drops. Revetment cloth is a material used with chicken wire by the Army to retain trench walls. Left to right—Private A. B. Stevenson, Maj. J. A. Pearce, morale officer, and Private Charles Gerhart

War and art are not necessarily incompatible. Recognizing this, Army officers have given hearty sanction to an art program at nearby Fort Belvoir, where a half dozen budding Stuarts and Whistlers (buck privates of the line; $21 per month) are wielding brushes and crayons when not busy learning to fight.

The result will be a distinct brightening of camp life. Murals and paintings now being executed in off-duty hours soon will adorn the walls of recreational halls and service clubs—structures which are now bleak indeed.

The artists, some of whom had gained considerable recognition before they joined the Army, also conduct art-appreciation classes. Soldiers who attend these not only enlarge their knowledge about the history of American art and artists, but pick up a lot of knowledge about military camouflage.

In one section of the barracks in which their "studio" happens to be located the soldiers demonstrated their ingenuity in constructing a gallery where their artistry might be displayed. Drapes that hide pine-studded walls upon which pictures are hung were shaped from revetment cloth salvaged from a trench construction job.

Active with others on this Belvoir project is Private Willard W. Cummings whom we found busy with a preliminary charcoal sketch for a recreation hall mural. Cummings studied fine arts at Yale after which he was tutored by Laurent and other noted artists. His paintings have been exhibited throughout the country. His canvas, "Nude with Red Slippers" shown at the Corcoran biennial last summer, was welcomed by critics and by invitation is now on exhibition in the Chicago Art Institute. Although only 26 years old, Cummings has held one-man shows at Smith College Museum of Art; Swett Memorial Gallery, Portland, Me.; Marie Harriman Gallery, N. Y., and Vose Galleries, Boston, Mass. Among his best recognized work are portraits of Katherine Cornell and Bishop Spellman.

Other members of Uncle Sam's Army, all privates, assisting with the volunteer program, are R. E. Bossard, Allenhurst, N. J., who studied at Chouinard, Los Angeles and San Carlos Academy, Mexico; A. B. Stevenson, Germantown, Pa., who came to the Army while enjoying a scholarship at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts; Albert Lukavitch, New Haven, Conn., who studied at Yale before entering Western State, Colo.; and Charles Gerhart, who excels in portrait pointing. David Finley, director, National Gallery of Art, contributed to the success of the art program by donating some much needed materials.

Chorus Girls' Figures Add Up Better Than Federal Estimates

New York, Feb. 4 (Wide World).—Note to Secretary Wickard: The Broadway chorus girls are pretty upset about your Department of Agriculture.

A few days ago the department put out a set of figures indicating that the average American female was not only on the dumpy side, but something of a hippy creature, too.

Somebody had measured 14,000 women in seven States and the District of Columbia, and deduced that the average woman is 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 133½ pounds, has a 29.15-inch waist, 35.62-inch bust, and hips measuring an ample 38.62 inches.

This report, Mr. Secretary, was circulated among the girls in the chorus line of Eddie Cantor's "Banjo Eyes," and they stormed around with tape measures and rulers in a revival of chorus-girl measuring reminiscent of the Earl Carroll-Flo Ziegfeld-George White era.

Cantor aided in the dimension taking and discovered Adele Jergens, of New York, is most likely the average chorus girl. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, has a 22½-inch waist, a 34-inch bust and streamlined 34-inch hips.

So you see, Mr. Secretary, these measurements don't stack up with your figures. But probably chorus girls aren't average, anyway.

Auto-Driving Students Indifferent About Tires

AUTOS ON R STREET NEAR WESTERN HIGH

Tire rationing has had no appreciable effect—at least, not yet—on automobile driving by Washington's high school and college students, a cross-sampling indicated yesterday.

"A slight decline has been brought about in the number of cars used since we began encouraging students to double up and to take buses," said an American University official. "However, there has been no great change since the tire situation became acute. In a week or so we plan to take a count of autos on the campus."

Norman J. Nelson, principal of Woodrow Wilson High School, estimated that from 12 to 20 per cent of the 1800 enrollment are driving cars to classes. This is exclusive of those who are riding us passengers.

"We have been hoping for a diminution in the number, due to the rubber shortage, but it has not come yet," said Nelson.

George Washington University said it is keeping no figures but doubts that driving to and from classes has fallen off much.

LINE OF CARS AT AMERICAN UNIVERSITY

Catholic University reported a noticeable drop in student driving, but it attributed it to the new cross-town bus service started last month which enables students living in Chevy Chase, Tenleytown and American University Park to get to the C. U. campus in less than half the time it formerly took.

Principal Frank C. Daniel of McKinley High School said he had observed no change in the volume of cars driven to and from the institution. This in spite of the fact that students have been urged to double up on car use where possible.

"From the looks of some of the autos, it won't be long until they drop out of circulation anyway," Daniel said with a chuckle.

John Paul Collins, principal of Anacostia High, had essentially the same story to tell.

"I have noticed, though, that three or four young men who used to drive are now walking to school," he said.

Wilson Teachers College reported that its students' parking problems are the same as ever. Dunbar High School disclosed that the situation is no different from what it was before tire rationing.

Softly Tailored Four-Way-Suit

A trim, little suit is what every woman is seeking this spring. For those who want to emerge gently into a suit, here is a softly tailored version at left. With it comes a print blouse and a matching print skirt—all in one outfit and called a "four way suit." This comes in beige, blue and gay-colored wools. It was one of the costumes shown recently in New York at a Latin-American fair

Printed Jerseys Back With Splash

Jerseys are carrying on with new vigor. Midwinter and spring collections indicate that printed jerseys will be a biggest seller. Splashy, bright prints make slim little dresses to wear under winter coats.

New additions to jersey fame are daring striped jersey torso dresses, rayon jersey combined with an exactly matching pastel in wool jersey, and newest of all chamois finish for jersey.

Some Women Need Uniforms, But Most Don't

Curtailment of the use of uniforms by nonmilitary organizations was urged recently by R. R. Guthrie, Chief of the Textile, Clothing and Leather Goods Branch of the War Production Board.

"It is not intended that all women's uniforms be eliminated," said Mr. Guthrie. "Obviously there is need for some. For instance, in the field of nursing, a white cotton uniform serves a useful purpose. But a uniform is not needed by those who make bandages; civilian dresses serve just as well. Likewise, canteen workers, who work in Army camps and in the field, need uniforms for identification purposes. The same applies to members of a motor corps.

"The suggestion has been made that there should be uniforms for women who work in factories and mills engaged in militiary production. That does not seem necessary. An arm band or an identification badge would serve the same purpose—that is, keep out of a plant or mill anyone who is not a bona fide employe.

"The production of our wool, rayon and cotton mills is needed for the armed services and essential civilian needs. If we had an unlimited supply of cloth, it might be desirable to make uniforms available for all persons not engaged in everyday civilian pursuits. But, unfortunately, that is not the situation. Our wool supply has been curtailed sharply while the demand for it has increased by heavy military requirements. There is already a strain on rayon and some forms of cotton goods, such as duck, are already short. Under the circumstances, it becomes necessary to use the cloth we have on hand in whatever manner will best contribute to winning the war."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Worried Because Her High School Age Daughter Continually Discards Old Friends for New Ones, Mother Asks How Teach Her Loyalty and Stability

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This problem concerns my daughter (whom I shall call Jane). Perhaps you can help me figure her out, so that I will know better how to handle her. Jane, who is a senior in high school, has a tendency to make friends easily, with the result that she often discards old friendships in favor of new ones, before giving herself a chance to evaluate their worth. This sometimes causes embarrassment for her, or mutual ill feeling, at a later date; besides offending tried-and-true old friends.

Her behavior applies to both boys and girls. She seems to lack a sense of loyalty, and to be unconcerned about giving credit where credit is due. She is attractive, and probably has been told so too often. She is a good student and has leadership ability. She has no bad habits, so far as I know, and disapproves of girls who drink, pet, etc.

In line with her policy, she has recently turned a cold shoulder toward a boy (call him Dan) whom she had formerly considered her very best friend. He comes from a good background, is now in college, and is said by all who know him (both old and young) to be "a swell fellow." He has gained honors of both State and national scope and is in every respect a promising young man. Until recently, Jane took pride in all his accomplishments, showed her fondness for him in a natural sort of way and (as I said) accepted him as her best friend. He has always been specially fond of Jane, and never shows any interest in any other girls.

Now, however, another boy has come into the picture; a boy with much less to his credit an dnot nearly as fine a character as Dan. As a result of her interest in him she is treating Dan in a shameful manner. Some of her girl friends have spoken to her about "how awful" she treats him. I just can't sit by and see this perfectly fine boy's feelings hurt, on account of a more or less worthless fellow. Jane seems to have no conscience in the matter. She makes no explanations. And I happen to know that the other boy has made unflattering remarks about Dan and tries to annoy him at every opportunity.

I have no desire to "matchmake" between Dan and Jane. She is much too young for that. But I would like to see her treat people decently and judge them by a sound set of values. I have talked with her along that line, but to no avail. She defends persons who are..'t proven friends of hers, and who are not the sort I would approve as her friends. I have thought of forbidding her to go out with this boy I don't care for, but I am afraid real opposition would only make matters worse.

She will be going away to college next year and I feel duty bound to give her a right slant on life before she leaves home. How can I go about this? Is it a common problem? I don't want to show too much interest in her friends, beyond making sure they come of respectable families and observe good conduct. Jane is rather high strung, has many good qualities and is ambitious generally, but she has never been an affectionate child. I have been shocked by her behavior and lack of feeling in this instance and I would like to get to the bottom of her attitude and change it. Your comment will be much appreciated. Sincerely,

BAFFLED MOTHER.

Mother's Attitude Presents Real Problem

DEAR B. M. The fact that Jane has qualities which attract Dan's steadfast loyalty, plus the fact that she did, for a long time, consider him her "very best friend," suggests that she is sound at heart; that her character and taste and judgment are essentially dependable. Her negligent attitude toward her easily made friends—whom she takes up and discards with the complacent alacrity of a child confronted with a never-ending series of new toys—is simply that of a casually self-assured "born charmer."

I daresay her sensationally high-handed treatment of Dan in recent days is motivated by defiant self consciousness, mostly directed at you—a performance "touched off" by your obvious disapproval of his rival, and ill concealed fear that she may lose Dan's devotion; and given further impetus by her friends' shrill outcries (no doubt encouraged by you) to the effect, "Oh Jane, how can you be so mean!"

Unquestionably her relationship with Dan would stand a better chance of surviving unscathed the ordeal of her passing enthusiasm for the less praiseworthy lad, if he and she had a feeling that they were not being "checked on" by others, while coping with the strange new tension in their dealings. By anxiously injecting your emotions into the situation, to the extent of censuring your daughter (at least by implication) while pleading Dan's case, you are doing more to upset than to steady the applecart.

It is the way of most adolescent sweethearts—a way which middle age forgets—to take turns in cruelly exploiting a momentary advantage in their developing relationship, while sustained by a mutual inner conviction (shared by tormentor and tormented) that the sharp words and chill glances exchanged are a surface commotion, that leaves their basic attachment substantially untouched and as securely established as ever it was. And the average stout hearted boy likes his best girl all the better, if she has the spirit to take him over the coals now and again, with a certain reckless disregard of the consequences.

It is instinctive with the male to greatly crave and cherish the girl who seems most unpredictable and elusive. So, actually, you are defeating your secret aim—which is, to stake claim to Dan as your daughter's permanent, preferred conquest—in elbowing yourself into the arena of their present conflict, in the guise of referee. And if you would dissolve her defensive attitude with regard to her less desirable acquaintances—thus leaving her free to appraise and discuss them objectively—you must abandon your erstwhile role of worriedly contemptuous critic, and comment only on the good qualities they possess. And all will possess some such qualities, however scant or vestigial.

Had you, for instance, commented on her latest beau's wit, or good looks, or high spirits or poised manner—supposing his character leaves much to be desired—she might have told you reflectively then, or a few days later: "But, mother, he isn't in the same class with Dan." If, on the contrary, you condemn his manners, appearance or intelligence, it becomes essential to her self-respect to "stand up" for him. After all, there is something about him that pleases her—and whoever tartly finds fault with him is indirectly assailing her taste and judgment; giving intolerable affront to her self esteem.

If you have a problem here, it turns on the questions of how to "handle" yourself in relation to your daughter; and not, as you think, on the question of how to "handle" your daughter, in the hope of shaping her life to a pattern that reflects your own ideas of how things ought to be. You must be prepared to bear with her; must cease striving against her, while she fumbles her way through the great adventure of "finding herself." M. H.

Menus Should Guard Health, First of All

By Ida Jean Kain

MRS. AMERICA is now buying health with her food dollars. It's because of her wise insistence on protective value that more practical progress in nutrition has been made in the past year than during the entire preceding 20.

As all good homemakers know, you have to plan before you market, and market with care to get the foods your family needs. If you are up to the minute with your nutrition, you know when fresh fruits and vegetables are good buys and when it pays to use the canned varieties. Of course, you always scan the labels on cans and packages to see just what you are getting. You know the difference in grades, so that you are sure of getting the best quality for your money, and you save on the staples by purchasing them weekly in quantity.

The protective foods you include in the family menus must always meet the minimum nutritional requirement and, if the budget will stretch that far, the maximum. Here are food lists for both the limited and the liberal budget.

Low-Cost Plan

Milk—Three to four cups daily for each child; two cups each adult.

Eggs—Three to four per week for each child and each adult.

Potatoes—Sweet or white, twice daily.

Vegetables—At least once a day, with preference given the green leafy and yellow varieties. Some should be used raw.

Fruits—Once a day and whenever possible, one that is a good source of Vitamin C.

Meat, fish or fowl—Four to six servings per week, often cooked with vegetables.

Bread and cereals—Whole grain or enriched bread at every meal; whole grain cereal once a day. Macaroni, spaghetti and rice should be used three to four times during the week.

Fats and oils—Two ounces per day, including butter or an enriched substitute. In winter, cod liver oil should be used. Allow one to two teaspoons per person. Purchased in quantity, cod liver oil averages less than three-fourths cent per teaspoon.

Sugar—In moderation. Count that in honey, jam, jelly, etc.

Liberal Menu Plan

Milk—One quart each child, one pint each adult, daily.

Eggs—One daily for each child and each adult.

Vegetables—Two to three servings daily. At least one should be either green leafy or yellow.

Potatoes—Five times a week.

Fruit—Every meal, with oranges or grapefruit or their juice at one meal.

Bread and cereals—As desired, but use whole grains.

Dried beans—About once a week.

Meat, fish or fowl—Once a day, twice if preferred.

Fats and oils—About two ounces per day in butter, cream and whole milk. In winter use some concentrated form of Vitamin D.

Sugars—In moderation.

Turn 'Crates' Into Gay Table

The bedroom glamour every woman yearns for—a rosebud chintz dressing table with matching bedspread.

Underneath the finery the table is just two wooden boxes. Like so many lovely furnishings you can make for your home, it starts with materials you may have on hand. That counts these days!

Sandpaper the outside of your boxes, line the inside with wallpaper and paint or stain the outside. For the table top, screw in place three boards.

If you use orange crates, their center divisions may serve as shelves. So you can get at these easily, attach arms to the table—two pieces of wood that swing on hinges. Then the skirt, divided in the middle, swings with them.

The skirt itself is simple. Cut it perkily full, shirr at top and around it drape in swag style wide bias strips of powder-blue chintz. If you divide the skirt place bow at center.

For the spread, you simply attach a full gathered ruffle to a center panel.

Directions for the dressing table and spread—for other lovely styles, too—are given in our 40-page booklet, "How to Make Furnishings for Your Home." Tells how to make hanging shelves, coffee table and ottoman from boxes; many other clever inexpensive pieces.

Send 15 cents (plus 1 cent to cover cost of mailing, for our booklet, "How to Make Furnishings for Your Home," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Women Inspire Many New Words

Women are among our foremost word makers.

No less an authority than Dr. Charles E. Funk, editor of Funk & Wagnall's Standard Dictionary and famed lexicographer, said today that women are responsible for many of th. new words appearing in our modern dictionaries.

"I believe that women coin more words than any other group," said Dr. Funk. "As mothers and wives they are the center of our home life. Their coinage of words connected with the home or family results in many natural additions to our language."

New words in the dictionary which owe their existence to the women include "brunch," hair-do," "supermarket," "taupe," "lipstick," beautician," "dirndl" and "glassed." "Brunch" is a combination breakfast and lunch, while "hair-do" and "supermarket" are self-explanatory. "Taupe" is new grey-purple shade, as fashion experts will tell you. "Lipstick" and "beautician" are natural outgrowths and "dirndl" is a fashion style.

Officialdom in Havana Is Giving All-Out Round Of Farewell Parties for Retiring U. S. Envoy, Wife

From the Cuban capital comes word that officialdom there is giving itself over to an all-out round of farewell parties for the retiring United States Ambassador at Havana and Mrs. George Messersmith, who will be off the latter part of this week for his new post as our envoy to Mexico. . . . Spruille Braden, former Ambassador to Colombia, will take over duties as our Ambassador to Cuba on Saturday. . . . This evening, President Fulgencio Batista of Cuba will entertain at a festive dinner in honor of the Messersmiths, and the fete will bring to a close a calendar that has been accented with a series of important parties. . . . Among those who have entertained are Sir George Ogilvie-Forbes, British Minister to Cuba; the Minister of Uruguay and Senora de Mac Eachen, the Countess de la Camara and the Countess de Camargo. . . . A mammoth men's luncheon for Ambassador Messersmith was given last week at the Hotel Nacional by the entire diplomatic corps of Havana.

Ambassador Messersmith

A couple of weeks ago the Messersmiths moved from their Vedado residence to the Hotel Nacional. . . . Getting adjusted to life in Mexico should be a simple matter for the wife of the new United States Ambassador there, for on her last visit to Washington Mrs. Messersmith remarked that in the last 25 years she has been continually on the move and that her career as a diplomatic hostess has taken her from Canada to the Dutch East Indies, to Belgium and then to Luxembourg, then to Buenos Aires and Berlin and finally back to Washington for a brief sojourn before her husband was sent as Ambassador to Cuba. . . . Now Mexico is her next stop.

General Now . . . But "Beauty" Then . . .

When Brig. Gen. Raymond E. Lee takes over as head of the War Department's Intelligence Division, a rumor that has been circulating around Washington for some time will have become a fact. Exactly a month ago I heard at a Capital tea party that the man who has served for some time as our military attache at London was slated for the post in which he has been serving recently while Gen. Miles was on special assignment.

Mrs. Raymond E. Lee

Gentle, soft-spoken Mrs. Lee, who came here some time ago and has been actively engaged in work with the American Women's Voluntary Services (of which she formerly was Washington head and is still a director), has a host of friends here, including a few who knew her back in the days when she was Jeanette Baker, attending Vassar College. A fellow student and close friend was Miriam Marsh, now Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark. . . . And, incidentally, Raymond Lee and Bennett Clark were also college mates. . . . Both attended the University of Missouri, and both remember quite well that back in those days nobody called young Lee by his real name. . . . He was known far and wide on the university campus as "Beauty."

Michael Arlens Due Here Tomorrow

If I told you Dikran Kuyumjian was coming to town, you'd probably forget the whole thing as soon as possible. . . . But if I said Michael Arlen, and you had read "The Green Hat" (which would be likely), you'd be bound to sit up and take notice. . . . Well, the two names belong to the same man—he discarded the first and made the second famous—and that man, accompanied by his beautiful wife, the former Countess Atalanta Mercati, is scheduled for a brief Washington visit that will begin tomorrow.

Michael Arlen

Arlen has been one of my favorite authors ever since I read—no, not his best seller, "The Green Hat," which set a new style in heroines and made him more than $500,000 in royalties—his book of short stories called "These Charming People." . . . But it was "The Green Hat" that made him A Celebrity . . . caused thousands of American and British readers to begin asking questions about him . . . and eventually prompted him to come to this country, so his largest buying public could learn more about him. . . . It was about that time, too, that his Armenian name, Kuyumjian, came to light and with it the story of how he exchanged it for a new one at the British registry for the price of $1.40. . . . Soon thereafter he became a naturalized British subject, studied medicine at the University of Edinburgh for three months and then made up his mind to devote his entire time to writing. . . . His wife is the daughter of Count Mercati of Athens and an American mother.

Washington hosts for the Arlens will be Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey, who with several of their friends have planned several parties for the visitors. . . . The Snowden Fahnestocks will entertain them at cocktails Saturday afternoon. . . . The Deweys themselves are planning a buffet supper for Sunday evening. . . . There's a chance they may take the Arlens to Virginia for part of the weekend; but, anyway, you can be sure there won't be a dull moment for the distinguished author and his lovely wife during their Capital sojourn.

Mrs. Albert Dewey

Into town for a short stay a couple of days ago was Mrs. Henry Drummond-Wolf, the former Margaret Fahnestock, who returned to New York Tuesday evening. . . . Her husband is in a hospital there. . . . Back to Palm Beach tomorrow will go Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, who was there for a brief stay earlier in the season. . . . The British Ambassador and Lady Halifax had guests dining with them last night. . . . And the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Norway will be guests of honor when the Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne entertain at dinner Saturday night.

Miss Bolling To Be Married In Montreal

An event on this weekend's calendar which will be of great interest to Washingtonians will be the marriage tomorrow in Montreal, Canada, of Miss Barbara Bolling, daughter of Richard Wilmer Bolling and Mrs. Eleanor Lutz Bolling, and niece of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, to Air Cadet Cary Clark Moody Fuller of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Mrs. Bolling and her two daughters, Miss Barbara Bolling and Mrs. Harry R. Fowler, will leave Washington today for Canada. Details of the ceremony will be arranged after their arrival in Montreal. Mrs. Fowler will be her sister's maid of honor and only attendant and Cadet Edward Saunders will be best man. Eight of Mr. Fuller's classmates will be ushers. Mrs. Fuller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hamilton Fuller, jr., of Washington.

Miss Bolling, who is a fourth generation Washingtonian, was graduated from Holton Arms here and is a member of the Junior League, though she decided against making a formal debut. In 1939 she accompanied Miss Adele Bunker to Russia, where they spent seven months in that country's capital as the guests of Miss Bunker's mother, Mme. Rosso, wife of the Italian Envoy to Moscow.

Mr. Fuller was graduated from The Citadel in Charleston, S. C. He had hoped to join the United States air force, but found that the age limit here for air cadets is 27 years, and since he is 29 and was determined to get into air combats, he joined in Canada.

'Block Party' Fetes Forest Lane Residents

A "block party" went on the calendar at Homer Cumming's home in Wesley Heights yesterday afternoon between 5 and 7 o'clock, when residents of Forest Lane were invited to "drop in for a drink at the house at the end of the street."

According to the host, yesterday's gathering was a preliminary to the less exclusive—geographically speaking—party he is planning in the near future. Only guests outside of the boundaries of Forest Lane were the "partners" in Mr. Cummins' law firm.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl McFarland, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Burrough, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Asbill, Mr. and Mrs. William Donelly, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Arnold, Miss Mary Jane Stanley and her fiance, Cary Euwer, William Stanley, jr., and Snowden Stanley.

Others there were Dr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Hadley, Dr. and Mrs. Sidney C. Cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Paris E. Brengle, Dr. and Mrs. George Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene B. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Nicolson, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Zoller, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wood, Miss Fay East, Dr. and Mrs. Alan J. Chenery, Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Marland, jr., Albert L. Marland, John Marland, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Nesbit and Miss Barbara Nesbit.

Recently Wed Novaks Live in Silver Spring

New residents of Silver Spring, Md., are Capt. and Mrs. John Goodman Novak, whose marriage took place recently at Walter Reed Memorial Chapel. Capt. Novak is in the United States Army Medical Corps.

His wife is the former Miss Ruby Marie Templeton, daughter of Mrs. Raleigh Templeton, of Lynchburg, Va. Chaplain Edward J. McTague officiated as she was given in marriage by her brother, Norman Page Templeton. For the occasion, she chose an aero blue suit with black accessories.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Norman Templeton, who was costumed in a rose suit. Dr. Joseph F. Novak was best man for his brother. The couple left after the ceremony for a short honeymoon in the Pocomo Mountains. Capt. Novak is the son of Mrs. John W. Novak, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Ann Boulden James to Be Wed To James G. Meade on May 9

MISS ANN BOULDEN JAMES

Mr. and Mrs. E. Roy James, of Old Bay Farm, Havre de Grace, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ann Boulden James, to James Gordon Meade, jr., of Washington, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon Meade.

Miss James was graduated from the Jacob Tome Institute, Port Deposit, Md. She is a niece of Brig. Gen. Julian P. Smith, U. S. Marine Corps, Quantico, Va.

Mr. Meade attended the Tome School for Boys, Port Deposit, Md., and was graduated from the University of Maryland, 1939. He is a member of Delta Sigma Chi Fraternity and is now attending Officers' Candidate School, Fort Benning, Ga.

The wedding is planned for May 9, and will take place in Havre de Grace.

The Paul Febigers, Married Recently, Now on Honeymoon

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Paul Carson Febiger, who were married here on Monday, are honeymooning briefly before Col. Febiger is sent to the West Coast. He will be joined by his bride, the former Mrs. Rachel Forbush Wood, in Santa Barbara, Calif., in the early spring.

The wedding took place at 4:30 o'clock in the rectory of All Souls' Church with the Rev. Ulysses Pierce officiating. Mrs. Joseph B. James served as matron of honor and the bride's son, Jared Irwin Wood, served as best man. A reception for intimate friends and relatives followed at the bride's home, 1549 Forty-fourth Street.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Perry Forbush, of Chicago, attended Sweet Briar College in Virginia. Col. Febiger attended Leland Stanford College. He is the son of Mrs. Lea Febiger, of Palo Alto, Calif.

Arnolds Entertain At Dinner Party

The Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold entertained at dinner last night in their home near McLean, Va.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Longan Hauer, who are house guests of the Arnolds from Texas, Miss Ruth Hurley, Thomas Armat, William L. Batt, jr., and Thurman Arnold, jr.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mme. Hassan, wife of the Minister of Egypt, has issued invitations for an "at home" on Wednesday, February 11, from 5 until 7 o'clock.

Senator Warren W. Barbour, who has been visiting in Miami Beach, Fla., will return to the Capital this weekend.

Senator and Mrs. Burnet R. Maybank were honor guests at the dinner party given last night by Mrs. Cary Langhorne at the 1925 F Street Club.

Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, has returned to Washington after attending the recent meetings at Rio de Janeiro of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the American Republics. He was accompanied by the counselor of the union, Dr. William Manger.

Commander and Mrs. Keith Rogers Belch have returned with their two children, Keith, jr., and James Grant, from Rio de Janeiro, where Commander Belch was attached to the American Naval Mission there. At present they are house guests of Mrs. Belch's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hellmuth, at their home on Ingomar Street.

Lieut. Comdr. Herman Spitzel announces the marriage of his daughter, Jeanne Louise, to Melvin Ames Viner on Sunday February 1 in Washington.

Mrs. Ranolph Huntington Miner gathered in a few friends for tea yesterday afternoon in her apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue.

John A. Logan has issued invitations for a party on Wednesday afternoon from 5:30 until 7:30 at the 1925 F Street club.

Mrs. Frederick A. Marsteller has returned to Washington from Norfolk and will be at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry I. Quinn in Spring Valley, while her husband, Ensign Marsteller U. S. N. R., is at sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Albright will entertain at dinner tomorrow night.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Segal and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller will receive their friends on Sunday afternoon from 5 until 9 o'clock at the home of the Miallers at 4914 Ninth Street Northwest. They are celebrating jointly their silver wedding anniversary, having been married in Washington at a double ceremony 25 years ago.

The Junior Prom of the Georgetown University will be held tomorrow night in the large ballroom of the Wardman Park Hotel. Frank Murphy heads the committee in charge of the event and his assistants are Bob Pender, Ray Moore, John Kohl, William Ragan, Martin Garvey, Bob Napier, Bob Higgins, Frank Matthews, John Uniacke and Kenneth Engles.

The National Gallery of Art will have a showing of American water colors, drawings and prints recording defense and war activities on Saturday afternoon, February 7.

Nancy Williard And T. H. Schaffert Widely Entertained

The last party-filled week before the marriage of Miss Nancy Williard and Thomas Henry Schaffert takes place Saturday is drawing to a close.

Tonight, Capt. and Mrs. Lloyd H. Dittrich will be hosts at a small dinner dance in honor of the couple at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Yesterday a trousseau tea was given by the mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. Frederick Ramsey. Assisting Mrs. Ramsey were Mrs. Henry Schaffert, mother of the bridegroom-to-be; Mrs. Henry Hunter, Mrs. William Orr, Mrs. Allison Chapin, Mrs. Edward Helmuth and the wedding attendants.

Miss Channing's Nuptials Today

At a civil ceremony at 12:30 today, Miss Mary Ellery Channing, daughter of Mrs. Hayden Channing, will be married to Victor Malcolm, son of Baronet Ian Malcolm and Lady Malcolm, of England.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds will go to the home of the bride's mother on Thirty-third Street for a luncheon, at which only members of the family will be present. This afternoon Ian Eliot, of the British Purchasing Commission, will be host at a cocktail party in honor of the couple.

The bride-elect, who has attended school in England and France, is the cousin of Mrs. Eldridge Jordan and the granddaughter of Mrs. J. F. Schenck, of New York and Lenox, Mass. The prospective bridegroom is with the British Purchasing Commission here and is the brother of Angus Malcolm, Second Secretary of the British Embassy and private secretary to Lord Halifax.

Mrs. Beale Hostess To Composer

Mrs. Truxton Beale had as her guest at last night's National Symphony Orchestra concert in Constitution Hall the distinguished Brazilian composer, Francisco Mignone, who is in Washington as the official guest of the State Department.

Mr. Mignone, who last evening heard the great American dramatic soprano, Helen Traubel, as soloist with the National Symphony under the direction of Hans Kindler, is the composer of an opera, "O Contratador Diamenti," and a ballet, "Marcatu do Chico Rai." In his native Rio de Janeiro he teaches at the Conservatory of the National School of Music, where he is a colleague of his famous countrymen, Villa-Lobos and Sa Pereira.

Mrs. Willcox Gives Mary Stanley Party

At another in the series of parties honoring Miss Mary Jane Stanley, who will marry Cary Euwer on Saturday, Mrs. Arnold Augur Willcox entertained at luncheon yesterday in her attractive home in Westmoreland Hills, Md.

Among the guests were Mrs. Max Truitt, Mrs. Bennett Crain, Mrs. James G. Boss 3d, Mrs. Millard F. West, jr., and Miss Betty Mills.

Congressional Club Honored By Mrs. Taber

"Well—you know I thought we might have an air raid or something, so I just decided to give my luncheon now," said Mrs. John Taber, wife of Representative from New York, with a twinkle in her eye. Following custom, Mrs. Taber, who is president of the Congressional Club, gathered in her committee chairmen, a few officers and a smattering of people who had helped along the club's all-important defense work for a luncheon yesterday.

Receiving her guests informally downstairs at the Congressional Club, Mrs. Taber wore a black frock with revers of bright red and a small black hat, spiked with a perky feather. The first vice president, Mrs. Clarence Cannon, was joking about the pictures of her grandchild "that I have just about worn out—showing." Mrs. Cannon was smartly turned out in a gray wool gown and deep fuchsia toque.

Former Presidents Among Those There

Standing calmly in a group engaged in lively conversation, Mrs. W. Stirling Cole knitted furiously all the while, without dropping a stitch or the thread of the conversation. Mrs. Cole's husband was one of the Representatives selected to go to England on an inspection tour some months ago. Mrs. Roy O. Woodruff was there as were Mrs. Albert E. Carter, Mrs. Robert F. Rich and Mrs. Charles F. McLaughlin.

"There are three former presidents here today," said someone between bites of the excellent chicken and mushrooms. Mrs. Edward R. Burke, most recent former president, was discussing her new home in Rock Creek Hills. Mrs. Daniel A. Reed and Mrs. William M. Whittington, both former heads of the club, were on hand. The long table was centered with a low bouquet of spring blossoms and two smaller bouquets on either side. Mrs. Karl LeCompte wore a gay wisp of a hat—fashioned of turquoise feathers and tulle.

Defense Work Is Topic of Talk

"Are we doing defense work?—my dear I should say!"—and with that lively Mrs. Charles F. Sparkman hauled out a printed list all of a foot long of things the Congressional ladies were doing. Mrs. Francis D. Culkin was in the group yesterday as were Mrs. Clyde Williams, Mrs. Clarence E. Hancock, Mrs. Charles F. Plumley, Mrs. August H. Andresen, Mrs. Emmet O'Neal and Mrs. John M. Robsion.

The inevitable discussion of regional accents was being carried on by Mrs. Foster Stearns, of New Hampshire, and Mrs. Hearon Pearson, of Tennessee. Mrs. Pearson, who has a Southern drawl you could cut with a knife, told about visiting in New York with a Tennessee friend. They stopped a gentleman on the street to ask him the way and after telling them he asked "Where are you from?" they replied New England. The New Yorker said "I could have sworn you were from the Middle West!" Others attending yesterday's luncheon were Mrs. Karl Stefan, Mrs. Charles R. Clason, Mrs. Joseph P. O'Brien, Mrs. Homer D. Angell, Mrs. Elmer O. Leatherwood, Miss Sonya Converse, Miss Betty Hynes, Miss Frances Lide and Miss Petula DuMez.

Guggenheim's Return

Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, whose yacht, the Firenze, has been turned over to the Navy, will continue to live aboard it until March 1, when they will move into their new home, Firenze House, 4400 Broad Branch Road, formerly known as Estabrook. Col. and Mrs. Guggenheim have just returned to Washington after a three-week cruise to Miami.

The Brewsters Give Dinner For the Caseys

Gold braid was very much in evidence last night, when Senator and Mrs. Ralph Brewster, of Maine, entertained at a dinner party at the Sulgrave Club. Ranking guests were the Minister from Australia and Mrs. Richard G. Casey.

Mrs. Brewster received her guests wearing a deep purple dinner frock, completely tucked, and fashioned with high neckline and long tight sleeves. Her accessories were of gold. In the party were Lieut. and Mrs. Charles F. Brewster, son and daughter-in-law of the hosts who arrived here several days ago. Lieut. Brewster, who has been stationed at Camp Blanding in Florida, will be detailed to the War Department here for a short while before seeing "active service."

Red roses and sprays of white fresia were used on the long oval table where the guests were seated. Tall silver candelabra held lighted white tapers. The newly arrived Minister from New Zealand and Mrs. Walter Nash were in the company as were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Arthur L. Wilson, the Naval Attache of the Australian legation, Comdr. D. H. Harris and Mrs. Harris; the Director General of Australian War Supplies Procurement, L. R. MacGregor and Mrs. MacGregor; and the first secretary of the Australian Legation and Mrs. Alan S. Watt.

Still others in the group were the Assistant Secretary of the Australian Department of Commerce, Edwin L. McCarthy who is now shipping representative in this country and Mrs. McCarthy; Frank Langstone, head of War Procurement and Cooperation here for New Zealand; Lieut. Col. Fred Hamilton, Lieut. Col. M. A. Snyder, Col. Thomas B. Wilson, Guy P. Gannett, of Portland, Me., and Mrs. Elizabeth Mae Craig.

Women of Dominican Republic to Exercise Right Of Suffrage for First Time at May 16 Election

COME MAY 16, women of the Dominican Republic will vote in a political election for the first time in the history of that small country. And if predictions bear out, a couple of women may even be elected to Congress.

Mrs. May Thompson Evans

One who will be on hand to cast her vote and share in possible victory is hard-working Minerva Bernardine, vice chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women. In fact, she expects to fly the 2500 miles home just to vote for the first time in her life.

An outstanding educator and feminist leader of her country—the Dominican Republic—as well as in Washington, Miss Bernardino has devoted most of her life to obtaining sufferage for the women of her native land.

Her aspirations and ideals were realized about the middle of last month when the law passed. Also, the old Napoleonic code has been reformed to give women more civil rights. Now a woman can deposit money in a bank and accept a will before consulting her husband, explained Miss Bernardine. Before 1940, she could do neither without first gaining the consent of her husband.

In August, 1941, when the Dominican government still was considering giving women the vote, it called in all the leading lawyers of the country and inquired, "Do you agree with the proposed project to reform the constitution?"

"For the first time in the history of any Latin country," said Miss Bernardino, "women were asked to consult with a group concerning the reform of a constitution. Among those invited were two notable women lawyers (outstanding feminist leaders), one the daughter of Francisco J. Peynado, former Dominican Minister to the United States, and Senora Miladi L' Official." This, she pointed out, was a distinct honor and a real achievement.

Society women as well as all others in the Dominican Republic are enthusiastic over obtaining the vote, according to Miss Bernardino. Also, they are educationally prepared to take the responsibility. More than 150 women in a population of around two million were graduated from the country's universities. These include lawyers, doctors, dentists, teachers and scientists. Many others, she stated, are educated in the United States or in Europe.

It's Up to Consumers

CONSUMERS can either strengthen or weaken the national defense program—all depends upon the way they play their roles as economic citizens, according to Mrs. May Thompson Evans, Chief of Consumer Relations Division of Price Administration, office of OEM.

Miss Minerva Bernardino

Speaking to the members of the Soroptimist Club at their luncheon meeting yesterday at the Willard Hotel, Mrs. Evans said, "Every household and every individual of moderate income faces the necessity of planning budgets more carefully, or buying less goods, of conserving goods and of buying wisely."

To buy wisely, she pointed out, consumers must have information about a product—what the product is made of, how it is made, what it will do, how to care for it and its recommended uses. "Replacing goods unnecessarily due to poor quality is in itself a drain on national defense," said Mrs. Evans. "Certainly during these times of emergency a dollar must buy a dollar's worth."

Agnes Scott Alumnae Fetes

FEBRUARY is a significant month for Agnes Scott Alumnae in Washington. The twenty-second will be celebrated with Founders' Day parties and programs. And Saturday, the D. C. chapter will have a luncheon meeting, 1:30 p. m. at the Woman's National Democratic Club, 1526 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest.

Guest speaker at Saturday's event will be Miss Bernice Kurneth, associate home economist of the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. She will speak on "Nutrition and Defense," using the slogan, "Watch your diet and help win the war."

Dollogy Club to Meet

MISS TAISIA STADNICHENO, member of the Women Geographers and National Geology Society, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Dollogy Club, Saturday at 1644 Connecticut Avenue.

The speaker, who was born in Russia, lived in Japan, and traveled extensively in many parts of the world, will discuss "Friendships Between Nations Through Dolls." Mrs. Victor J. O'Kelliher, newly elected president of the Dollogy Club, will preside and announce new committee chairmen.

Doings of the Day

WILLIAM L. BATT, director of Materials of the War Productions Board, talks on "Then Conquer We Must" at the monthly meeting of the Twentieth Century Club, 11 a. m. at the Y. W. C. A. A representative of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club also speaks, and Miss Clara Herbert, of the District Public Library, announces the opening of libraries Sunday afternoons for the public. . . . Board of governors of the Washington Club elects officers at meeting, 10:30 a. m. Recently elected governors include Mrs. William Aspinwall, Mrs. R. Winston Holt, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, and Mrs. William Charles White. . . . Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi meets, 8 p. m. in Sorority Rooms, 710 Fourteenth Street Northwest. . . . Arts Club, Mrs. Anne Albert Best and Theodore Schaefer, joint hosts at club dinner, 7 p. m.

No Tips, Please

No offense meant! After all the sailor didn't know that the pretty waitress serving him is the wife of a commander in the Navy. Neither did the schoolboy looking soldier know that the waitress, who gave him such a thoughtful service was the wife of a general. Therefore, the two offered tips to the gracious women serving their lunches. Now there'll be no more mistakes at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club. For Mrs. Henry Jewett, affectionately known throughout the Army and Navy as "Nannie" and efficient chairman of the canteen, has hung a little sketch on the canteen wall. This sketch indicates that all waitresses are volunteer workers and no tipping is permitted.

Most of the volunteers are wives and daughters of ranking Army, Navy and Marine Corps officers—a fact little known to the men who drop into the club. Between 3000 to 5000 men eat there in a month.

Among those who are seen serving the boys almost any morning or evening are: Mrs. Herbert Webber, Mrs. Frank Yates, Mrs. Virgil Peterson, Mrs. Emory S. Adams, Mrs. Harrison Mann, Mrs. H. F. Wanvig, Miss Caroline Wanvig, Mrs. William Rose, Mrs. George Ober, Mrs. D. E. Middleton, Miss E. C. Middleton, Mrs. R. R. Ralston, Miss Betty Ralston, Mrs. E. Cochrane, Mrs. Leonard T. Gerow, Miss Polly Randolph, Miss Ann Randolph, Mrs. Thomas W. Cook, Mrs. V. Foster, Mrs. Clyde Hines, Mrs. W. D. Conner, Mrs. Martin P. Novak, Miss Estelle Wheeler, Mrs. Archie Miller, and Mrs. James B. Haley.

Patriotic Groups Plan for Rites On February 22

The 210th anniversary of the birth of George Washington will be celebrated by the Joint Committee of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Sons of the Revolution, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Children of the American Revolution on February the twenty-second in Memorial Continental Hall at 3 p. m.

From 2:30 to 3 o'clock a section of the Marine Band will give a concert of patriotic music and there will later be selections from massed choirs under the direction of leader of the choir of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Wade Ellis, president of the Sons of the American Revolution of the District of Columbia, will act as escort, and Col. F. Granville Munson, president of the District of Columbia Sons of the Revolution, will be marshal and will have charge of the massing of the colors.

The speaker of the day will be Harold Mayor of the United States Chamber of Commerce. His subject will be "George Washington, Fighter for Freedom."

The exercises will be under the direction of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Hostess at Tea

Mrs. Lillian Chase House, hostess at the Composers' tea of the D. C. Branch, National League of American Pen Women, yesterday at the club rooms, had as her special guest an old school friend, Senator Hugh Butler, of Nebraska.

Addressing the group informally, Senator Butler said that before the war is over "We'll be wearing second hand clothes and glad to get them."

Women's Group Approves Drive To Sell Bonds

Indorsed yesterday by the executive committee of the United Women's Organizations, of which Mrs. Curtis is president, a campaign to achieve 100 per cent membership participation in the Treasury's defense savings campaign has been inaugurated by the women's division of the District of Columbia Defense Savings Committee, of which Mrs. Wilson Compton is chairman.

The Daughters of the American Revolution have already begun a canvass of members so that their participation in financing the Nation's defense may be recorded. Mrs. Pearl Michael Shaffer, State defense chairman of the D. A. R., reports that several chapters have already gone "over the top," every member having signed individual participation reports. Mrs. Shaffer anticipates that in a brief period all of the 60 D. A. R. chapters in the District will have reported 100 per cent membership participation.

D.C. Protestant Churches Plan For Expansion

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

Concerned about the churches' task of ministering to thousands of newcomers here, Protestant denominations are considering organization of a Federation of Churches Comity Commission, to coordinate planning of new church buildings and new congregations.

DR. TIPPY

According to Dr. Worth M. Tippy, acting federation executive secretary, denominational representatives who conferred recently at the Federation Building unanimously approved the commission plan, with employment of a survey worker, his salary jointly financed by the denominations. The annual budget would be $3500.

However, all actions of the meeting must be approved by the denominational bishops and other leaders in this area, it was explained by Dr. Tippy. Serving on the commission would be those churchmen who are responsible for their own denomination's planning of new church and educational buildings and new congregations.

Joining in the comity parley, in addition to Dr. Tippy and the denominational representatives, were Dr. Mark A. Dawber, executive secretary of the Home Missions Council, Federal Council of Churches; Dr. J. Quinter Miller, Federal Council's field secretary, and Dr. Jacob Long, of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions.

Local denominations represented were the Methodists, Baptists, Episcopalians, Lutherans, Disciples of Christ, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Evangelical and others.

Both local and suburban churches' facilities are being overtaxed by the steady streams of defense workers, and something must be done to avoid an overlapping of effort in ministering to the additional thousands, said Dr. Tippy.

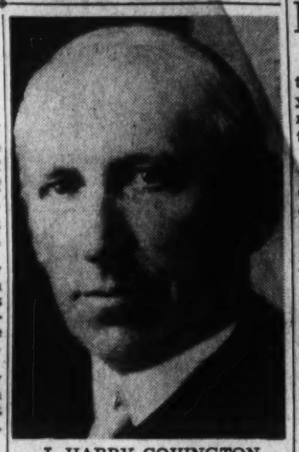
Dr. Tippy further emphasized the need for ministering to the garrison of men guarding strategic points here, to the service men from nearby camps and naval stations, and to the people engaged here in British wartime service.

Seal Sale Nets $10,000

Mrs. William Dahl, chairman of the Montgomery County Tuberculosis Association, announced yesterday that $10,000 was raised in the Christmas seal sale. The average contribution of 11 cents per capita was the highest in the State, she said.

J. Harry Covington Dies at 71; Former Justice, Representative

Marylander Founded One of Washington's Largest Law Firms



J. HARRY COVINGTON

J. Harry Covington, 71, founder of one of Washington's largest law firms, former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia and one time member of the United States House of Representatives from Maryland, died at his home, 2320 Wyoming Avenue, yesterday afternoon.

He had been ill since Saturday when a cold, contracted earlier in Chicago, sent him to his bed. His condition Tuesday was greatly improved but yesterday morning he suffered a relapse and his death followed at 2:20 p. m.

One of the District's most widely known attorneys, Judge Covington was born May 3, 1870, in Talbot County, Md., the son of James H. and Emma V. Covington.

Began Practice in Easton

He was educated in the public schools of Maryland, in Maryland Military Academy and received his law degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1894. He was admitted the same year to the Maryland bar and began practice in Easton.

In 1903, he was elected State's attorney of Talbot County, a position he held until 1909 when he was elected from the First Maryland Congressional District to the House of Representatives. He served in the Sixty-first, Sixty-second and Sixty-third Congresses, resigning September 30, 1914, when President Wilson appointed him Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the District.

Judge Covington presided over this court until June 1, 1918, when he resigned and with Edward B. Burling founded a law firm which today is known as Covington, Burling, Rublee, Acheson and Shorb with offices in the Union Trust Building. Today the firm, engaged principally in the practice of corporate law, has six senior, ten junior and 13 associate partners.

During his term on the bench, Judge Covington taught law at Georgetown University, and in 1918 President Wilson again enlisted his services as a member of the United States Railroad Wage Commission.

He was a member of the board of directors of Kennecott Copper Corporation, the Union Trust Co., Continental American Life Insurance Co., and his clubs were the Metropolitan, Burning Tree and Chevy Chase.

A member of St. John's Episcopal Church, of which he was a junior warden, Judge Covington leaves his wife, Mrs. Ethel K. Covington, of Brooklyn, N. Y., whom he married in 1899, and two children, J. Harry Covington, 3d, a member of his father's law firm, and Mrs. Lewis Clark, whose husband is in the diplomatic service in Ottawa.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a. m. at the residence with burial in Easton, Md.

Woman Killed, 8 Persons Hurt In D. C. Fires

Multiple alarm fires in the District yesterday fatally burned a 65-year-old woman, injured two firemen and six other persons, three of the latter seriously.

Mrs. Minnie Sterling, Negro, 65, was burned to death despite a heroic attempt to rescue her by Ernest J. Mueller, No. 4 Truck Co., when a four-alarm blaze swept through her home at 455 M Street Northeast at 5 a. m. yesterday.

The clothing of both were aflame when the firemen carried her down a ladder after finding her unconscious on the floor. She was dead when a doctor arrived. The fireman suffered minor cuts and burns.

The woman's son, William Sterling, 31, received a broken arm and leg and head injuries when he jumped from a third-floor window. Mrs. Angela Yates, 69, fractured both legs and an arm when she jumped from a second-floor window.

Others burned and suffering from smoke were Hayes English, 16; Mildred Spriggs, 34, and Edna Sterling. At least 20 other residents of the building fled to safety.

Cause of the fire was still being sought last night by investigators from the fire marshal's office.

Some 35 employes in the W. T. Rossell School, Ninth and E Streets Southwest, now housing the District Recreation Department, were forced into the street yesterday by a two-alarm fire. The blaze is believed to have started in hot-air heating pipes.

Fire Capt. Francis Scroggins, No. 10 Truck Co., received a puncture wound in the right arm when struck by the pointed end of an ax wielded by another fireman. Both men were working in thick smoke.

All Nations Busy Devising New Weapons

Bern, Feb. 4.—Engineers and technicians of a world which now is devoting almost all its energies to war are fighting feverish battles in laboratory and shop in preparation for the third summer of struggle.

While American industry is gearing itself to produce enormous parks of tanks, planes and jeep cars, Italians today were praising a new tank which they said had proved a major support for Axis troops in their new Libyan push.

They say it is lightweight, armed with a cannon of big caliber particularly adapted to desert warfare because it permits combt at greater range than British tanks, and because it presents a poor target for counter fire.

The Italians noted the Russians are using many "secret arms," including a "P-34" tank of great tonnage with an armor which seemed to "defy any shell."

German antitank fire had been unable to halt these tanks, and the only certain way to combat them was to send in suicide volunteers with gasoline bottles or grenades to burn or blow them up, one Italian dispatch said. Their slanting plates shed all ordinary bullets and shells, it was added.

A Rome dispatch also said the Russians have an excellent plane equipped with several machine-guns and small cannon which is practically invulnerable in the air because of its speed and armor.

A dispatch from Budapest said the Germans are working on a universal airplane engine suitable to all types of planes which is expected to be in use this year. Presumably it would solve many problems of supply, repair and salvage.

The British believe the Germans are planning to use great smoke-screens capable of blanketing a whole countryside in order to conceal their own movements of attack and confuse the defense when they start their spring offensive. It was tried experimentally in Flanders in 1940.

Axis reports said the Finns had captured a Russian gun which was fired automatically by a photoelectric circuit.

These reports also told of a Japanese inventor who has developed a machine gun capable of firing 9000 shots a minute.

Army Plans Temporary Buildings in Virginia

The Army is planning to build a half dozen temporary buildings in nearby Virginia, where between 10,000 and 12,000 employes of the Army Air Corps would be stationed. Sites have been tentatively selected on Government-owned land at Gravelly Point, near the airport. These proposed buildings are in addition to the "largest office building in the world" which is rising in nearby Arlington County and where from 30,000 to 35,000 War Department employes will be working within a few months. Moreover, temporary buildings are under construction at the Army War College, where between 6000 and 7000 war workers will be employed. The department also plans to keep its new building which was recently opened.

Meantime, plans are under way to move Leon Henderson's Office of Price Administration to Suitland, Md. A permanent Federal office building is now under construction at Suitland and is expected to be ready for occupancy around April 1. The building will be large enough to accommodate 5000 employes. Henderson is expanding his staff here now and he's taking over new Temporary Building S across the street from the War Production Board. However, S and Temporary D will be turned over to Donald Nelson's WPB when OPA moves to Suitland. Henderson and his general staff will retain offices near WPB.

WPB and other Offices of Emergency Management agencies have approximately 11,000 employes here now. But by June 30 this figure will be nearly doubled or about 21,000 employes. WPB will take over the Railroad Retirement Board Building and Army's Quartermaster General Corps will be moved to Arlington. Army Ordnance also will be moved out of the new Social Security Building to make room for WPB.

Navy Department will be given Army's vast Munitions Building and it also will be assigned the several temporary buildings now under construction near the reflecting pool. State, another booming war agency, probably won't have its proposed new building constructed on the site of the Court of Claims at Seventeenth and Pennsylvania Avenue. It is tentatively decided to keep the court building intact and convert it into space for offices.

Housing Real Problem

Once these proposed moves are made the office space situation here will be under control, at least that's the way it now appears. But housing for the tens of thousands of new workers that will be brought here is now the real problem troubling Federal officials. The slow-moving Public Buildings Administration has snapped into action during the past several months and the manner in which it has been delivering space recently has pleased its most violent critics. After all, PBA has been blamed for the bad guesses made by others. Remember the howl made a few months ago that the proposed War Department Building in Arlington was "too big?" Well, the building isn't being constructed nearly large enough today.

If Representative Wilson, the curfew man, had examined the old wooden desks being abandoned by the Patent Office he would have had a bit of sensational evidence of employe loafing. One of the desks was turned upside down. Painted on the bottom of the middle drawer was a checker board. Apparently on dull days the employes pulled out the drawer and had a game.

Farm Credit expects to lose at least half of its 1200 employes when it moves to Kansas City. Officials say it will take at least a year to get the organization back at its production peak after it gets to its new home. Employes are being told that the move is temporary, but they are skeptical. There has been some talk of Farm Credit building itself a building here after the war . . . The new Interior Building is safe for Interior. WPB and Army officials would both like to have the structure but neither has a chance of getting it.

Sidney Sherwood has been appointed executive officer of WPB's Division of Industry Operations. He was assistant to Wayne Coy, the President's trouble-shooter . . . Ted Bartlett of FCC's legal staff, has been called to active Army duty. He's a major in the Air Corps.

This System Works!

Raleigh N. C., Feb. 4 (AP).—Oscar Pitts, head of North Carolina's penal system, wondered what would be the best way to black out Central Prison here, in the event of air raid.

Finally he wrote Alcatraz officials for advice. "Turn out the lights," they replied.

Southeast Residents Plan Mass Protest Against Conversion of Kramer Junior High

OVERCROWDED—Students at Anacostia Junior-Senior High School, which is accommodating almost twice its maximum capacity of pupils, study in the teachers' lunchroom. Meanwhile, the Government plans to take over the new Kramer Junior High School, shown (at top) under construction, for office space

Southeast residents last night planned a mass protest against the conversion of the new Kramer Junior High School, as the prospect of a curtailed teaching program faced some 2000 high school pupils of the Anacostia area.

The executive committee of the Southeast Council of Citizens Associations, meeting last night, tentatively scheduled the protest demonstration for next Thursday evening at 7:45 o'clock in the auditorium of Anacostia High School.

Cramped to a point where by next September Anacostia Junior-Senior High School may be accommodating almost twice its maximum capacity, officials long had looked forward to completion of the Kramer Junior High School to relieve the situation.

Earlier this winter Uncle Sam stepped in and took over the new building, now completed only to about the top level of the first-floor windows. It will be used to provide office space.

Two New Schools Needed

"We really needed two new schools," Principal J. P. Collins, of the Anacostia Junior-Senior School, said yesterday, "and now we aren't going to get any."

The present structure was erected to care for a maximum enrollment of 1248. The school now is accommodating more than 1800 students on a staggered schedule.

"Right now," the principal declared, "we could fill the Kramer School, if it were completed, to capacity."

The principal said he understood several sites are under study for a new school in that area, but asked:

"If we can't even get a building which was under construction, how on earth can we hope to get one that isn't even in the process of building?"

2000 Students Expected

Next September, Collins said, the present building will have to handle at least 2000 students. According to plans which Collins said had been drafted as "a last resort," the seniors will go to school from 8 a. m. to noon, and the juniors from 12:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

"We'll have to cut out everything but the bare essentials," he said.

The executive committee of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers has unanimously adopted a resolution deploring the Government's action in taking over the Kramer School, it was learned yesterday.

German Diplomat Stays in Capital; Stork Is Expected

By the United Press

This is a story of the human side of war.

By all the rules of strict diplomatic procedure, Karl Resenberg, former First Secretary of the German Embassy, should be in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where the rest of the Nazi diplomats were transferred after the United States and Germany went to war.

But Resenberg still is in Washington and here's how the State Department explains it:

Frau Resenberg is expecting a baby. Her husband is being permitted to remain near her—under surveillance—until the baby is born.

And—unless the parents act to change its citizenship—the baby will be an American.

Four Appointed Battalion Chiefs

The Commissioners yesterday promoted four Fire Department captains to battalion chiefs to fill vacancies caused by recent retirements under the 64-year age limit for active service.

The four captains, who will receive $4500 each year, are William L. McMahon, Millard H. Sutton, William A. Bryarly and John Sheehan.

U. S. Naval Hospital Occupies New Quarters Near Bethesda

From its old home at Twenty-third and E Streets Northwest, United States Naval Hospital was moved yesterday into glistening new quarters a half mile north of Bethesda, Md.

If private cars, station wagons and ambulances of the Red Cross Motor Corps and the Navy, 230 patients were shifted the 8 miles without a hitch. The whole job was completed before dark.

Ambulatory patients were transported in private cars and station wagons driven by women of the District Red Cross Motor Corps. Ambulances were used for the more seriously ill men.

Last night the old Naval Hospital was a hollow shell, occupied only by the watch and a skeleton maintenance force. Its future use is still uncertain.

In its handsome new home on the Rockville Pike the Naval Hospital will be the key unit of the Naval Medical Center, which also includes the medical and dental schools.

Labor, Business Urged to Give Offices to U. S.

Representative Martin J. Kennedy (Democrat), of New York, proposed to the House yesterday that business and labor organizations give up their office space in Washington to the Federal Government for the duration of the war.

Stating he had found there are some 600 such organizations with offices in the Capital, Representative Kennedy said "millions of square feet" of office space could be converted to Government use if non-Federal offices moved. He suggested that the space be rented to the Government at $1 a year.

Specifically, he named the offices of the C. I. O., the A. F. of L., and the United States Chamber of Commerce as being adapted for Federal use.

The Chamber of Commerce Building "is a marble palace," he declared. "It is located overlooking the park in front of the White House. It might be used as an anex to the White House or the War Department.

"Imagine what it would mean if 15,000 or 20,000 people moved out of Washington tomorrow morning. Imagine the result if the A. F. of L., the C. I. O. and other labor and business organizations would move.

"I wouldn't pull them up by the roots and send them to Timbuctoo, but if they would leave voluntarily it would be a big help."

Estate Is Left To Two Hospitals

Two local hospitals benefit under the will of Miss Ida R. Hamaker, artist, of 1917 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, according to a petition for probate filed at District Court.

Miss Hamaker died at Rockville, Md., on February 1 leaving an estate of more than $40,000. She directed that her estate, after certain bequests, debts, and tax charges had been deducted, be divided into 10 parts. Nine parts go to Emergency Hospital; the rest to Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

Taxi Drivers Oppose New Pickup Plan

Opposition to the taxicab pickup service ordered by the Public Utilities Commission to become effective next Monday was voiced at a mass meeting of taxicab drivers at Roosevelt High School last night. The drivers adopted a motion against the order by almost unanimous vote.

Edwin A. Glenn, president of the C. C. Cab Drivers Association, who presided at the meeting, attended by 100 persons, asserted 88 per cent of the 7100 taxi drivers here are opposed to the pickup service. He said the order violates the constitutional rights of drivers and suggested they band together for vigorous protest through the courts.

Glenn said his association has a membership of 1800 men and predicted as soon as one of its cabs is made idle by a tire shortage, a strike vote will be called. He urged all taxi drivers here to demand that a bill in the House District Committee providing priority for tires for the taxi industry be reported out immediately.

Dr. Ballou Approves Land Deal

Tract Earmarked For School Building To Be Exchanged For Friendship Site

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, yesterday expressed approval of a proposal to swap a District-owned tract, earmarked for a school building, for a nearby site on the southern edge of what once was Friendship, famed McLean estate on Wisconsin Avenue.

The superintendent was authorized by the School Board to carry on negotiations with Defense Homes Corporation, which is to build a huge low-cost housing project on the Friendship estate, for the exchange of tracts. (Further details of the Friendship project will be found in right-hand column of this page.)

The board appointed 37 new teachers, 34 of them to serve in Negro schools, where it was explained the need was greatest.

Watch Still Maintained

In response to a question regarding the night watches in some schools, Dr. Ballou said a 24-hour watch is still maintained in 18 schools, but he added that no teacher is required to serve after 8:30 p. m.

The superintendent said he hoped to confer in a day or two with Commissioner John Russell Young and Col. Lemuel Bolles on a "long-range program" which would "distribute more equitably" the burden of keeping the watches. When a member of the board pointed out that sick leave among the teaching staff had increased recently, a fact which he said was attributed to the increased hours which teachers must serve, Dr. Ballou said he would bring this matter before Commissioner Young.

44-Hour Week Approved

Establishment of a 44-hour work week for office employes of the school system was approved by the board "in principle" with the likelihood that efforts will be made to arrange a staggered schedule running from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Other routine matters taken up by the board included the promotion of Dr. W. N. Rivers, from assistant professor to professor at Miner Teachers College, and of Dr. A. V. House, jr., from teacher to assistant professor at Wilson Teachers College.

The board also approved a dental survey by the District Health Department among students in senior high schools and authorized the use of Phelps Vocational School as a school for immigrants.

Chinese People Unconquerable, Rotary Club Told

Five years of Japanese onslaught have proved only that the Chinese people are unconquerable, the Rev. Raymond Fitch Keppler declared yesterday, addressing the Washington Rotary Club.

The Rev. Mr. Kepler, formerly a missionary in China, is now a member of the staff of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. For the Chinese, said the Rev. Mr. Kepler, retreat has not meant defeat and occupation has not meant subjugation.

Dr. Paul H. Furfey, head of the Catholic University sociology department, told the Rotarians and their guests that the sability of China was founded upon the tradition of a "just government," administered by "scholar-officials."

Guests at the Rotary Club luncheon were Dr. Alfred Sze, formerly Ambassador to China, and Tswen-Ling Tsui, first secretary of the embassy.

Housing Groups Asks Rooming House Rules

Centralization of inspection services for rooming and boarding houses is under consideration by the Commissioners at the request of the Washington Housing Association.

Because the operation of rooming establishments has become a "major industry" here, the association suggested that a central head be named to administer regulations requiring complete inspection.

A conference on the subject will be held sometime next week.

What to Do?

Britain Eyed For Help on Parasites

Although officials tried to pour oil on the troubled Potomac waters by declaring, "Nothing is contemplated soon," many a Washington "parasite" had his eyes on the future yesterday as experts in the Office of Defense Housing Coordinator Charles F. Palmer studied the British system of billeting war workers.

"Yes, one of the men here has been to England and we have studied housing there just like we are studying a lot of things, but we're not contemplating commandeering any private homes," it was declared, "certainly not in the immediate future."

Meantime, the Secret Six Committee of The Post's Parasite Department has continued to receive bales of mail, all pointing the finger in another direction and nobody picking himself as the man to leave town. We've decided, however, that the purge is a big success from a get-it-off-your-chest viewpoint.

The committee has received evidence of grudges dating back to the Indian wars and considers it a good idea to have had so much steam blown off without a casualty. We've become a sort of whipping boy for the enemies of New Dealers, Leon Henderson, husbands who have to pay alimony, Frances Perkins, natives, newcomers, people with rooms rented to Government workers, Government workers who can't find rooms, and even President Roosevelt.

From the British Press Service the committee learned that Coordinator Palmer's problem here in the District is different from the problem in London or any other English town. The people were leaving London during the first days of the war much faster than they were coming in, for instance, and in coastal towns where troops were billeted in private residences the residents had been evacuated.

The British laws, however, seem to be quite inclusive. Compulsory billeting, requisitioning of all sorts of buildings, furniture and motors are covered in them—but the situation has been such that voluntary participation prevented much use of them.

Jewish Prayer Book Published For Service Men

Publication of a new abridged prayer book for Jewish service men was announced yesterday by Dr. David de Sola Pool, chairman of the committee on religious activities of the National Jewish Welfare Board.

The new book, supplanting one used since World War I, is printed in English and Hebrew, and was prepared under the supervision of Dr. Pool, Dr. Solomon B. Freehof, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Eugene Cohn, of New York City. The Hebrew type is said to be a face not hitherto used in this country.

James Creek Home Project Contract Let

Approval of a $1,129,000 contract for the James Creek dwellings project of the Alley Dwelling Authority was approved yesterday by the United States Housing Authority.

The project is in Southwest Washington at Canal and M Streets. It will provide homes and apartments for 278 families. Demolition of slums in the area has been completed and construction can start immediately, it was said at USHA.

The contract was let to C. B. Ross Co.

Meantime it was announced from the regional office of the Federal Works Agency in Richmond that bids on construction of additional sewerage facilities to serve two defense housing projects at Cabin John, Md., will be opened tomorrow.

Plans call for the construction of a sewage treatment plant and approximately 1700 feet of 8-inch sewer lines to connect the housing projects with the town's sewerage system. An allotment of $44,000 has been approved for the project.

Bids will be opened in Richmond on February 16, it was announced for construction of a waterworks project at Arlington, including a six-million-gallon reservoir and necessary distribution lines. The reservoir will be built near North and Powhatan Streets, north of Little Falls Road. The construction is covered in an allotment of $587,000.

No Tariff Commitments

Agreements reached at the Rio de Janeiro conference contained no commitments on the part of the United States regarding changes in tariff or import duties, Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, said yesterday.

2 Housing Projects Here Get Approval

Restrictions Lifted For Friendship And Hillcrest Defense Apartments

Two huge defense housing projects—one at Friendship, the former McLean estate on Wisconsin Avenue, and the other in Hillcrest, in the Southeast—were approved yesterday by the District Zoning Commission.

There were no strings attached to approval of the Hillcrest enterprise, but the Friendship case involved a proposed "swap" of two 7-acre sites.

Near Forty-ninth and Ordway Streets Northwest, just west of the McLean estate, the District owns a tract which has been earmarked for a junior high school.

It was agreed tentatively yesterday at hearings before the Zoning Commission that the Defense Housing Corporation would take over this site and yield the city a portion of land the same size on the southern end of the McLean property.

Restrictions Lifted

By indorsing the two projects, the Zoning Commission lifted restrictions which prohibit apartment houses in the two areas.

It is planned, according to spokesmen for the DHC, to erect 40 apartment buildings on the Friendship estate which will accommodate approximately 1300 persons.

In the Hillcrest area, bounded by Naylor Road, Erie and Thirtieth Streets Southeast, it is proposed to build 59 apartment units housing some 4000 persons.

The projected Friendship undertaking was outlined to the zoning group by Louis Bean, of the Defense Housing Corporation. Two citizens filed objections.

50-Acre Project

The Hillcrest development will cover about 50 acres. Protests against this project were in a petition signed by some 200 property owners who claimed their holdings would drop in value.

Sale of the Friendship estate to the Federal Government was announced last month by Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean. Plans for a defense housing project were announced immediately afterward by the Defense Housing Corporation.

Some nine other minor zoning changes also were authorized by the commission yesterday.

Man, 70, Killed On River Road

William Carney, 70, of 2800 Kenilworth Avenue, Bladensburg, Md., was struck and fatally injured by an automobile last night while walking on River Road near the Capitol Airport. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital, where he was taken by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad.

Joseph E. Bell, 21, of 3338 Baker Street Northeast, driver of the car which struck Carney, was charged by Prince Georges County police with manslaughter. He was released on $1000 bond to appear February 12 in Hyattsville court.

STAFF'S A WHOLE STAFF IN HIMSELF

When a fellow holds the multiple titles of director of athletics, head coach of football, basketball and baseball, trainer, equipment handler, assistant professor of physical education and university field representative there must come a time when his obligations overlap.

WHITTLESEY

That's the way it will be two or three weeks from now with Stafford Hendricks Cassell, who answers present to all the above names at American University where he's the one-man gang of the athletic department.

The 32-year-old sports head was apologizing for sitting on the sidelines yesterday when his current cage team was going through a daily workout in the gymnasium. This is one of the first times I've ever missed scrimmaging with the boys," he said, "but I sprained a ligament or two yesterday and thought I'd take it easy." He was taking it easy—just coaching.

Before the month is out Staff will be busier than a movie star at the Birthday Ball. He will call the basketball team to practice in the early afternoon and before they get warmed up he'll have to do downstairs—or outdoors if it's a nice day—to see how the football players are doing in spring practice. When he gets rid of the court and grid candidates Staff will have to rush them out of the gym to make way for the baseball batteries, who will be warming up in the late afternoons from February 15 on.

Quite an Athlete Himself

The serious-minded young Cassell was quite an athlete in his own right, setting some sort of record by winning 21 letters at Dickinson (Pa.) Seminary, one of the outstanding prep schools, athletically speaking, in the East. At American U. he played three years each of football, basketball and baseball and one spring in his spare time posted a spare point or two for the track squad. He captained the football team twice, the other major sports once each and won varied positions on All-Chesapeake and District all-star combinations, plus a pair of valuable player awards.

When Staff enrolled at Dickinson after five years in the anthracite coal fields in Pennsylvania, where he worked his way to coal inspector over 52 men at the age of 18, he was told he was too small for football. Rich colleges throughout the East were putting boys through Dickinson, boys with reputations, and the coach had never heard of that little fellow Cassell. But the opposition heard plenty when Staff finally won his suit.

Staff will never let that happen to a boy under him. Any youngster with any semblance of athletic talents gets a complete tryout at A. U. If Cassell cannot use him in his winter sports he can possibly sandwich him in in the spring. Or recommended him to one of his few assistants, Dr. William B. Holton, who takes time out from his duties as chemistry professor to teach tennis or Joe Carlo, track coach. In addition Cassell has George Menke as grid assistant and his wife helps with the secretarial duties attached to the athletic director's office. Irv Spaulding lends a hand with the publicity and his outgoing captains act part-time as assistant coaches in the major sports.

A Good Will Ambassador for A. U., Too

Cassell's many-fold duties are not confined to athletics. Last week, for instance, he made a three-day trip through some of Virginia's outstanding prep schools, as good will ambassador and field representative of American U. He was introduced as Prof. Cassell of American U., not as athletic director and coach. He then went to Baltimore and New York for meetings with alumni groups, with sports secondary in each instance.

Cassell is proud of his B. S. and M. S. degrees and advanced work in the field of education but sports come first. His happiest hours are in working with the football squad from Labor Day through Thanksgiving and then coming back after dinner in October and November for basketball practice. He gets a big kick out of handling the over-lapping duties soon to come up and then his summer contact work with prospective students, keeping an eye out all the time for a likely letter man. His next ambition is the completion of a varsity house next year for the Eagle athletes.

When Coach Cassell and one of his varied sports teams takes to the road Athletic Director Cassell must take his schedule book along to arrange for future dates. He has to stay clear, as much as possible, from schools which frown on freshmen, for without his frosh many of Cassell's clubs would be crippled.

A. U. will hardly long for opponents as long as Staff is at the head. The annual basketball game with Penn State is the latter school's idea. They like the trip to A. U. and Coach Johnny Lawther, a good friend and strict disciplinarian, lets the boys take in a party at American U. after the game which includes dates for players. All visiting teams rate accommodations in A. U. dormitories, which are among the best.

You can always spot Staff Cassell at a local college ball game when his boys are not playing or practicing. He's always trying to pick up a tip or two. He applies his advanced work in physchology to his coaching for he often calls round-table discussions among the players and hashes things out that may keep somebody from playing his best game.

He takes his intra-mural coaching and physical education instruction as serious as his work with the varsity. The likeable young fellow who parts his hair in the middle will have one of his typical nights tomorrow. When Randolph Macon visits in basketball he'll be sure the advance publicity gets to the papers, will station ticket-takers on the door, dish out the uniforms, take care of all minor hurts to the players, coach the team, pay the officials, be called to the door a half-dozen times to o. k. pass-seekers, put the visitors up for the night, drop a hint about a game for next year, pay the guarantee, turn out the gym lights and get ready for—Gallaudet on Saturday.

SPORTIN' AROUND:

It is nice that big league ball parks are going to let soldiers and sailors in free this season, if the seats aren't sold. But why make money on the boys after they get in? We'd like to see a park cut its hot dog and pop prices in half for men in uniform. Otherwise we don't see where the owners are making any particular sacrifice in letting service men use otherwise empty seats. Most of the boys can't afford to eat and drink at ball park concession stands.

CONSIDINE

Cornelius Warmerdam, science teacher at Piedmont, Calif., High, is en route to New York for the Millrose games Saturday night. To our mind he's the outstanding figure in track today. First and only man in history to pole vault 15 feet, he'll be making his first New York appearance since 1939, when he was an also ran.

A. C. Gilbert, the old Olympic vaulting champion who astounded the world with a 13-foot leap, believes that Warmerdam may some day do 20 feet. Warmerdam holds his hands at the 13-foot 5-inch mark on his bamboo pole and, by dint of his great and lightning strength, does a handstand at the peak of his jump. He takes the longest run-up of any vaulter, 137 feet.

Don Budge took first place in the $100,000 tennis tour the other night by beating Bobby Riggs. Beaten by Frank Kovacs on opening night, and not much better for two weeks after that, Budge slowly climbed until he took the lead with 15 victories against 9 defeats. Riggs is not far behind, followed by Fred Perry, defending pro champion.

Kovacs, who dropped out at Ottawa January 19, will rejoin the troupe at Charles Town, W. Va., Saturday night. The eccentric one's standing was six wins against seven losses when he came down with housemaid's knee in the elbow. Les Stoeffen, who became his ghost player, could win only one match for him, and Kovacs, who promised he'd win the tournament, will find himself deeply mired in last place when he begins playing for himself.

Sammy Angott, the lightweight champ, who has been called the greatest lightweight champion since Lew Jenkins, is a 2½-to-1 underdog for his fight Friday night against colored Bob Montgomery. Doesn't seem to make much sense. The only time they fought, which was in 1940, Angott won rather easily despite a broken right hand. In the interim, Angott won the title and is a shrewder boxer than he once was. Maybe the betting boys know something, for a change, but at this writing it looks like just another shearing for the Garden's "favorite" bettors.

Incidentally, the semi-windup—Johnny Colan vs. Jimmy Webb for the right to challenge Lesnevich for the light heavyweight title—might steal the show. If Colan, a swell puncher, ever wins the 175-pound championship at the Garden nobody will be able to say he went far in life. He was born just down the street from the old sock salon.

Johnny Dawson's striking victory over the Sneads, Hogans, etc., etc., in the $5000 Bing Crosby Open must have been a shock to those who believe that amateurs able to beat pros retired with Bob Jones. Dawson

Gent, Gross Pace Attack Of Winners

Middies Drop Third Straight; Zoeller's 9 Points High for Navy; Busik Has 6

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4.—Diminutive Larry Gent and burly Elmer Gross accounted for all except six of Penn State's points today as the Nittany Lions handed Navy's basketball team its third successive defeat, 29 to 25.

Gent, bagging 8 of his total 11 points early in the game, personally led the Lions into a slim 14 to 12 halftime lead. Then in the waning moments of the contest the little Penn forward riveted home a field goal which put the contest beyond the Middies' reach.

Penn State, beaten only by Cornell and West Virginia this year, won its ninth decision in 11 games. Navy has won but two of five encounters.

Gross counted 12 points with four field goals and as many foul throws. He put Penn State six points ahead shortly after the intermission and then dropped in a foul toss, enabling the Lions to knot the score at 19 to 19 with ten minutes remaining.

Bob Ramin and Herk Baltimore immediately followed with a foul and double-decker, respectively, giving Penn State a lead it never relinquished. Navy's co-captains, Bill Busik and Bob Zoeller, narrowed the margin to 24 to 23 with five minutes to go, but Gent bounced back with the clinching shot.

Baltimore then scored from the floor with less than two minutes to play, erasing all Navy hopes.

Zoller's nine points topped the Navy pointmakers, while Busik scored six. Although the game started slowly, the pace quickened in the second half, both teams treating their midshipmen fans to plenty of action. However, close guarding on both sides frustrated many scoring chances.

Newsom Due For Big Slash In '42 Salary

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Feb. 4.—Amid the usual secrecy the Detroit Tigers today mailed 1942 contracts to 33 players, so if there is an earthquake in the vicinity of Hartsville, S. C., you can safely assume that Bobo Newsom has received the bad news.

While General Manager Jack Zeller declined to break the traditional silence about salary matters at Briggs Stadium, well informed sources declared that Newsom would receive the most severe blow to the pocketbook of any of the fallen American League champions. Last year the big right-hander drew upwards of $30,000 for winning a dozen games.

Zeller, returning from the special league meeting at New York, disclosed that Jimmy Bloodworth, newly acquired second baseman, was the only player in the fold as his signed contract was transferred from Washington after the winter trade. Manager Del Baker and Coaches Mervyn Shea and Charley Gehringer already have signed.

Payroll Curtailed

Except in one or two instances, the Tiger payroll most certainly is being curtailed this year. Alton Benton, who developed from a relief pitcher to Detroit's most effective moundsman, perhaps is the main notable exception, and among the younger players Barney McCosky, the club's top batsman, may be in line for a raise.

The Tigers naturally could expect to receive pay cuts this year from the 1941 boosts that followed Detroit's surprise pennant victory. Newsom cashed in heavily on his superlative season and world series

Catholic U. Five Beaten By Shoremen

Washington College, which up to last night was holding tight to eleventh place in the 12-team Mason-Dixon Conference, handed Catholic University quite a surprise in the form of a 43-33 defeat in the Cardinals' gym.

The Shoremen presented a better ball club than their record indicates and except for a brief C. U. spurt late in the first half which tied the score at 10-all the Chestertown club was always in command.

Frank Samele, one of the leading scorers of the State and conference and Frank McNiff, a burly guard who enjoyed his first high-scoring night of the season, led the Washington attack and with Jim Stevens scored 38 of the winners' 43 points. Samele tucked in five field goals and made good eight times from the foul line for 18 points. McNiff, who personally staked the Shoremen to a 6-2 lead at the end of the first ten minutes posted 11 points and Stevens nine.

The conference rivals started mixing it up with rough-house tactics, particularly in the second half, and Officials Paul Menton and Dallas Shirley were forced to call 33 fouls, 18 on C. U. The Shoremen made good 13 times out of 22 from the charity stripe while the Cardinals, playing what must have been

Creighton Wins Over Great Lakes, 59-45, in Upset

By the Associated Press

Omaha, Feb. 4.—Creighton University outscored the Great Lakes Naval Training team, 59 to 45, tonight to join a select group of three basketball teams able to turn the trick this season.

Except for the closing minutes of the first half, the Bluejays of the Missouri Valley loop dominated throughout. Bill Menke and Forrest Anderson, of the star-studded Great Lakes squad, dropped buckets to bring the Tars to within one point—27 to 26—at intermission time, but the Jays pulled safely in the second half.

Pacing Creighton were Ralph Langer, Big Ed Beisser and Gene Haldeman, each with 16 points.

G. U. to Play Five Grid Games Here Next Year

Auburn, Detroit Added to Card; Old Miss, Temple, B. C. Held Over on Schedule

Georgetown University's most attractive football schedule in modern history was released yesterday. Headlining the first grid card released under the new manager of athletics, Rome Schwagel, are five home games—more than Georgetown ever has played in one season here.

Newcomers to the slate this year are Auburn of the Southeastern Conference and University of Detroit, a powerful independent eleven. Auburn is appearing on a Georgetown football schedule for the first time in history, while the game with Detroit is the first since 1932 between the Jesuit rivals. Before that they met seven times in a series begun in 1919.

Holdover games include Temple, Mississippi, Manhattan, Boston College, North Carolina State and George Washington.

Georgetown's quintet of home games are with Mississippi October 2, Manhattan October 10, Auburn October 16, N. C. State November 14 and the season's finale with George Washington November 21.

Auburn, long one of the gridiron powers of the South, and Detroit, a team made famous by Gus Dorais, the one-time Notre Dame great, replace University of Maryland, V. P. I. and Xavier University.

As things stand now Georgetown will play one less game than the nine of last year. An open date, November 7, may be filled, however, according to Father John J. Kehoe, faculty moderator of athletics.

The Schedule

September 25, †Temple, Philadelphia.
October 2, †Mississippi, here; 10, Manhattan, here; 16, †Auburn, here; 24, Detroit, Detroit; 31, Boston College, Boston.
November 7, open, tentatively; 14, N. C. State, here; 21, G. W. U., here.
†Night games.

Rutgers Grid Staff Offers To Join Navy

By the Associated Press

New Brunswick, N. J., Feb. 4.—Harvey Harman and three members of his football coaching staff at Rutgers University have offered to join the Navy as physical instructors.

George E. Little, director of athletics, recommended head coach Harman, backfield coach Eddie Masavage, freshman coach Dave Bender and lightweight coach Tom Kenneally to Lieut. Comdr. Tom Hamilton, supervisor of the Navy's physical program.

All four men have filed enlistment papers and some of them have had their physical examinations.

Under Harman's direction the Scarlet gridiron warriors have scored 26 victories, lost seven games and tied one in four seasons.

The 1942 schedule calls for home games with Lafayette, Syracuse and Bucknell. Vermont, Maryland, Lehigh and Springfield also will be met.

Harman played tackle at the University of Pittsburgh as an undergraduate, coaching later at Haverford College and Sewanee.

Proposed Deal Between Cubs, Reds Called Off

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—A deal between the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs appeared stymied today when General Manager Warren Giles of the Reds and General Manager James Gallagher of the Cubs broke off negotiations. Giles refused to give Outfielder Mike McCormick and Pitcher Whitey Moore for Pitcher Bill Lee.

Virginia Bests C. U. in Track Meet, 71-27

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 4.—Virginia's track team, in a triangular indoor meet tonight with Catholic University and Bridgewater College, ran up a total of 71 points, against 27 for Catholic University, and 9 for Bridgewater.

Coach Dorsey Griffith, of the Maroons, brought down only 13 members of his squad and they acquitted themselves handsomely. Charlie O'Keefe annexed the quarter mile, while his teammate, John Weschler was second. In the half mile event, James Zuppa, closed with a spurt, outlasting Grumman, of Virginia.

In the final event, the mile relay, the Maroon quartet won from the Cavalier team. John Street was outrun by Virginia's starter, but John Doyle gained a lead which John Weshler held and O'Keefe extended over the Cavaliers' anchor man, Stevens.

Virginia annexed seven first places. High scorer was Tom Todd, former Washingtonian, who captured both hurdle events in fast time.

Walter Makofski, of Catholic, was second in the shot put, with a heave of 40 feet 7 inches. This event went to Ed Kreick, Cavalier gridiron star.

SHOT PUT—Won by Kreick, Virginia; second, Makofske, Catholic; third, Broaddus, Virginia; fourth, Sliney, Catholic. Distance, 42 ft. ½ in.

MILE RUN—Won by March, Virginia; second, Doyle, Catholic; third, McQuain, Bridgewater; fourth, Blumer, Virginia. Time, 4:55.

Schmidli Top Scorer With 15 Markers

O'Grady Makes 12; G. U. Leads 30-22 at Half, But Gets Hot In Last Few Minutes

By the Associated Press

Hamilton, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Georgetown's basketball team staged a last few minutes scoring spree here tonight against the inexperienced Colgate quintet and won by the convincing margin of 55-39.

It was a reasonably even contest in the first half. When the gun sounded the visitors were ahead by only 30-22 but as they had played outstanding basketball it looked as if they might win by an easy margin.

Early in the second half Colgate staged a rally and with Bat Batorski, Bob Taft and Sandy Chambers hitting the basket regularly drew up to within three points of the visiting outfit. At this stage it looked as if Colgate had a chance.

It wasn't to be. Charlie Schmidli and Capt. Buddy O'Gray went on individual scoring sprees then and dominated play through to the end of the game. O'Grady was the outstanding player on the floor but Schmidli led scorers of both teams with 15 points. O'Grady had 12.

Alsab Equals Mark in Drill; Out of 'Cap

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4.—Al Sabath said today he might withdraw his top-weighted Alsab from Saturday's $5000 Bahamas Handicap, first big 1942 3-year-old test, "because 128 pounds is too much to ask him to carry."

Should the Chicago attorney follow his "present inclination" to take last year's juvenile champion out, it would postpone the first 1942 duel between Alsab and his arch rival, Ben F. Whitaker's Requested.

Requested, which drew the second highest impost of 121 pounds, likely would be the favorite in the Bahamas if Alsab is held out. The veteran Eddie Arcaro will ride Requested, which won 9 of 16 races and $49,850 in purses last year.

The Whitaker colt's record as a 2-year-old was second only to that of Alsab, winner of $110,800 and first in 15 of his 22 starts.

Until Sabath made his announcement, everything seemed to be shaping up for a test of speed between the two that might have provided a clew to the Kentucky Derby's outcome.

Each was credited with an exceptionally speedy workout earlier this week. Alsab streaked a mile in 1 minute 38 3/5 seconds—equaling the track record—with about 125 pounds on his back. The next day Requested shaved a fifth of a second off Alsab's time.

The weights assigned other nominees were Eternal Bull, 120; Bright Willie, 117; First Fiddle, 115; American Wolf, Figgeritout and Sir War, 114; Rodney, 113; Bold Question and Tomochichi, 112; Eternal Peace, 111; Alohort, 110; Sweep Swinger, 109; Eire, 108; Incoming, Sergeant Bill and Aletern, 105, and Automaton, 103.

McCoy, A's Infielder, Sworn In as a Coxswain in U. S. Navy

Young Baseball Star Enters Service Without Any Fanfare

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Benny McCoy, 25-year-old infielder with the Philadelphia Athletics, became a coxswain in the United States Navy today, without fanfare and apparently without previous announcement of his intentions.

The Great Lakes Naval Training Station said he was sworn in today, but even the station's press relations division had been unaware of his presence until he was given his rating. The announcement said that being sworn in today did not mean necessarily that he would report immediately.

McCoy is the young man who, freed from the Detroit Tiger farm chain two years ago by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, received a $45,000 bonus from Manager Connie Mack for signing a two-year contract with the Athletics. The contract called for $10,000 a year.

McCoy, after a mediocre season with the A's his first year, played good ball with the Mackmen in 1941. His home is in Granville, Mich.

Ben Hogan's Golf Shots Return $3.85 a Stroke in Winter Tour

Hershey Pro Earns $7207 With 9 More Stops Before Masters'

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, Feb. 4.—It's nice work if you can get it—and Golfer Ben Hogan is getting it, at $3.85 a stroke.

That's little Ben's take—if you want to be inquisitive as an income-tax collector—since the start of his winter tournament tour, and the long-hitting Hershey, Pa., professional has nine more stops before he shoots for Craig Wood's crown in the Masters' tourney climaxing the winter tour at Augusta, April 9.

He has won $7,207 with 632 holes of competitive golf since December 11, counting an 18-hole playoff with Jimmy Thomson for $3,500 first money in the Los Angeles Open—just 1885 strokes at that little white ball.

He closed out 1941 with the Miami Open and two Texas tournaments at Harlingen and Beaumont, winning $3275 to bring the year's total to $18,358. In January, he won another $4932, including first place at Los Angeles, $375 for fifth at Oakland, and $1000 for winning the San Francisco Open. He slacked off at Rancho Santa Fe, in the Bing Crosby amateur-pro, tying with Horton Smith and Byron Nelson for fourteenth place and a check for coffee money, $87.

Oddly enough, four strokes blown along the way have cost Nelson perhaps $2400.

BEN HOGAN

The former open champion, second to Hogan in winter tour winnings, shot his way over the same tournament courses for $4782, including first money at Miami and Oakland. Excluding Hogan's playoff, Nelson finished just four strokes back of little Ben—1817 to 1813.

Sam Snead, who blew himself out of $3500 top money at Los Angeles, is third in tourney winnings at $2785. He won $1000 at Miami to become runner-up in 1941 winnings, and the rest in January's four California tournaments.

Hoyas Only Send Relay Team; Both Quartets Loom As Threats Saturday

By Jack Munhall

Although both have suffered heavy unexpected losses due directly or indirectly to the draft, Maryland and Georgetown may surprise everyone by popping up with very creditable one-mile relay teams when they make their indoor debut Saturday night in the Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden.

Georgetown will have no other entries in this, the first of the big winter circuit meets, but Maryland will send two specialists. Duke Alexander, a sophomore and perhaps the greatest field events prospect in Terrapin history, will compete in the high jump, while Pat Carolan, a junior transfer student, will run in the handicap 60. Alexander, a product of Tech High of this city, is due to have his promising career interrupted by the Army. The Penn A. C. games, February 13, will be his last appearance before going into the armed services.

In the big one-mile relay race, to be run in six different sections embracing more than a score of top-flight foursomes, Georgetown has drawn truly formidable opposition. Hap Hardell's Hoyas will face St. John's, defending indoor I. C. 4-A champion, Colgate, a 3:20 team of last year, and Ohio State, perennial Big Ten track power.

Maryland will compete against always strong Pitt, Rhode Island State and Syracuse.

Two Frosh on Quartet

Georgetown, stripped of one-half of last year's freshman quartet that won the National A. A. U. Indoor mile relay title with a startling performance, will lineup in this order: Jim Fish, a senior; Charley Williams, a junior, and Hugh James and Hugh Short, the holdover members of the great yearling team.

Hardell, one of the gloomiest cusses coaching any sport anywhere, didn't mean to do it, but yesterday he practically confessed that Georgetown will have a national championship contender, or close to it. Well, anyway he said that his team wasn't half as bad as I thought it would be."

And anyone who knows Hardell will admit that such a statement from him is tantamount to predicting an unbeatable array. Saturday, as a starter, he expects his boys to do 3:23 or better.

Maryland's starting four will be Bob Condon, Barney Gugel, Randall Cronin and Bob Montgomery, jr. Tommy Fields, former outstanding middle distance runner for the Terps and now an assistant coach, declared last night that the current mile relay outfit would be all right.

"Those kids have surprised me," he said. "Judging from what they've done on our track, they ought to be clocked in 3:25 or better Saturday. I look for an e..ceptionally good effort by Condon, who always runs well indoors."

COLLEGE CHATTER—Latest Georgetown athletes, past or present, to join the country's fighting men, are Lou Ghecas, halfback star of the Hoyas' undefeated teams of 1938 and 1939, and Bill McLaughlin, a hard-hitting back of whom much was expected next season . . . Ghecas, like so many other Georgetowners, is at Quantico . . . Jack Doolan, Hoya football back and standout track sprinter, is also with the Marines, stationed at Paris Island, after failing to make the grade with the Army Air Corps . . . George Perpich, 230-pound regular tackle on last year's Hoya eleven, may escape the draft . . . He plans to join the Marine Corps upon graduation from school and for that reason expects to be allowed to finish his course . . . The big reason Georgetown won't recognize the ice hockey team composed of its students, which plays under the school's name, is that the team does not conform to G. U.'s eligibility codes . . . They have used both freshman and graduate students . . . This team, undefeated in six matches, is quite remarkable, considering that the only practice it gets is two mornings a week for one hour . . . And the time of the two practices is from 7 a. m. (yes I said ayem) to 8 a. m.

Still on Georgetown, did you know that the school recently purchased the ground surrounding its intra-mural athletic field and the added space will amount to more than 200 square yards? . . . It lies in the direction of the Potomac River . . . Among Catholic University's late draft casualties are Bob Kelleher, a junior and former St. John's basketball player who is going to join up soon, and Jim Brosnahan, a basketball and football performer from Worcester, Mass., who will remember Pearl Harbor by enlisting in the Marines . . .

A. U. Courtmen Host Friday To Jackets

American University's basketball team will make its first appearance since January 10 tomorrow night when Coach Staff Cassell's club takes up its Mason-Dixon Conference scheule with Randolph Macon on the Eagle court.

Catholic University and Gallaudet also have a conference date tomorrow night in the C. U. gym at 8:30 p. m. The Cards won the first meeting, 39-36.

Tonight's only game will find Georgetown at Syracuse in the second game of its road trip.

American U. will have its hands full in the visiting Yellow Jackets who are currently holding down second place in the Tristate League with victories over Mount St. Mary's, Bridgewater and Gallaudet. Tuesday night the Jackets upset Roanoke's good little team for their sixth victory of the year, in all competition.

A. U.'s last appearance was in a 26-53 defeat at the hands of Penn State, which has lost only two games all season. They have been inactive competitively during the exam period but Cassell has been staging at least one and sometimes two workouts daily.

Joen Derowski, captain, is the only senior on Coach Frank Summers' Randolph-Macon squad. Four are juniors and six sophomores.

American University will play at home on Saturday night against Gallaudet. The game was originally scheduled for the Blues' court.

Glenn Dale Boys Take Bowie Battle By 83-to-9 Score

The Glenn Dale Boys Club participated in a field day yesterday when the Bowie High School basketball team was routed 83 to 9.

Dale Myers accounted for 19 field goals and a free toss to lead the Boys Club scoring.

At the intermission, Glenn Dale led 41-1. The game was played at Bowie.

McNeill Quits Tennis Until War's Duration

Oklahoma City, Feb. 4 (AP).—Don McNeill said tonight he was through with tennis for the duration.

The 23-year-old Kenyon College graduate added he was awaiting a call to duty as an ensign in the Naval Reserve.

He held the national indoor championship in 1938 and the national outdoor title in 1940.

Suess Rolls 183 To Lead Post Pinmen

Antonio Michael Suess, of the Proof team, rolled a 183 game and 414 set yesterday as his team won two games from Lino in The Washington Post Bowling League at Lucky Strike.

Replates, who have won the last 18 out of 21 games, increased its consecutive record to nine straight games in beating Street Sales in a clean sweep.

The Mailers took three from Engravers and continued to lead the league.

Angott-Montgomery Fight Is Postponed

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—The 12-round nontitle bout between Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott and Bob Montgomery, of Philadelphia, scheduled for Friday night at Madison Square Garden, was postponed until March 6 today when the titleholder turned up with a rib injury.

Angott said he first felt the pain during a workout yesterday. An examination showed he had a dislocation of the twelfth rib on the left side. Promoter Mike Jacobs said he would not put on a substitute bout.

Final Decision on New Navy Stadia Due Soon

Site Already Cleared and Graded; Would Seat 30,000 Fans; Navy to Finance Project

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4.—A final decision on the proposed construction of a new Naval Academy football stadium in West Annapolis will be made in the near future, Capt. T. S. King, academy athletic director, said today.

The new stadium site already has been cleared and graded. Capt. King said the academy would decide in the next few weeks whether to proceed with construction work.

The amphitheater would seat 30,000 persons but could be enlarged to accommodate 60,000 or 65,000 fans, he declared.

The Navy Athletic Association would finance the entire project, Capt. King said, but added that he could not estimate the cost.

If construction is started this spring, the stadium would be ready for use by the end of the coming football season, he said. Navy has four 1942 games scheduled here next fall and, at present, Capt. King declared, plans to play all of them in Annapolis at the stadium located on the academy grounds.

The athletic director was unable to say, however, whether the general public would be permitted to witness the 1942 games in Annapolis. Current restrictions prohibit the general public from attending winter sports contests.

A decision is also expected about permitting civilians to witness Navy's spring sports. Rear Admiral John R. Beardall, new superintendent, soon may clarify both the spring sports and football situations regarding civilian spectators, Capt. King said.

At present no curtailment of the general spring sports program or the 1942 football schedule is contemplated, Capt. King emphasized. Spring football practice is scheduled to commence next month while all the normal spring sports will continue under present plans, he said.

While academy athletic officials have heard reports that Baltimore authorities would like the Navy to play more football games in Baltimore next year, Capt. King stated that nothing official had been presented to the academy in this respect.

More civilians will be able to see Navy games if they are played in Baltimore, but Capt. King said games primarily were for the midshipmen and that it would be a problem transporting them to Baltimore if all home games were held there.

Army Defeats Penn, 40-34, Ends Losses

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Army broke a four-game losing skein here today by defeating Penn, 40 to 34, in a contest that was not decided until the final minute of play.

Sparked by George Rebh, who tallied 14 points, Army led by 11 markers with but 10 minutes to go. Penn, however, reduced that margin to 1 point with but 90 seconds remaining. Army assured the victory in the final minute on a pair of foul throws by Capt. Ernie White and field goals by Rebh and Jammie Philpott. The half-time score was 22 to 14 in favor of Army.

Brewer Player Gets Exam Order

The Washington Brewers today faced the possibility of losing another of its star players to Uncle Sam, with the announcement from Coach Mack Posnak that Ben Kramer, former Long Island University basketball ace, had been ordered to report to his draft board in New York for a physical examination.

Whether Kramer will be called before the second half of the American League season ends is problematical, but Coach Posnak hopes that he will be able to finish out the campaign, due to end early in March.

Kramer definitely will be in the lineup Sunday night at the Heurich gym, Twenty-sixth and D Streets Northwest when the Brewers play host to Wilmington Blue Bombers, winners of the first half. He will team at guard with Petey Berenson, with Herman Knuppel at center and Willie Rubenstein and Nat Frankel at forward.

Blanche Wootten Rolls 389, Rosslyn Downs Lafayette

Blanche Wootton fired a 389 set for the Rosslyn bowlers last night as the Galt Davis quintet swept three games from Lafayette and took the lead in total pins over Ice Palace in the Ladies' District League. Georgia Hays had 361 for the losers.

Lucille Young's 377 set was high for Ice Palace as the former leaders dropped two to Hi-Skor. Ruth Rothgeb posted a 169-383 as Arlington won two from Rendezvous, while Del Ray won two over Convention Hall despite Margaret Smith's 354.

Other results were Spillway over Clarendon, Brookland over King Pin and Red Circle over Arcadia, all by two to one margins.

House of David Team To Feature 'Iron Man'

Manager and Guard George Anderson, of the House of David basketball team, will have seen service in more than half a thousand games when he competes against the Lichtman Bears Sunday at 3:30 at Turner's Arena.

Fitzsimmons Signs Contract With Defense Bond Clause

Fat Freddy Seventh Dodger to Sign; Won 6 Last Year

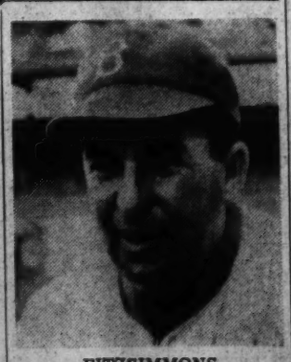
By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Feb. 4.—Fred Fitzsimmons, stout knuckleball pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, signed his 1942 contract as a player-coach today and became the first ball player to agree to accept 10 per cent of his salary in defense bonds.

The arrangement for partial paymen of all baseball employes in bonds was voted by the two major leagues in their sessions this week.

No announcement was made of Fitzsimmons' terms, but the club said no bonus provisions were included.

Fitzsimmons, the seventh Dodger to sign, led the National League in winning percentage in 1940 in his sixteenth year in the league, with 16 victories and two defeats.



FITZSIMMONS

Last season he was hurt, but won six games and lost one with an earned-run average of 2.06.

Middies Enter C. U. Indoor Meet Here

Catholic University's ninth annual indoor track and field meet Monday at Riverside Stadium will not be without the militaristic touch, so common nowadays. Not only will the Naval Academy make its annual appearance in this event, but there will also be representatives from local and nearoy service units.

Dorsey Griffith, the hard-working Catholic University track coach, whose work has been responsible for building this meet into a headliner, announced yesterday that Navy will definitely appear, and that a special Military Relay would draw several service quartets. The Middies' team is expected to number more than 30, and with Georgetown certain not to enter a large squad—if anybody—Navy probably will be favored to relieve the Hoyas of their team titles won last year.

That Georgetown will not be able to send a representative team to uphold its honors in the meet was indicated yesterday by its coach, Hap Hardell. Al Blozis, behemoth shotput champion, probably will be entered, however.

Griffith said that among the notable college teams interested in the meet is New York University, annually the producer of great track runners, especially one-mile relay teams.

4 A. E. F. Boxers Enter North Ireland Tourney

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 4 (AP).—Four boxers in the A. E. F. here will be entered in the Northern Ireland Tournament Friday—substituting for four boxers from Eire's army who were withdrawn because their own army tournament will be held the same day.

Luttrall Meets Gino Garibaldi On Arena Mat

Luttrall, a former cowhand and bronco-riding champion, and famous for his two-round knockout at the hands of Jack Dempsey in a regular boxing match after he had flattened the Manassa Mauler in a wrestling match, is pointing for sweet revenge.

The Cowboy would like to even up for last week's disqualification at the hands of Garbaldi in 21 minutes. Luttrall claims that Curley Brown, the referee, who ruled him out, mistook his headlock for a strangle.

Bitter against Referee Brown, Luttrall has asked for another official, and Promoter Joe Turner has ordered Casey Berger to handle the bout.

Luttrall's rough house tactics gradually are making him the No. 1 villain locally and fans are liking him to Laverne Baxter, also a Texan, who cut a wide swath in mat circles about five years ago.

Of particular interest is the two-man team battle. Ace Freeman, a Wisconsin boy, and Maurice LaChappelle, French grappler, will be shooting for their eighth straight triumph. They will meet Herbie Freeman (no relation to Ace) and Jim Austeri.

Leo Numa, the handsome former University of Washington grappler, will meet Emil Dusek in the semi-windup and Fred (Legs) Grobmier will open the show at 8:45 against Max Krauser, Polish refugee.

Lookabaugh Stars as Md. Frosh Win

Nineteen-year-old John Lookabaugh tossed in almost half of Maryland Freshmen's points last night as the young Terps easily defeated Central High School's five at Ritchie Coliseum, 46-24.

Lookabaugh, a 6-foot-4-inch, 205-pound center from West Virginia, scored ten goals and a couple of foul shots for a 22-point total. The Old Line yearlings were never in trouble and merely coasted to their fifth victory against five defeats. The winners led, 24-4, at the half.

The game, originally scheduled for next Friday, was moved up to last night at Central's request.

Bing Miller Named White Sox Coach

Chicago, Feb 4 (AP).—Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, today named Edmund "Bing" Miller of Philadelphia, an old teammate, as a member of the coaching staff.

Miller, who played with Dykes on the Philadelphia Athletics team, will succeed Monty Stratton, named manager of the Lubbock, Tex., team, a White Sox farm. Miller was a coach with the Detroit Tigers last season.

Harold "Muddy" Ruel will serve as the other White Sox coach, hanling the pitchers.

Zacatine Again Outruns Big Ben in Hialeah Park Feature

Buchanan's Colt Scores By 4 Lengths

Alaking Is Third; Winner Pays $6.50; Jockey Basil James Scores a Double

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 4.—F. J. Buchanan's Zacatine and N. S. McCarthy's Big Ben, which finished as named in a grade "B" handicap here a week ago repeated their act before a crowd of 10,843 here today Zacatine won by a wider margin on this occasion, the colt leaving his California rival four lengths behind, Alaking, which C. E. Nelson recently purchased, along with Third Covey, from H. P. Headley at private terms, lost the place by a head.

In their last meeting, Zacatine, under 104 pounds, led home Big Ben, weighted at 115, by a length and a half. That was at 6½ furlongs. The distance for today's "B" cap was 7 furlongs, and Zacatine picked up 9 pounds, while the McCarthy colorbearer carried an additional 7. The fans today made Big Ben favorite over the winner by the slight difference of 5 cents on the dollar, but Zacatine left no doubt as to his superiority. He was timed in 1:24 flat and paid $6.50. Basil James, leading local rider, scored a double on the victor. Big Ben was the sixth beaten choice in as many races decided.

Zacatine broke on top and never showed a sign of faltering. After sprinting into a long lead, he coasted the remainder of the journey. Big Ben, the topweight under 122 pounds, and Alaking provided the only competition in the race, that pair alternating in second and third places, heads apart all the way. The other three starters were badly outrun.

Sports Events Called Off in Germany

Bern, Switzerland, Feb. 4 (AP).—Numerous major sports events scheduled in Germany for this month suddenly have been canceled without explanation and the Munich newspaper Neuste Nachrichten said today that "further cancellations of other sports events is expected.

Until now many German sports had been continuing almost normally since the start of the war.

Orioles Top Rovers, Piche Gets 4 Goals

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Feb. 4.—With Phil Piche ramming home four goals, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the New York Rovers, 7 to 5, in an Eastern Amateur League hockey game tonight.

The Orioles came from behind in a fast game marked by a dozen penalties.

The Rovers took a two-goal lead in the first session, both tallies coming with an Oriole player in the penalty box, but the Orioles knotted the count at 4-all by the end of the second period, and then came through with three tallies to the New Yorkers' one in the final stanza.

Jimmie George Pilots 5 Winners At Fair Grounds

By the United Press

New Orleans, Feb. 4.—Jockey Jimmie George contributed the stellar riding feat of the young racing season when he booted home five winners out of the seven mounts he accepted at Fair Grounds today.

George, still so new to racing as to rate an apprentice allowance, won the first race with Black Time at $16.60 straight. He finished out of the money in the second on Yankee Cousin and then took the next three races, winning with Silver Grail, $6.40; Chipamink, $11, and Kentown, $15.80.

The young apprentice finished third in the sixth on Conscript and then wound up his day by piloting Alrose to victory in the seventh at $7.20.

West Va. Cager Scores 32 Points

Pittsburgh, Feb. 4 (AP).—Dick Kesling, a 165-pound junior center from Shinnston, W. Va., flirted with an all-time individual scoring record for the Pitt Stadium tonight as he paced his West Virginia University teammates to a brilliant 66-to-47 basketball triumph over Pittsburgh before 1500 fans.

The durable mountaineer, who never seemed to tire despite the blistering pace, finished with 32 points to tie the high-water figure set on January 17, 1940, by Eddie Straloski, of Pitt, playing against Carnegie Tech.

Turf Donations To War Funds Are Approved

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Feb. 4.—Plans of Maryland race tracks to donate profits from one regular racing day each to the Red Cross, U. S. O., Navy or Army relief funds or other war-service funds were approved today by Attorney General William C. Walsh.

In an opinion requested by Racing Commission Chairman Chester F. Hockley, Walsh stated:

"We see no objection to your permitting the four tracks to contribute their net revenue from four designated regular racing days to one or more war-relief funds, after first deducting from such net revenue the 15 per cent tax on it due the State."

In 1931 the tracks held four special racing days, supplemental to their regular season and approved by the legislature. Net proceeds were turned over to emergency unemployment relief and were free from both Federal and State taxes.

Walsh declared that since the present proposal was to use regular racing days the tracks would be required to deduct the State tax before turning over remaining profits to a war fund.

He said this was necessary because estimated tax proceeds had been figured in the State budget. The attorney general said such was not the case in 1931.

He added, "nor do we think that any State department or commission has, without specific authority, any legal right to make a donation of the State's revenue, no matter how worthy the cause."

Tracks which would turn one day's profit each to war relief are Pimlico, Havre de Grace, Laurel and Bowie. They will pay the customary daily license fee of $6000. In addition Pimlico will pay the daily $3000 Baltimore County fee.

Selections at Hialeah

Dear Al,

Sterling Young, who was riding in excellent form until he was injured in a spill at Tropical Park, is ready for the saddle again and will resume riding for Col. E. R. Bradley. Willie Davis, assistant paddock judge here is ill and had to have blood transfusions. This has resulted in many donations from race track people to the local "Blood Bank." Among the officials, Marshall Cassidy and Francis Dunne subscribed. Jockey George Woolf has agreed to ride Meissen, the so-called champion of Peru, when that horse starts. In the meanwhile, Woolf will work the horse. Meissen is not eligible for the Widener and Woolf is slated to ride Challedon in that event. Dr. J. Garland Catlett, noted turf veterinarian, leaves on Monday to join the colors. He was first to sponsor the saliva tests for horses in this country. He visited Europe to study saliva methods in several countries. His efforts have done much to eliminate the cruel practice of doping and stimulating race horses. Catlett is a lieutenant colonel in the veterinary corps and served in World War No. 1. One of the best named horses ever to set a hoof on a race track was Pairbypair, whose sire was Noah. Get it? The animals went into Noah's Ark pair by pair. Incidentally, Pairbypair has a son named Mercury competing in 2-year-old races here. Riggs Mahony, son of Mort Mahony of the various mutuel departments, has been called by the Army. Before leaving his fellow workers presented him with a wrist watch. The longshots certainly are popping around here. The figure players, those who sit up half the night with past performances, are back on their collective heels. The longshot-playing tourists are having a lot of fun. BILL.

First race—BIG TALK won last out over this course and figures to make it two in a row despite a heavy weight assignment. ALL GOOD is a fair sort and belongs close. BOTTLE IMP to take care of the others.

Second race—This is a tough race with TRADE LAST and STROLLING EASY figuring close. I prefer them in the order named. BACK TOOTH should go well with these maidens.

Third race—BAD COLD seems the best of a bad lot in this sprint. Needs only the right ride. ARGOS and GAY BALKO will be contenders and should battle it out for the place award.

Fourth race—STRONG ARM could not make the grade last out but I'm going to give this one another chance. EARLY DELIVERY has oodles of speed. ROYAL RUBY II to take care of the others.

Fifth race—HORN was shut off along the rail last out. May take the top early on this gang and I see no reason for mistakes. BOSTEE and RISE ABOVE IT for the place and show positions.

Sixth race—ALLESSANDRO is the class of this field and is the day's best in my book. CITY TALK and CASH BASIS to complete the money picture.

Seventh race—GOLDEN LEA is a good router and appears to have an edge on the platers gathered for this. BURNING STICK is fit and ready for the best. TRAPEZE ARTIST belongs close.

Eighth race—CASTIGADE has worked well since that last bad effort. I'm going to take my chances. HANDIBOY and STAR BUD seem best of the others.

Best bet—ALLESSANDRO.

Pounds Wants Figures

Pieces of Haight:

Miami, Fla.

Dear Boss:

Please send me the exact measurement from home plate in Griffith Stadium to the right field fence. Also send height of fence. If I hit home runs every day the Washington ball club is going to lose a lot of balls. I intend to concentrate on putting my homers just over the fence, at a point about 20 yards from the foul line. If you see Mr. Griffith tell him to have the ground keeper place a net at that point behind the fence and I'll hit the ball into it.

HAIGHT

Ever since I signed that contract for a trial with the Nats I have been getting fan mail. Most of them are in the vein of "Get in there and fight, Haight" or "We're all pulling for you, Pounds." One Clarendon fan writes wanting to give me a pick handle to use as a bat. He says his grandfather broke up the Ladies Aid Society picnic game for eight straight years with it. A Southwest rooter suggests that I let hard grounders hit me in the stomach and bounce over to first base.

I have a letter from a fair fan out Silver Spring way. She wants to help me with my diet and inclosed a food lineup that she guarantees will make me lose ten pounds a week.

Here's the diet: Monday, breakfast, half grapefruit and half head of lettuce; lunch, half head of lettuce and raw carrots; dinner, whole head of lettuce, raw vegetable salad. Tuesday, breakfast, half head of lettuce and half grapefruit; lunch, raw carrots and half head of lettuce; dinner, raw vegetable salad and whole head lettuce. Wednesday, same as Monday. Thursday, same as Tuesday. Friday, same as Monday and Wednesday. Saturday, same as Tuesday and Thursday.

Well, Boss, I didn't read as far as Sunday. What is she doing? Trying to make a second Rabbit Maranville out of me?

There was one good thing about her diet. At the top was the notation: "If you must drink, make it scotch with plain water."

I tried that and I didn't lose an ounce.

Boss, I couldn't go for that lettuce stuff. Any time I handle that many fresh vegetables a week, I'm going to quit this letter-writing racket and open myself a produce market.

By the way, I was thinking that they take the caffeine out of coffee and the nicotine out of cigarettes. What about somebody taking the starch out of grits? But maybe grits are like race horses, it isn't that you like them, but it's what you put on them that hurts.

Speaking of grits, this is getting to be the corniest letter yet. If you print this it might be a good idea to have the circulation department give a corn plaster free with every paper.

One thing is certain as I sit here writing from tropical (?) Florida, I'm not crazy with the heat.

Always your ace,
COLDFOOT HAIGHT.

P. S.: Send more money. My assets frozen.

Eads' Suspension Extended 10 Days At Hialeah Park

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4.—Wendell Eads, contract jockey for Warren Wright's Calumut Farm whose rough riding Tuesday drew him a 15-day suspension effective tomorrow, today had that suspension extended another ten days following disqualification of his mount, Distant Isle, in the third race at Hialeah Park.

The stewards ordered Eads' term on the ground extended to March 5 for careless riding and interfering with Inscolian at the head of the stretch. Inscolian was placed first after finishing second behind Distant Isle, 3-to-4 choice.

Senate Five Routs Aggies, 73 to 32

Senate Beer used only six players in rolling up a 73-to-32 score over the Aggies in the Heurich League last night, with Cavanaugh's 17 points leading the well-divided scoring.

FBI outscored Petworth, 33 to 10, in the second half, to win easily, 64 to 29, while Jacobsen Florists routed Northeast Falcons, 45 to 39 with Auerbach's 16 points best

Joe DiMaggio Gets Yankee Contract, Hints He Will Hold Out

Team's First Offer Seen Insufficient

'Clipper' Warned By Barrow, Keeps Silent on Terms; 'Only the Beginning'

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 4.—Joe DiMaggio received his 1942 contract from the New York Yankees in today's mail and this year's biggest baseball salary struggle immediately swung into motion.

The Yankees payroll is a zealously protected secret, but most writers believed the club had offered its centerfielder close to $40,000 for the coming season, an increase of about $4000 over the sum he was thought to have received in 1941.

"This is just the start of negotiations," said DiMaggio, and added that he and his wife and baby were not going to let the salary discussion hold up their Florida vacation. They will leave tomorrow or Friday for St. Petersburg and wait for the Yankees to open their training camp there the last of this month.

Joe Won't Talk

DiMaggio was guarded in his talk about a contract.

"You know that letter the boss (President E. G. Barrow) sends with every contract about not settling this thing in the newspapers," explained DiMaggio. Consequently he could not say whether there was much of a difference between his desires and the club's offer, or whether he thought a long dispute might result.

"I haven't made any plans to see Mr. Barrow personally," he added. "I had this trip to Florida planned for three weeks and I think we can reach an agreement in correspondence. I want to get down there where I can get some exercise and get losened up before we start training."

DiMaggio has been with the Yanks six years and won the American League batting championship twice. He hit .375 last year, finishing behind Boston's Ted Williams and Cecil Travis, of Washington, but he broke a 44-year-record by hitting safely in 56 consecutive games, and this power propelled New York to its fifth world championship in six years and helped swell the club's attendance, both at home and away.

125 Entered In Phoenix $5000 Open

By the United Press

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 4.—The $5000 Western Open golf tournament, prized event of the winter circuit, has drawn a field of 125 players, including all leading touring professionals and an amateur field including movie actors Big Crosby and Bob Hope.

Since cancellation of the United States Open by the United States Golf Association the Western Open returns, for this year at least, to its former importance.

It's a 72-hole medal play championship, opening at the Phoenix Country Club Friday with 18 holes, another round Saturday and two on Sunday.

Hogan Entered

Diminutive Bennie Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., on his way to his third straight year as leading money winner, tops the list of entrants. Hogan won the 1942 Los Angeles and San Francisco opens, but failed to place among the first 12 in the Bing Crosby pro-amateur at Del Mar, Calif.

Byron Nelson and Sam Snead have appeared hot in practice rounds. Nelson fired a seven-under-par 63 on the El Rio Country Club course at Tucson for a new course record in an exhibition match.

Snead turned in a two-under-par practice card of 69 here, bettered only by a sparkling 67 registered by Al Zimmerman, of Portland, Oreg., and a 69 chalked up by Lloyd Mangrum, of Chicago, Ill.

Competition will be cut to 60 players Sunday, including 45 professionals and 15 amateurs.

Lions' Hockey Stars Return; Eagles Face Orioles Tomorrow

Polly Drouin Lauded for Stellar Play in All-Star Game in Cleveland

As a proud quartet of Washington Lions returned home from Cleveland and Tuesday night's all-star game in which their Polly Drouin scored the winning goal, the Washington Eagles prepared for tomorrow night's meeting here at Riverside Stadium with a bolstered Baltimore Orioles team.

Baltimore, moving to recoup lost interest among its fans whose disinterest has caused the Orioles to lose money for the first time in years, has signed three new players. They are Jack Riley, a truly fine winger who has finally succeeded in crossing the Canadian border into this country; Corpl. Dave Walsh, formerly a winger with the Boston Olympics, who is now stationed at Aberdeen, Md., and Irving Schuman, a Baltimore boy with hockey playing experience.

Riley, an exceptionally fast skater and clever play maker, was one of the sparkplugs of the Orioles Eastern Amateur League championship team of two years ago. He was scheduled to report back to them this season, but due to passport difficulties was forced to remain at home and play with the Irish Pats of the Montreal Senior Group.

A Washington victory over Baltimore tomorrow will clinch for the Eagles the season's series between the two teams.

The Washington Lions meantime celebrated Drouin's scoring of the winning point as the Eastern Division All-Stars of the American League defeated the Western Division All-Stars, 5-4, in an exhibition for benefit of the American and Canadian Red Cross.

Georgetown Prep Triumphs Over Devitt

Georgetown Prep gained its fifth straight victory yesterday by turning back Devitt, 37 to 20, on the Garrett Park court. It marked the winners' second triumph over Devitt.

Ray Schneider and John Showell paced Georgetown Prep's attack with 15 and 9 points, respectively.

Nino Briscuso was best for Devitt with 8 points before leaving the game on four personal fouls in the last quarter.

Episcopal's Burnett Helps Beat Riders

Paced by stocky Luke Burnett, who gathered 14 points, Episcopal High cagers won their sixth game in eight starts yesterday as they turned back Roosevelt's Rough Riders, 28 to 20, on the Virginian's floor.

Seemingly in for a rough afternoon when the visitors opened up with a 4 to 0 margin in the first three minutes, the winners steadied behind the southpaw shots of Burnett and grabbed a 12 to 9 lead at the intermission. Roosevelt led 7 to 4 at the first quarter.

Setting up a tight zone defense Episcopal held its opponents at bay throughout the remainder of the game and forced them to reply on long shots for the bulk of their points. Pulling away steadily as the game wore on, the home team boasted a 28 to 14 advantage midway in the final quarter.

Burnett was aided in the scoring column by Tom Hamill who made nine points. The Riders points were well divided with Redinger, Deshazo and Karne each loopnig four.

Hornet Star Scores 6 Times; Eagles Routed

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Feb. 4.—Robert (Red) Heron, dynamic redhaired center, probably shattered the American Hockey League scoring record tonight by firing in six goals as his Pittsburgh Hornet teammates smothered the New Haven Eagles, 13 to 4, before 2000 fans.

Using a lightning-like left-handed shot, Red drove the puck into the visitors net like a bat out of a cave three times uring the first period—all within a 75 second period.

Records were not available for the American League, but the modern record for the National League is five goals and an assist made December 18 at Montreal by Pit Lepine.

Springfield Beats Philadelphia, 6-3

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 4 (AP).—A three-goal flurry in the second period enabled the Springfield Indians to conquer the Philadelphia Rockets, 6-3 tonight, in an American League game before a crowd of 1500. The contest marked the fourteenth in a row the Rockets have played without a victory.

Providence's Streak Is Extended, 8-1

Providence, R. I., Feb. 4 (AP).—A belated goal by Frankie Boucher enabled the Province Reds to increase their consecutive scoring record to 109 American Hockey League games tonight while they were being overwhelmed, 8-1, by the Buffalo Bisons. Boucher drove the first puck through Goalie Claude Bourque with less than 4 minutes remaining.

their worst game of the season, made only seven of 19. Three C. U. players were put out with four fouls.

Fred Rice, jr., taking a pass from a teammate after he stole the ball from the Shoreman, scored Catholic's first points after nine scoreless minutes. The Shoremen were ahead, 16-10, at half time and after boosting their margin to 20-10 in the second half maintained eight or ten-point margin through the final 16 minutes.

C. U. could not even execute the fundamentals and when they scored the baskets were of the sensational variety, either hit-or-miss shots from mid-court, one-handers while running out of bounds or swish shots from out of a huddle. Dick Scanlon, leading scorer of the conference, maintained his average with 10 points while Rice scored seven.

Hi-Skor Wins Over Arlington In Bowling

The Men's District Bowling League last night featured the battle of Hi-Skor and Rosslyn, deadlocked for the league leadership, with the downtown boys invading Virginia and whipping Galt Davis' Rosslyn rollers the last two games to go out in front by a one-game margin.

Rosslyn, having a decidedly off night, could muster but 1675, with Bill Krauss high for the team with 126, 362, while Hi-Skor did little better with a 1754 set and Lou Pantos' 375, Ed Blakeney's 373 and Andy Gleeson's 140, 365 the top totals.

Lucky Strike won two games from Lafayette in another tepid match and currently is in undisputed possession of third place. Harry Aiken's 160, 400 and "Bub" Guethler's 370 topped the list, while Hokie Smith lost considerable in average with 137, 369.

Arlington, with Capt. Ollie Pacini back in harness, won a triple-header over Del Ray. Frank Mischou's 148-410, Leon Fleisher's 144-394 and Pacini's 143-388 led with Bert Lynn high for the Cavaliers after a 134 game and 366 set.

Clarendon posted a 1912 set in winning three from Peacock's Bethesda with Lee Marcey's 153-408 leading the way. Penn whitewashed Hiser's Bethesdans with Aubrey Evans' 136-381 tops, and the Ice Palace went into a tie with Georgetown for fifth by taking three from Brookland with Jack Talbert's 153-387 the leading scores. Arcadia won a pair from Georgetown despite "Pinky" Bradt's 164-407 to set the Wisconsin boys back in the standing, and Spillway took the last two tilts from Convention Hall despite Tony Santini's 149-406.

LUTHERAN LEAGUE

Lou Hoover's 159 single for St. Paul's No. 1 topped the Lutheran Men's League at Arcadia, but Gil Hazell's 383 counted the most, for it paced St. John's quintet to the team highs following pinfalls of 603-1737.

HEBREW LEAGUE

Charley Kotzin of Rosenblatt's and Abe Weinberg of Milton's Service each had 153 to top the Hebrew League at Penn for high individual game, with Julie Singer's 399 high set enabling his Youdie's Men's Shop boys to team highs after totals of 612 and 1745. Willie Miller's 137-375 led Nurim to a sweep over the Olympians.

Jacobs, Phelan, Billy Conn Visit Louis in Camp

By the Associated Press

Yaphank, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Private Joe Louis Barrow, heavyweight boxing champion stationed at Camp Upton, received a visit today form three members of the old crowd—Promoter Mike Jacobs, Chairman John J. Phelan of the New York State Athletic Commission, and Billy Conn, who nearly beat Joe for the title last summer.

Jacobs' office said there was no special significance to the visit. Jacobs and Phelan had planned to drop in on Joe and Conn joined the party when his boxing paraphernalia failed to arrive in time for him to start training for next week's fight with Tony Zale.

Conn, meeting Louis for the first time since he was knocked out in the thirteenth round, told the champion he expected to be in the service within six weeks but he didn't know what branch.

Chuck Davies Brings Court Antics Here

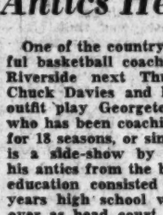
One of the country's most colorful basketball coaches will be at Riverside next Thursday when Chuck Davies and his Duquesne outfit play Georgetown. Davies, who has been coaching the Dukes for 18 seasons, or since he was 24, is a side-show by himself with his antics from the bench. Davies' education consisted of only two years high school when he took over as head court coach but he received a B. S. degree in 1934 after attending school for four years with his players. Duquesne has shown only one losing season in his tenure.

Johnny Busick, George Washington's publicity director, is in New York giving the Gotham sports writers a buildup on the Colonials who play St. John's in the Garden next Monday. Johnny is also handing out an all-American on Matt Zunic, who deserves it . . . Maryland's comparatively poor record this year can be attributed to the lack of scoring by the guards. Although Coach Shipley uses four and five a game, they seldom register a field goal between them . . . Dutch Schultz, American University's all-District forward of last year is helping Staff Cassell with the coaching and also teaches basketball at the Y . . . If A. U. cagers miss a foul shot it's their own fault as Cassell orders 100 a day in practice . . . Matt Zunic is now the holder of G. W.'s all-time three year scoring record with 553 points and looks to be a cinch to snap the 600 mark. Forest Burgess compiled 54 . . . If Georgetown should upset Duquesne, which has only lost two games, next Thursday it will be the first time in five meetings. If they lose they might turn the rest of the schedule over to the freshmen, who have the best record in town. M. W. W.

Dolly Stark Again Returns to Life As N. L. Umpire

By the United Press

New York, Feb. 4.—National League President Ford Frick announced today that Dolly Stark had been reappointed an umpire for the 1942 season, after an absence of nearly two years.



STARK

Stark is not filling a vacancy, so there now are 13 umpires in the circuit instead of the usual 12. This allows the use of four arbiters in some games.

Stark has not officiated since 1940, when he umpired one week and then retired on his physician's orders. He started in the National League in 1928 and in 1934 was elected the league's No. 1 umpire by a poll of players.

Navy Dept. Colored Five Beats Treasury

The Navy Department maintained its fast pace in the Colored Departmental Basketball League last night at Bannaker gym by defeating Treasury Department, 37-31.

Freddy Pryor, Bob White and Willie Watson, each with eight points, led the winner's attack.

Coolidge High Turns Back Landon, 34-25

By way of preparing for a crucial interhigh clash with Wilson Saturday night, the Colts of Coolidge High School turned back Landon, 34-25, yesterday on the Coolidge floor.

Coolidge easily solved the zone defense of its foes and led throughout the contest. The scoring was well distributed with Center Bartlett high with eight points. Brauner led the losing attack with 13 points.

Coolidge held a 19-7 margin at intermission.

Newsom Due For Salary Cut

heroics, and the Detroit front office in a rare display of chest thumping announced a year ago that Bobo's pay would exceed the prize winnings of Cleveland's rapid Robert Feller.

But in addition to losing games, Newsom lost favor with the Detroit management last summer, thus bringing on the disastrous pay cut. Normally Bobo might expect to carry his case to Walter O. Briggs, Tiger owner, a procedure that Hank Greenberg established with lucrative results, but Briggs is exceedingly wrapped up in his war industries and virtually has removed himself from baseball affairs.

The Tigers expect to have all players signed by February 22 when the batterymen report to Manager Baker at Lakeland, Fla., but Newsom may upset this schedule and become Detroit's first serious holdout.

Turner Abandons Tuesday's Show; Threatens to Quit

Promoter Joe Turner reported yesterday that no boxing show will be held Tuesday night at Arnica Hall as had previously been announced.

Promoter Turner had planned to match Anton Christoforidis, former N. B. A. light-heavyweight champion, with Jack La Motta, but the bout fell through.

Turner said, "If I can't find an opponent for Christoforidis, I believe I'll call it quits. I think I'll get out of the boxing game altogether."

Christoforidis is managed by Eddie Mead, who is trying to land the matchmaking job at the Uline Arena.

Assisting Mr. Blanz are Howard E. Thompson, William H. Dyer, S. S. Symons, Otto Herman and Martin A. Cook.

Northwestern Mutual Life

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. reported yesterday total admitted assets of 1941 were $1,439,889,824 having increased $80,890,176 or 6 per cent over 1940.

The annual report, issued by President M. J. Cleary, listed total insurance in force at the end of 1941 at $4,044,674,863, a gain of $95,942,131 over 1940. Sales of new insurance were $236,009,899 a gain of $36,542,818 or 18 per cent over 1940.

The report listed total income for 1941 at $228,213,052, principal items being $138,659,775 in gross premiums and $58,829,138 in interest and rent. Disbursements totaled $149,020,536.

Cleary stated that the downward trend in interest rates on desirable securities tended to level off during the year. The net rate realized was 3.7 per cent, he declared, which equals the 1940 figure.

Retail Trade in 1941 Hit Record 53.6 Billion

The Nation's retail stores recorded the biggest business in their history last year as a backdrop for the lean days of rationing and other war time restrictions that lie ahead.

The Commerce Department estimated yesterday that the corner drug stores, the department stores, the filling stations and all the other retail outlets did $53,600,000,000 worth of business in 1941—"the highest level of retail trade in history."

The total was 17 per cent more than 1940, and 11 per cent more than 1929, year of the previous record. It was more than twice as much as 1933, the depression low.

Fed by unprecedented Government expenditures for armaments, which built up new industries and jobs all over the country, the business boom favored all kinds of retailers. Hardware stores boasted a 24-6 per cent increase over the previous year; grocery stores, 15.3; eating and drinking places, 16.1; apparel stores, 19.8; filling stations, 17.4; furniture stores, 23.4; automobile dealers, 20.6; drug stores, 13; general merchandise stores, 12.1; and all other kinds of retail stores, 18.3 per cent.

Grocery stores, as usual, got the biggest single piece of the Nation's retail trade. The public spent $12,411,000,000 in food stores last year. Automobile dealers were next, with $8,226,000,000, and department stores third, with $7,616,000,000. Drug stores had the smallest total, $1,864,000,000.

The department figured that retail stores sold an average of $403 to every man, woman and child in the country.

The record was tarnished a bit, however, because the department said that nearly half the increase in dollar sales last year, compared with 1940, was caused by higher prices. The remainder was attributed to an actual increase in the sale of goods.

Another feature of 1941 was continued growth of chain-store and mail-order shares in the Nation's business. Chain stores and mail-order houses increased their business 20 per cent while independent stores increased 16 per cent.

The Christmas shopping season also came out with a new record. The department estimated that yuletide shoppers spent about $5,468,000,000, or 15 per cent more than the year previous.

A reduction in retail business appears certain from now until the end of the war. Automobile sales have already been restricted sharply. Curtailment of civilian uses of radios, washing machines, certain types of clothing, hardware is being undertaken, and the Nation has been warned that further rationing is inevitable.

Price Ceiling on Paper Board Is Amended

Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday amended the price ceiling schedule on paper board sold east of the Rocky Mountains by withdrawing several grades of paper board from formal control and placing them under voluntary agreement with manufacturers.

The paper board, whose prices will hereafter be stabilized by voluntary agreement, include special whites, special colors, special sizing and several other grades.

Twenty-five grades used principally in the manufacture of fiber shipping cases and 15 grades used mainly in the production of folding cartons will remain under the formal ceiling price previously established.

The amendment is effective as of Tuesday. The period to be used as a base to determine prices under the voluntary agreements will terminate October 15, 1941, in accordance with the new price control law, instead of September 30, 1941, as previously provided.

No. 36—Losses From Casualties, Theft and Wagers

To be deductable, a loss arising from "fires, storms, shipwrecks, or other casualty" need not be connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. If his home or his automobile is destroyed by fire, or his summer bungalow damaged by flood or storm, he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained.

A loss occasioned by damage to an automobile maintained for pleasure, where such damage results from the faulty driving of the taxpayer or other person operating the automobile, but is not due to the willful act or negligence of the taxpayer, is a deductible loss in the computation of net income. If damage to a taxpayer's automobile results from the faulty driving of the operator of an automobile with which the automobile of the taxpayer collides, the loss occasioned to the taxpayer by such damage is likewise deductible.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction, and need not be incurred in trade or business. Hence, the loss occasioned by the theft of jewelry or an automobile used for pleasure and convenience is deductible. It must be established, however, that the property actually was stolen. Should circumstances attending the loss leave the owner in doubt as to whether it was stolen or lost, the claim would not be allowed.

Losses from wagering transactions are allowable only to the extent of the gains from such transactions.

A loss is deductible only in the year in which it is sustained, even though, as in the case of a theft or casualty, it may not be discovered until a later year. Losses compensated for by insurance or otherwise, of course, are not deductible. However, in the event the amount of insurance is not sufficient to recompense for the loss sustained, the excess of the loss over the amount of the insurance is deductible.

In general, losses for which an amount may be deducted for income tax purposes must be evidenced by closed and completed transactions, fixed by identifiable events, bona fide and actually sustained during the taxable period for which claimed. For instance, a person possessing stock of a corporation cannot deduct from gross income any amount claimed as a loss merely on account of shrinkage in value of such stock through fluctuation of the market or otherwise. In the case of an individual the loss allowable in such cases is that actually suffered when the stock is disposed of. If any securities (that is, shares of stock in a corporation and rights to subscribe for or to such shares) become worthless during the taxable year and are capital assets, the loss resulting therefrom shall, for income tax purposes, be considered as a loss from the sale or exchange, on the last day of such taxable year of capital assets.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 4 (AP).—Grain prices picked up fractions to more than a cent a bushel today in continuation of their recovery trend led by rye and soy beans.

Wheat closed ¼-⅝ cent higher than yesterday; May, 1.30⅛@1.30¼; July, 1.31⅛. Corn, ¼-⅜ up; May, 87⅞; July, 89½. Oats ¼ off to ⅛ up. Rye and soy beans 1-1⅜ higher. Lard closed 15 to 18 cents per hundredweight higher, strengthened by upward revision in ceiling levels on spot lard.

Buying of rye was credited to professional traders, who have been more active in that pit the last few weeks. Orders to cover previous short sales and reinstate lines sold out earlier in the week were in evidence, with dealers paying most attention to the fact that rye was priced at a greater discount under parity than any other grain.

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Cotton futures extended their rally today after last week's selling had reduced the market around $8 a bale from 12-year highs.

Final prices were up 65 to 80 cents a bale.

Only sparse offerings of spot cotton in the South and the consequent slackening of hedging sales in the futures market helped the recovery. At the same time the recent liquidating movement appeared to have run its course.

Arms Makers Create 'Pool' For Idle Tools

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Feb. 4.—Machines and tools for war production are being shunted from factory to factory like pawns on a chess board.

It's part of a plan to get maximum production out of the machines, the regional division of contract distribution announced today.

So far the plan is fully operative only at Toledo, where manufacturers organized themselves into the Defense Production Association. These manufacturers have agreed to lend, lease or sell their idle machinery to others capable of putting them to immediate use.

Pooling of efforts and equipment has created a capacity for handling 200 million dollars more of war contracts, the DCD reported. Toledo at present has contracts totaling about 300 million dollars, half of which are held by Willys-Overland Co., maker of Army jeeps.

A survey of tools made by the DCD in Cleveland looks toward this shift of machinery to plants where it can be put to best use. Lieut. Col. H. M. Reedall, deputy chief of the Ordnance District, proposed that "drafted" war-idle machines be set up and operated in the underground hall of Cleveland's public auditorium. City officials have indicated their willingness to make the hall available.

Meanwhile, at Washington the War Production Board yesterday took a step preliminary to allocating for war use the metal-working machinery held by the automobile industry. It asked motor companies to report by February 15 the number, condition and use of critical machines owned by them.

The request was sent from Detroit by Ernest Kanzler, chief of the automotive branch, in telegrams to all automobile and truck manufacturers, and about 150 of the largest makers of parts and supplies.

"The action was necessary," Kanzler said, in order "to quickly obtain some machines to bolster low capacity spots in production lines now running on most urgent war material."

Latest Profit Statements

Liquid Carbonic Corporation reported net income of $125,533, equal to 17 cents a capital share, in the three months ended December 31, 1941, with a net loss of $136,449 in the same 1940 period. The company manufactures soda fountains and all types of bottling equipment.

Illinois Central Railroad system reported 1941 net income of $10,557,195, equal to $6.95 a common share, compared with net income of $1,296,619, or 13 cents a common share in the preceding year.

General Railway Signal Corporation reported 1941 net profits, after payment of all charges and preferred dividends, equalled $2.06 per common share compared to $1.21 for 1940. Net 1941 income totalled $796,990, greater by $270,230 than the 1940 figure.

Acme Steel Co. and subsidiary reported net profit for the quarter ended December 31 was $762,836, equal to $2.32 a share, compared with $462,340 or $1.40 a share in the December quarter of 1940. Preliminary reported net profit for the year 1941 was $3,166,346, equal to $9.65 a share, against $2,110,432, or $6.43 a share in the preceding year.

General Cigar Co., Inc., and its wholly owned subsidiary, General Cigar Co., of Cuba, Ltd., reported net income for 1941 was $1,667,290, equal to $2.78 a common share, compared with $1,369,488 or $2.15 a share in 1940.

Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., and subsidiaries showed net profit for the quarter ended December 31 of $285,125, equal to 46 cents a share, against $480,899 or 78 cents a share in the corresponding period of 1940.

Ohio Brass Co. and wholly owned subsidiaries reported net profit for the year ended December 31 was $897,673, equal to $2.58 a share, against $720,417 or $2.07 a share in 1940.

Crude Oil Output Declines in Week

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Average daily crude oil production in the United States declined to 3,871,350 for the week ended January 31, the American Petroleum Institute reported today. A week earlier the average was 4,311,300 barrels daily and a year before was 3,235,050 barrels.

Biggest drop was shown by Texas, where the output was off 445,600 barrels from the week before.

Gasoline production during the week totaled 13,201,000 barrels, a jump of 273,000 barrels over the week previous.

Gasoline stocks at the end of the week were 97,810,000 barrels, compared with 96,363,000 barrels a week earlier and 90,366,000 on the comparable date a year ago.

Steel Firms Start Scrap Collection

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Iron Age said today steel companies have sent labor gangs into automobile graveyards this week to relieve the desperate need for scrap metal.

"At least five steel companies in the Midwest and one in the East," said the steel magazine, "have entered the auto wrecking business.

"The wage costs in this plan of scrap salvage, including hauling costs and yard conversion, with no profit to the agent acting for the steel company, in some cases brigs a net price of $2 or more above the fixed maximum price ceiling."

Eggs Continue Drop

Chicago, Feb. 4 (AP).—Egg prices in the wholesale market dropped as much as 1¾ cents a dozen today, extending losses for the past week to 4¾ cents, as uncertainty over the Government's purchasing program continued to dominate trading.

Cocoa Supply Viewed Ample For Full Year

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 4.—The possibility of a shortage of cocoa and chocolate is remote, a survey of trade opinion disclosed today.

The gloomiest view was that some form of rationing might be started in mid-1942. This was based on the theory that not a pound of cocoa would arrive in the United States from West Africa or Latin America for the balance of 1942, which cocoa dealers said would be highly unlikely.

They offered this interpretation of the supply picture:

The United States currently has on hand roughly 300,000 tons of cocoa, or approximately one full year's supply. This includes the visible supplies held in licensed New York warehouses, and the invisibles held by manufacturers. How much is on the housewife's pantry shelf is anybody's guess.

All Is Imported

Every ounce of cocoa the United States uses must come from overseas. In the past, roughly half has come from West Africa and the other half from Latin America, chiefly Brazil.

Whether the United States receives new supplies this year depends almost entirely on the availability of shipping space.

Machinery and other industrial needs will head for the Latin-American nations by the shipload this year. The same ships will bring back dozens of strategic raw materials, such as tin, copper, lead and various drugs. Cocoa dealers expected thousands of tons of cocoa beans would be sandwiched in these shipments.

Manufacturers of candy, it was estimated, have accumulated cocoa inventories sufficient for two to ten months and even more. Dealers say the majority aren't too worried their supplies might be cut off.

Army Gets Priority

The United States Army, Navy and Coast Guard are using more candy than ever before, even in the first World War, according to trade associations. Candy-makers, working on Government orders, get priority ratings on sugar supplies and it was considered likely a supply of chocolate would be assured them. Chocolate bars also have wide use in the armed forces in emergency rations.

Another indication that the trade saw a chance for getting further shipments was the fact that cocoa quoted in the New York Cocoa Exchange for delivery in the next two to ten months was below Federal ceiling prices.

Timken Declares 50-Cent Dividend

Canton, O., Feb. 4 (AP).—The Timken Roller Bearing Co. announced today a common dividend of 50 cents a share, payable March 5 to stockholders of record February 18. The concern paid a $1.50 dividend last December 5, double the previous payment.

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Directors of Phelps Dodge Corporation, leading copper producer, today declared a dividend of 40 cents a share, payable March 10 to holders of record February 28. The company paid 25 cents a share in March and June last year, 50 cents in September and a year-end disbursement of 50 cents in December. The latest dividend will involve about $2,000,000.

Ford Motor Cancels Group Insurance

Detroit, Feb. 4 (AP). — Bulletin boards notified Ford Motor Co. employes today that the corporation had abandoned its $20,000,000 group insurance plan, effective February 28. The plan provided a $1,500 life policy, sick benefits of $15 a week, hospitalization and surgical care.

Officials declined to discuss the reasons for terminting the arrangement.

A. T. & T. Reports Gain Of 109,500 Telephones

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced today there was an increase of 109,500 telephones in use in its principal subsidiaries in January. The gain for the preceding month was 130,600 and for January, 1941, it amounted to 129,200.

The number of telephones in use in The additions in January brought the Bell system to about 18,950,700, a new record.

New Traffic Peril?

Renascence of Bicycle Era Assured in U. S. as War Step

After 30 years of depression in the bicycle trade, America is headed toward a two-wheeler era reminiscent of the gay '90s. Production in 1941 almost reached the record established in 1897—heyday of the industry, when two million bicycles were built. Right now the Government is planning to limit output to a 750,000 annual rate, just enough to keep the industry going (plus some defense work it has) until the curtailment of rubber tires and motorcars really hurts.

Then the vital need for short-distance transportation is expected to bring the industry back into its own, for upward of 150 bicycles can be made with the metal that goes into one automobile.

The bicycle revival started on a health and recreation basis in 1936, when output passed the one million level for the first time in more than three decades. Now it will go forward as an important essential industry, furnishing transportation for distances from five to eight miles to war workers, civilian factories, shoppers, delivery and messenger services.

The dozen bicycle manufacturers, 40 parts makers and 60,000 employes are swinging over to utilitarian transportation. It will be almost like starting from scratch, for, instead of 375 different models, all efforts will henceforth be concentrated on the one model which can be used by children of 10 or 12 years on up. Last year the industry operated at only 65 or 70 per cent of capacity.

H. M. Meloney, executive secretary of the Bicycle Manufacturers Association, estimates that the industry can make from five to six million bicycles with little or no plant expansion.

The new war-model bicycle which all makers have adopted is stripped almost completely of critical material, gadgets and bright work. The reduction in weight of this one standard model will save some 30,000 tons of steel, it is estimated. Its great war-time appeal, of course, will be cheapness of operation, as rubber and fuel bid fair to become major civilian scarcities.

There are between 11 and 12 million bicycles in the United States today. In Great Britain bicycles transport nearly 25 per cent of all the people, including between six and seven million war workers. On a comparable basis that would mean 32 million bicycles in the United States to pedal people to and from defense plants, Army camps, offices, schools and stores.

The bicycle industry is nearly as important in Great Britain as the automobile has been in America. Approximately 3,500,000 were made annually in the pre-war days. After the war began output declined, but now it is coming back as an essential war industry from the transportation standpoint. All signs today point to America's going back to a transportation phase that England never left.

War Censorship Will Bring Joy to SEC Registrants

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Those fat and ponderous registration statements which intending issuers of new securities must submit to the Securities & Exchange Commission will be thinned a bit in many cases as a result of military censorship, Wall Street investment quarters learned today.

Under the Securities Act, corporations seeking SEC authority to bring out new stocks or bonds were required to supply the most minute information on operations, plans for new plant expansion, the sort of goods produced and various other details.

Military censorship hardly would permit the free dissemination of essential facts of a corporation with defense business, particularly as to its production plans. This is strictly taboo, according to the Washington censors, a condition now recognized by the SEC.

Advertising Index Up 11% in Month

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—The monthly index of general advertising activity compiled by Printers' Ink advanced 11.1 per cent in December over November, after corrections for normal seasonal fluctuations, the trade magazine stated today.

The index was 7.9 per cent ahead of December, 1940. For all of 1941 the index gained 4.6 per cent over 1940.

14 Insurance Firms To Buy Utility's Issue

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 4 (AP).—Issuance of 25 million dollars by the Commonwealth Edison Co. of its 3 per cent first mortgage bonds, due in 1977, was authorized by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The bond issue will be purchased by 14 insurance companies.

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

IS HE REALLY IN THERE?
TAKE A LOOK FOR YOURSELF, WISE GUY! HE'S GOING TO MARS—AND WHEN HE COMES BACK, WE'LL PUT HIM IN A PICTURE! WATCH IT GO!
I HOPE NOTHING HAPPENS TO HIM!
HE AIN'T IN THE ROCKET, MRS. TWEEDY!
BUT I SAW HIM SETTIN' THERE JUST AS NATURAL AS ANYTHING!
THAT WAS ONLY A DUMMY! YOUR GRANDSON IS IN MY CAR, PARKED IN THE WOODS!
GEE WHILLIKENS, MRS. TWEEDY—SOMETHING WENT WRONG!
WHAT HAPPENED TO HIM? HE'S AS LIMP AS A RAG!

JOE PALOOKA — Rendered Harmless — BY HAM FISHER

THIS IS IT JOE. LOOK—IT WAS SET TO EXPLODE AS SOON AS THE MOTORS WERE TURNED ON BY OUR PRIZE CREW.
WHEW! WHAT RATS THESE NAZIS ARE!!
HOW'RE WE GOING TO GET IT UP THE LADDER?
WON'T HAVE TO. IT'S HARMLESS NOW. IT CAN BE SHOVED OVERBOARD AFTER.
THERE WAS A TIME BOMB HIDDEN IN A MOTOR, SIR.
WE DISCONNECTED IT. THAT'S WHY WE DIDN'T GIT IN THE BOAT.
GREAT WORK LADS!

WINNIE WINKLE — Right Party, Wrong Number — BY BRANNER

HELLO, MR. WINKLE?
YES, WHO IS THIS?
I CALLED UP TO FIND OUT HOW YOU MADE OUT WITH WINNIE—ABOUT HER TWINS IN MY ADVERTISING STUNT!
OH-ER-AHEM-UH-WHO DID YE SAY THIS IS?
THIS IS AD LIBB, MR. WINKLE!!
TH' PARTY YOU WANT AIN'T HERE! CALL UP TH' FIREHOUSE IF Y'WANT TO TALK TO HIM—GOODBY!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN — Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — A Phone Call — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

OF COURSE JANE KNOWS WHAT SHE'S DOING—
BUT SHUCKS—
I WISH I'D GONE WITH HER TO MAKE SURE EVERYTHING WAS ALL RIGHT—
NO USE WORRYING ABOUT IT—I'LL PHONE AND MAKE SURE
BUDDY, CAN YOU SPARE A TIRE?
DRUGS
LET IT RING!
R-RING!
THAT'S FUNNY—I KNOW SHE'S THERE—I JUST TOOK HER HOME—
GOLLY—MAYBE SOMETHING IS WRONG—

SUPERMAN — Short and Sweet — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

SUPERMAN REMOVES THE TRAPPED MEN AND IMPERILED FILM TO SAFETY....
THERE YOU ARE! SAFE AND SOUND!
IT'S SUPERMAN!
RE-ENTERING THE CUTTING ROOM, SUPERMAN EXTINGUISHES THE FLAMES WITH PUFFS OF HURRICANE FORCE....
OUT YOU GO!
RACING BACK TO THE KNICKHAUS RESIDENCE, SUPERMAN CHANGES BACK TO HIS IDENTITY OF CLARK KENT....
THAT WAS SHORT AND SWEET!
....RESUMING HIS PLACE BY THE WINDOW AS KNICKHAUS FINISHES THE TELEPHONE CALL!
YOU SAY THE FIRE IS OUT, NOW? GOOD! RUSH THE FILM OVER HERE!
—AND THAT'S THAT!—)

Listen! with Glynn

Ed Gardner is Archie—and Archie is Ed Gardner.

Neither needs an identification card. Listeners could identify the voice anywhere from hearing it every Thursday night in "Duffy's Tavern" over WJSV and the Columbia network. Its pure Brooklynese is a thing of beauty, after a fashion, and also a comical joy.

Mr. Gardner comes by Archie's voice quite naturally. He was born in Brooklyn, and he's just been speaking like Archie ever since.

How he comes by his present eminence as an actor might be interesting to note: His parents tried to make a businessman of him, but it didn't take. He promoted "quickie" films, stock companies; he managed actors, which means their transportation, hotel reservations, personal and public affairs; he typed scripts, he served as an understudy, he painted scenery, he directed shows—with the net result that at the end of all this he landed on the WPA, as director of one of the arts projects.

He was so encouraged by this that he married an aspiring young actress, named Shirley Booth. It was only a couple of weeks later that Miss Booth got a job in a play called "Three Men on a Horse." It was one of Broadway's biggest hits in years. And simultaneously Ed got a lucrative job with an advertising agency as a radio director. They've both been great successes ever since. Miss Booth has had lead parts in "The Philadelphia Story" and "My Sister Eileen." She's Miss Duffy in the radio series. Ed's been Archie in any number of radio shows.

Contract Bridge

"Would you make a bid with these cards, third hand, after the first two players pass?" writes contributor O. D. E. "I decided to say no bid and my partner became quite peeved, saying I certainly should have bid one heart." Here is the hand:

♡ A K J 10 4
◇ Q 7
♣ 9 8 2

The opportunty to put in a cheap one-heart bid is too attractive to pass up with this hand. First, it offers partner a playable suit in the event he decides to fight the adversaries. Second, it presents a safe and profitable opening lead in the event the opponents buy the hand at a suit or no-trump contract. It is imperative for O. D. E. to bid at once if he is to bid at all, for if he passes and fourth hand opens, as he most likely will, the auction may get too high for him to make an overcall next time it comes his turn to speak.

House Approves Fringe Parking Lots for Autos

By unanimous consent the House yesterday passed the off-street parking bill, returning it to the Senate for a minor typographical correction before sending it on to the White House.

Designed to help alleviate Washington's traffic congestion, the bill would empower the District government to acquire and operate parking lots on the fringe of the downtown area or in any section of the city where lots will facilitate the flow of traffic.

The motive of the measure, as revealed in hearings conducted last fall by a special Senate District subcommittee under the chairmanship of Senator Burton (Republican), of Ohio, is to set up lots in sections surrounding the downtown area where persons would park their autos instead of driving all the way.

The bill provides for the creation of a seven-member motor vehicle parking agency composed of one representative each from the Federal Works Agency, the National Park Service, the District traffic department, and four District residents selected at large by the Commissioners.

Synthetic Rubber Deals Being Probed

Jury Scrutinizes Blocking of Production, Pacts Between Standard Oil and Nazis

By W. W. Chaplin
International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Feb. 4.—Amid wartime precautions of secrecy as to the identity of witnesses called and testimony given, a Federal grand jury today began investigation of deals whereby Germany's Nazi-controlled chemical and dye trust is alleged to have blocked production of synthetic rubber in this country.

Particularly under scrutiny by the grand jury are various intricate patent and research agreements between the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and I. G. Farbenindustrie, gigantic German chemical and dye combine, with regard to various processes for production of synthetic rubber.

I. G. Farbenindustrie has been engaged for some time in large-scale production of synthetic rubber for the German war machine, thereby making it virtually independent of natural rubber imports. On the other hand, synthetic rubber production in the United States has been delayed so long it is still in the infancy stage at a time when the country faces a critical rubber shortage for war purposes.

Last Friday, the Union for Democratic Action, headed by Dr. Frank Kingdon, sent an open letter and memorandum to United States Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri, chairman of the Senate's Defense Investigation Committee, charging that the German trust has blocked and delayed synthetic rubber production in the United States and asking for a full investigation of its deals with Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Meanwhile, however, the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice has been quietly investigating these synthetic rubber deals for some months preparatory to laying the matter before the Federal grand jury.

Plans Launched to Exploit South American Rubber

By the United Press

High Government sources said last night that plans now are underway for exploitation of rubber-growing potentialities of South America, notably the vast Amazon River Valley in Brazil, which eventually will convert American "good neighbors" into a major source of supply.

Officials said the long-range program, calling for expenditure of $500,000 in Federal funds to increase cultivation and planting of rubber plants in Brazil, Ecuador, Colombia, Bolivia and Panama, has been greatly accelerated because of Japan's lightning successes in the Far East.

One official said that postwar planning calls for less dependency on Far Eastern sources of supply even though the United Nations succeed in ousting the Japanese from that area. Half of American needs, he said, would be met by imports from Malaya and the Dutch Indies, while the other half would be obtained from hemispheric sources.

Chief emphasis of the hemispheric development program, it was said, will apply to Brazil—for the present, at least—since its steaming jungle lands, located at the same degree of latitude as the East Indies—potentially are the great hope of crude rubber production in any great volume.

Brazil's finance minister, Dr. Arthur de Souza Costa, arrived here Tuesday night in connection with the program. Twelve American rubber experts are scheduled later this week to fly to the South American republic to give technical advice and assistance to rubber planters in an effort to obtain maximum output from rubber-producing plants already in cultivation.

Transit Firms Face Big Task

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Hold on to that strap, folks, because local transportation systems throughout the country are getting set to handle 17 billion passengers this year, 20 billion in 1943.

The total "handle" last year was 14,365,610,000. The higest previous total was 16 billion in 1926.

Reporting on an exhaustive survey into defense plant locations, and indicated retirement of automobiles from everyday use, Charles Gordon, managing director of the American Transit Association, today laid these figures before the war emergency conference of the transit industry.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, promptly suggested the use of more shoe leather and leg power on the part of the general public, said local transit problems might be met through less sightseeing, fewer conventions, staggered hours of industry and business, a change in school schedules.

Guy R. Richardson, head of the local transport division in Eastman's department, told the conference there was little prospect for much new equipment.

Bundles Ready For Congress

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 4 (AP).—The "bundles for Congress" truck, which the Athletic Round Table is sending to Washington Representatives and Senators, will leave Spokane tomorrow noon.

Extra help was called in at the round tabl. office to assist in tying up the huge pile of bundles, a jocular treatment of the Congressional pension plan.

Ellinor Manning, the round table's regular secretary, said there had been well over 2000 boxes received up to last night, including almost "everything that would go into a box."

"We want our Congressmen to know we're back of 'em," Joe Albi, club president, asserted. "In fact, we're so far back that I wonder if we'll even catch up."

"What's the price of a bomber or two compared to the comfort of an ailing Congressman who couldn't make the grade at election time? He's got to have aid."

A fervent plea to take care of the alumni came from former United States Senator C. C. Dill.

"Just think of the injustice," he said. "After giving 18 of the best years of my life in Congress, all I have left is enough to build a little shack up on the hill."

The little shack is a $60,000 mansion in Spokane's South Hill District.

He urged that the pension measure be made retrocative to cover former Congressmen.
